GIs Doubt Skill Of Vietnamese

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — A number of GIs in Vietnam who heard President Nixon's broadcast don't share his faith in the South Vietnamese army. But many think he should nevertheless speed up the withdrawal of American forces more than he promised.

Most enlisted men questioned at random said the President's speech contained nothing new or unexpected. Some said the Americans should pull out immediately while others expressed doubts about the ability of the South Vietnamese to resist the enemy without U.S. support.

An exception was a sergeant who has been in service 19½ years and is due to retire in six months. He said he would "go along with President Nixon." But "I've been in the service too long to make my opinions known," he added, refusing to be quoted by name.

Should be More

Of Nixon's announcement Wednesday night that American forces would be reduced 100,000 men in the next seven months Spec. 5 James Osteen of Cordele, Ga., said: "I think it's good, but it should be more. The sooner we all get out, the better."

"We ought to pull out now, right now," said Sgt. Jack Silvers, 21, of Anchorage, Alaska. "The Viets don't give a damn if we're here or not. They don't care who rules them. Communists or whatever. We haven't accomplished anything, just got a lot of our guys killed."

Sgt. Craig Kinney, 24, of Ogden, Utah, said he thought the United States "should have gone for a complete military victory in the beginning. But since we're not, let's get out right away."

"The only thing Nixon's pullout announcement helps is the guys in the States who won't have to come over here," said Spec. 5 Michael Lavin of Sharon, Pa. "I don't think much of it."

"It would be nice if all he says comes true," said a soldier in the central highlands, Spec. 5 Stephen Quackenbush, 22, of Oneonta, N.Y. "It wouldn't be that long before it's over with. But it's been said before. Without us here, I don't think the South Vietnamese will really make it."

S. Sgt. Gerald Taylor, 23, of Salt Lake City, Utah, commented: "I thought it was interesting to hear him rationalize what really appears to be desperate attempts to give the South Vietnamese more time.

Air Support

"In Laos they didn't succeed in making a base area to stop movement on the trail . . . Once the GIs are gone, without the continued air support, the North Vietnamese will be right back here."

U.S. officers questioned at Quang Tri, in the northern end of the country, had varied reactions.

Capt. Tom Wallace, 27, of Columbus, Miss, said: "I expected to hear more on the prisoner of war issue. The over-all tenor of his speech, however, was much the same as his previous speeches on Vietnam."

"My reaction is favorable," said Maj. Richard Miles, 33, of Morgan, Utah. "The President pointed out that the Laotian operation had an effect on the total program in Vietnam. This was the first experience by the ARVN and they showed they were able to hold their own."

Nixon Again Speeds Troop Pull-Out, Rejects Deadline

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has increased slightly the pace of U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, ordering another 100,000 men home by Dec. 1. But he rejected appeals to set a date for ending U.S. involvement.

Nixon's announcement Wednesday night raised the monthly troop pullout average to about 4,300, well below the hopes of some for a dramatic rise over the current 12,500 monthly average rate,

The new goal will drop the total U.S. troop commitment to about 184,000 men, lowest in six years and 359,400 below the peak two years ago.

However, this is unlikely to mollify antiwar critics in Congress who have been pressing for a final U.S. disengagement, perhaps by the end of this year.

Muskie Disappointed

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, a potential Democratic candidate for the White House, was typical of those in Congress who indicated Nixon didn't go far enough. Muskie said he was "very disappointed."

Obviously anticipating criticism, Nixon told his nationwide audience:

"If the United States should announce that we will quit regardless of what the enemy does, we would have thrown away our principal bargaining counter to win the release of American prisoners of war; we would remove the enemy's strongest incentive to end the war sooner by negotiations; and we will have given enemy commanders the exact information they need to marshal their attacks against our remaining forces at their most vulnerable time."

Serious Negotiations

Once again, Nixon urged Hanoi "to engage in serious negotiations" and especially to agree to "the immediate and unconditional release of all prisoners of war throughout Indochina."

While Nixon did not say just where the end of the tunnel lies, he did say "I can assure you . . . with confidence that American involvement in this war is coming to an end."

And with an apparent reference to the 1972 presidential election, he invited the American people to "hold me accountable if I fail."

There are indications from other administration officials that Nixon expects to reduce the American troop presence in Vietnam to a "residual force" of below 50,000 advisers and security troops to guard then by the time he goes to the voters again in November 1972.

Allied Strength

The President said he was announcing an increase in the withdrawal rate between May 1 and Dec. 1 "because of the increased strength of the South Vietnamese, because of the success of the Cambodian operation; and because of the achievements of the South Vietnamese operation in Laos."

Critics raised doubts about the fighting qualities of the South Vietnamese army after it cut short its ground campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail and some of its units retreated out of Laos in apparent disarray.

Other administration officials have said it will take until next fall to assess fully whether the six-week operation was a success in crippling North Vietnam's ability to mount major offensive actions.

But Nixon rated the operation a plus. Speaking in measured tones and with a large chart behind his right shoulder, Nixon outlined these conclusions based on what he said was his assessment:

Fight Effectively

"First, the South Vietnamese demonstrated that without American advisers they could fight effectively against the best troops North Vietnam could put in the field.

"Second, the South Vietnamese suffered heavy casualties. But, by the most conservative estimates the casualties suffered by the enemy were far heavier. (He gave no figures.)

"Third, and most important, the disruption of enemy supply lines and the consumption of ammunition and arms in the battle has been even more damaging to the capability of the

Shops Line Street of Sorrow

Way of the Cross Defaced by Commercialism

By HAL McCLURE
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Way of the Cross, the path the condemned Jesus followed from Pontius Pilate's court to the rocky hill where he died, is only 1,000 steps.

Nearly 20 centuries later the traveler following those same steps may find the Via Dolorosa a Street of Sorrow still—for another reason. Only the most devout pilgrim can close his eyes to its commercialism and secularism.

Too often the visitor, remembering his early Bible training, has an idealized vision of Christ's last agony, perhaps a palm-shaded lane leading to a cloud-shrouded mountain.

It is far from that.

The Via Dolorosa is a narrow, twisting, cobbled alley leading from the Lion's Gate in Jerusalem's eastern wall through the teeming heart of the Holy City to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, marking the traditional site of Calvary and the entombment.

It is lined with countless shops bearing such impious names as Eighth Station Souvenir Bazaar, Peace Land Souvenir Shop or Holy Land Exhibit.

Eager shopowners, who have looked forward to the Easter Week bonanza for a year, beckon from doorways importuning the pilgrim to buy souvenirs —olive wood crucifixes, mother of pearl Bibles, rosaries, brocades, maps, guidebooks.

The truth is, the old walled city of Jerusalem is not unlike any other Arab quarter of the Middle East—filled with the same sights, sounds and smells.

Nine of the 14 Stations of the Cross—which the Bible and Christian tradition say mark crucial events along Jesus' path —are on the Via Dolorosa. The rest are inside the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. Without a guide most of the stations are difficult to find as they are protected behind thick church walls dotting the Way of the Cross.

The names of some of these shrines must be Christianity's most colorful: the Prison of Christ Monastery, the Sanctuary of the Flagellation, the Church of Our Lady of the Spasm and the Church of the Holy Face.

Ironically, the first station, the praetorium where Jesus was condemned, is inside a Moslem boys' school and the pilgrim must wend his way through crowds of shouting boys. The third station, where Jesus fell under the weight of the cross for the first time, was once a Turkish bath. A tiny chapel run by Polish Catholics marks the spot. A combination museum and souvenir shop is at the rear.

Movie Posters

Near the sixth station, where Veronica wiped the face of Jesus, two Greek Cypriot matrons, clad in austere black, sit on folding stools to catch their breath. They stare impassively at a wall covered with posters advertising Jerusalem's new films, including "Killer on a Horse" and "Hell Commandos."

A lemonade seller, bells tinkling, offers them a cooling drink.

Close to the seventh station, where Jesus fell the second time, a modern-day moneychanger boasts he cashes traveler's checks.

Past the eighth station, where Jesus spoke to the daughters of Jerusalem, and the ninth, where He fell the third time, a standup narghileh—or water pipe—stall has a waiting line. The proprietor gives each smoker a fresh mouthpiece when he steps up for several puffs.

The crowds begin to thicken on the Christian Quarter Road just outside the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. Gino's Snack Bar, advertising spaghetti and pizza, is doing a brisk business.

Express Laundry

Outside the church courtyard, the owner of the Express Laundry takes a noonday nap, his head on an ironing board. Beside the church entrance, an Israeli police sign warns visitors that inside they can't eat, smoke, play transistor radios or speak loudly. Babies and animals are forbidden.

The old Crusader Church of the Holy Sepulcher, badly damaged in an earthquake in 1927, is still under repair. Work is not expected to be finished for 5 or 10 years. The delay is blamed on church groups quarreling over how the restoration must be accomplished.

Saladin, the Arab conqueror of Jerusalem, taking note of the bitter feuding, turned the key to the church over to a Moslem guard centuries ago. A Moslem family still has the key.

A flight of steep stairs just inside the door leads to the rocky summit where tradition says Christ died on the cross in the company of two thieves.

A bearded monk gives a candle to one of the devout, an elderly women in black. She lights it and places it on the altar, closing her eyes in prayer.

To her and others like her this is the only meaning of the Via Dolorosa—the Street of Sorrow.

Hanoi Delegates Blast Nixon Talk

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam accused President Nixon today of cynicism in not announcing a date for total withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam. It declared this proves "his policy is continuing the war indefinitely."

North Vietnam's acting chief delegate to the Vietnam peace talks, Nguyen Minh Vy, accused Nixon of intending to "prolong the military occupation of Vietnam."

"The fighting union of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia will totally defeat Nixon," Vy said as he entered the 108th session of the peace talks.

Vy and Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, head of the Viet Cong delegation, commented on Nixon's speech Wednesday night in which he announced a slight increase in U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam.

Withdrawal Date

"Nixon's refusal to advance a date for total withdrawal of his troops proves that he has not decided to end the war as the American and Vietnamese people demand," she said.

South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam, in his prepared remarks to the conference, responded:

"North Vietnam has no right to maintain . . . in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos the troops which it has illegally introduced. It has no valid reason to avoid discussions on an agreed timetable for the withdrawal of all external forces as part of an overall solution.

Fixed Limit

"Neither can it reasonably demand that a date limit be fixed for the withdrawal of the allied forces alone without making the slightest allusion to the withdrawal of its own troops, the presence and the activities of which on the territories of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia constitute precisely the cause of this war and of its prolongation."

The session was the first in three weeks. The communists called off the scheduled March 25 meeting to protest American bombing of North Vietnam. They proposed a meeting April 1, but the Americans and South Vietnamese would not agree.

Vy replaced Minister of State Xuan Thuy, head of the Hanoi delegation, who is in Moscow attending the Soviet Communist party congress. He is due to return to Paris Friday.

Vandalism Mars March Against War

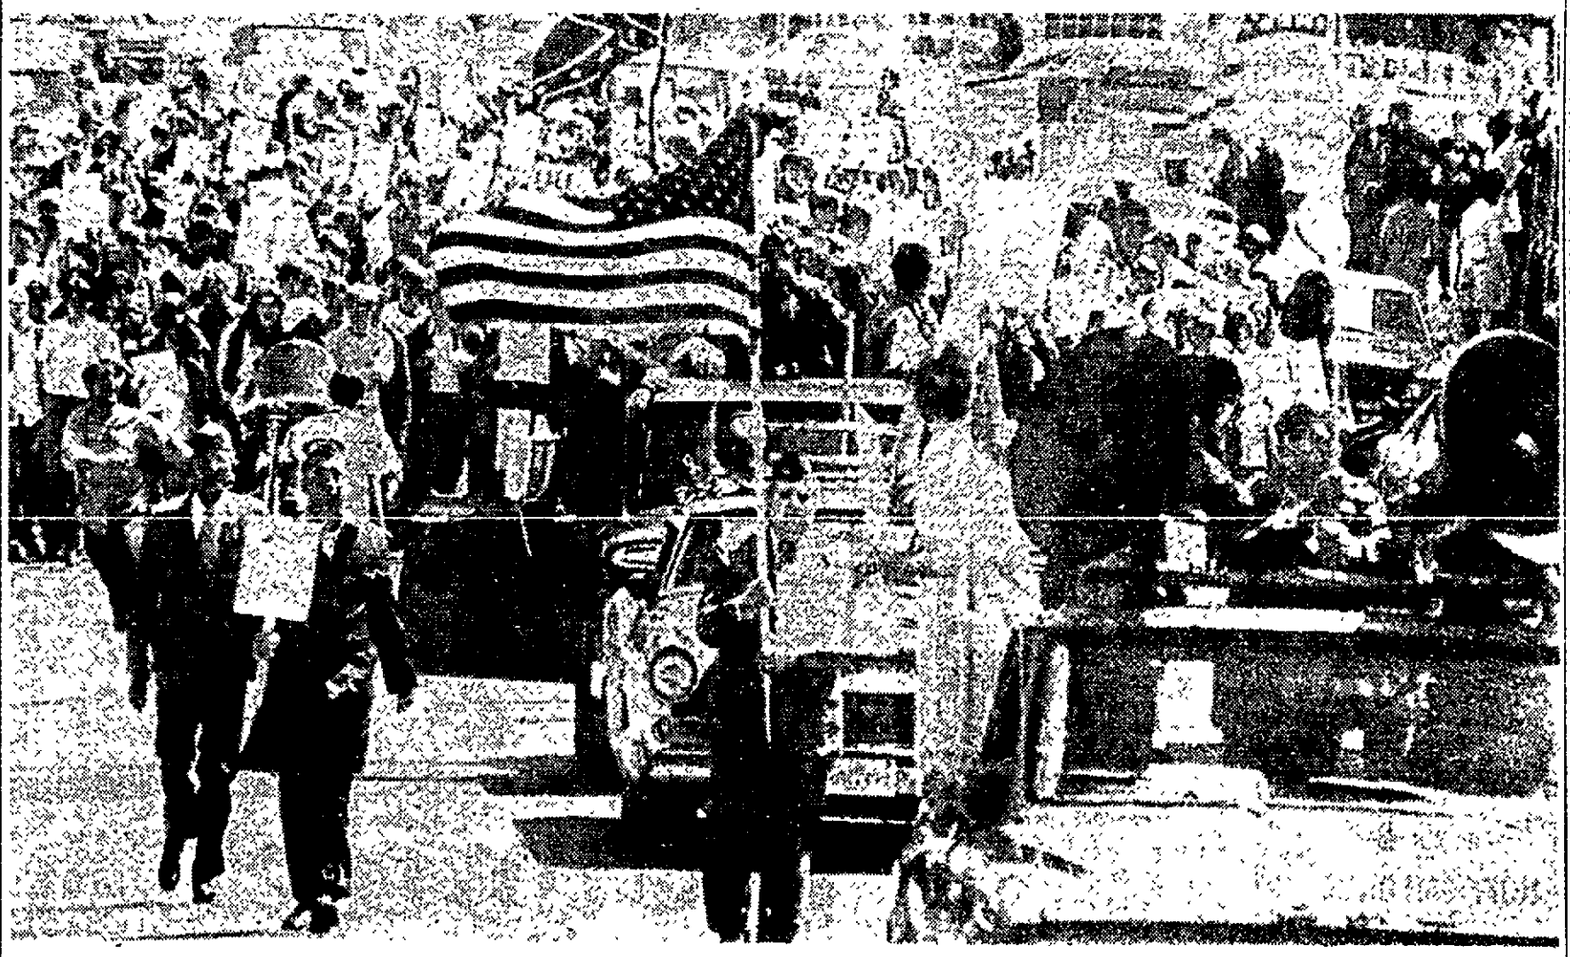
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Display windows in a number of State Street stores were shattered by vandals late Wednesday as young persons marched home from an antiwar speech.

The throng, estimated at 200 persons, dispersed as police cars closed in. The marchers had walked several blocks from the University of Wisconsin, through the main business district, and were near the state Capitol when the crowd scattered.

Officials said the marchers represented about half the audience that had heard a speech by David Dellinger, a defendant in the Chicago 7 conspiracy trial.

Windows in approximately eight business establishments were broken, police said.

As authorities arrived, many of the marchers slipped away into the darkness of the Mifflin Street neighborhood, a student-hippie district where police arrested 17 persons during a weekend block party that ended in a wave of vandalism.



Some 350 Persons march through downtown Huntsville, Ala., Wednesday in support of Lt. William Calley, convicted of premeditated murder in connection with the deaths of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968. The march and rally for Calley were organized by a 23-year-old Navy veteran. Local Veterans of Foreign Wars officials spoke at the rally. Calley's life sentence automatically will be appealed, but President Nixon has announced he will make the final decision in the case. Frank Smith Named Again At Fremont

Former President Wins Write-in Vote For Another Term

FREMONT — Former Village President Frank Smith, who served for about 20 years before 1965, was elected for a new term that post as a write-in candidate Tuesday.

He received 119 votes to defeat Harold Abraham, another write-in candidate who got 78 votes, and Herbert Rickmann Jr. whose name was on the ballot and who received 56 votes.

Abraham, a trustee with one more year remaining on his term, has been acting president since Thomas Pitt resigned Nov. 9 because of ill health.

Abraham had been nominated at the caucus but withdrew and later circulated nomination papers which the village was not able to accept.

One new trustee was also elected. He is Milton Steinke, who got 173 votes. Re-elected were Melvin Maierhafer for a third term, with 215 votes, and Walter Warnke for a fourth term with 168 votes.

Steinke replaces Dr. Walter Neuschafer, who failed to win nomination at the caucus. He had served three terms.

Oakley S. Davidson Jr. and Bobby Lee Jones received 61 and 66 votes, respectively in the race for trustee.

The office of clerk and treasurer is not officially combined. Incumbent clerk Ronald Abbott was reseated with 150 votes over Mrs. Colleen Stibs' 94 votes.

Abbott also was re-elected as treasurer with 157 votes to Mrs. Stibs' 80 votes.

New Trustee Picked Tuesday At Stockbridge

STOCKBRIDGE — The village voters picked Paul Karls as trustee for the only new member of the village board in Tuesday's election.

He had been an unsuccessful candidate on two previous occasions.

Incumbents Norbert Gilles Jr., and Donald Ortlieb were returned to trustee posts.

Karls received 52, Gilles 79 and Ortlieb 71.

Incumbent trustee Mark Keuler polled 45 votes, losing out in the balloting. Two other trustee candidates, Ted Sell and Norman Dohr, received 41 and 36 votes, respectively, in losing tries.

Village president George Hostettler received 103 votes to gain uncontested re-election. He has served as president for 12 years.

Clerk-treasurer Carl Reichwald polled 106 votes and assessor Clifford Mayer 85 votes for uncontested re-election.

Hafferman Picked as President at Iola

IOLA — Donald Hafferman, former trustee, received 122 votes in his election as president.

Three new trustees were also elected. George Kriewaldt with 88 votes, Elmore Dkowen with 90, and Homer Lien with 119, defeated incumbents Howard Bestul and Richard G. Anderson, who had 76 and 80 votes, respectively.

The office of clerk and treasurer were combined for the first time this year and incumbent clerk Charles D. Hartvig was elected with 150 votes.

New President

Shiocton's Carpenter Tops Village Write-in

SHIOCTON — Voters picked John Carpenter over Lewis Tackman, 108-82, Tuesday for village president.

Both ran as write-in candidates after Percy Braatz, who already had filed nomination papers, resigned and withdrew shortly before the election during a village dispute over flood-plain zoning.

Braatz withdrew after the ballots had been printed. He received 29 votes Tuesday.

Other village officials, all unopposed incumbents, returned to office were:

Trustees Warren Andrews, 200; Harold McGlinn, 174, and Clinton Tackman, 182; Wallace Schoepke, municipal justice, 210; Earl Kuether, clerk, 215; Norman Knorr, treasurer, 212, and Frank Morgan assessor, 195.

Four Unopposed Incumbents Win In Chilton Vote

CHILTON — In one of the lightest votes in recent history, four unopposed incumbent aldermen were re-elected Tuesday.

Only 82 votes were cast in the city's four wards.

Robert Larson, First Ward, won his first full term with 19 votes. Larson was appointed last fall when veteran councilman Emil Jodar moved from the ward.

Others were:

Second Ward, Dr. Hans Kalinka, 25 votes, third term; Third Ward, Donald Parsons, 20 votes, fourth term, and Fourth Ward, Arnold Weller 15 votes, sixth term.

2 Picked for School Board At Waupaca

WAUPACA — An incumbent and a newcomer were elected from a five-candidate slate for two board of education posts in Tuesday's election.

Incumbent Laurie Anderson received 1,318 votes and was the top vote-getter in the 10 precincts. Running next was Jack Brueckner, who got 1,090 votes and will replace Otto Rusch Jr. Rusch decided not to run for re-election.

Others in the voting were Anar Ohlin, with 573 votes; Douglass Thompson, 434, and Walter G. Kolonick Jr., 340.

Both winners dominated vote-getting in all precincts.

The district includes the city and the towns of Dayton, Farmington, Lind, Waupaca and portions of Belmont, Lanark, St. Lawrence, Scandinavia and Saxeville.

Hilbert Keeps President by Write-in Vote

HILBERT — Although there were no candidates for offices of president and assessor in the village, the present office holders received the majority write-in vote in Tuesday's election.

The president, Orval Manz, received 150 votes. He will accept the positon for another term. Vernon Schomburg, who had served 28 years as trustee until defeated last year, made a successful comeback by polling 141 votes.

Incumbent trustees Clarence Hemauer, and Ralph Kossarnus, were returned to office polling 187 and 189. Math Baer polled 90 votes in a write-in campaign.

Present assessor, Joseph Anceier, received 79 write-in votes. Howard Sielaff received 21 write-in votes for the same position.

There were 330 votes cast in the village.

Unopposed was Ald. Waldemar Johnson, 2nd, who also won a two-year term with 90 votes. Edward J. Spanbauer was elected in the 2nd Ward to a one-year term by 78 votes, finishing the unexpired term of Roman Jungers II who resigned.

The biggest battle was in the 5th Ward, the city's largest, where three candidates fought for the post left vacant by Ald. Stanley Salter who chose not to run. The winner was Elmer B. Feltz, with 198 votes. Others receiving votes were James W. Boyer, 125 votes, and Mervil H. Knutson, 48 votes.

The 4th Ward's new alderman who won most handily was Dennis L. Schultz. He defeated Raymond H. Manteufel, 173 to 40.

EMBARRASS — Three trustees elected for two-year terms in Tuesday's election were incumbent Ed Krings, 94 votes; Herman Ehlert, 80; and Myron Radtke, 72 votes who defeated incumbent Wallace Anton, 57 votes; and Darrell Polvin, 48 votes.

The third trustee whose term expired, Gilbert Kriewaldt, was not a candidate for re-election.

Re-elected without opposition were Ervin Zimdarf, president, 104 votes; Robert Olson, clerk, 116; Martha Krubsack, treasurer, 114; Henry Krubasack, assessor, 107; and Ken Zuleger, constable, 112.

UW Will Try Co-educational Dorms Next Year

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An experiment in co-educational housing in a University of Wisconsin dormitory next year has been approved by the University Faculty Senate.

The faculty okay came on an overwhelming vote Monday with no debate.

The measure will be presented later this month to the Board of Regents which must give its approval. Parental approval for students under 21 would be required for residence in the experimental unit.

Men and women would live on the same floor, but in separate rooms. Male and female housefellows would supervise the unit.

Low occupancy rates have put UW dormitories in the red in recent years.

Non-Smokers Will Get Auto Insurance Break

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Farmers Insurance Exchange, a member of the Farmers Insurance Group, announced it will offer a special 10 per cent discount on auto insurance to non-smokers.

The firm said Monday a study showed non-smokers have significantly lower accident frequency rate than smokers. The company also was a pioneer in offering lower life insurance rates to non-smokers.

The new discount will apply to bodily injury, property damage, medical and collision coverages.

Mills Goes Partisan Over Revenue Sharing

Ways and Means Chairman Joins With Democrats in Upsetting Nixon Proposal

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The remarkable closed-door Capitol Hill luncheon of the Democratic party's Washington hierachy two weeks ago pointed up the crucial political fact that, despite his skimpy welfare reform bill, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills has not abandoned efforts to shape alternatives to President Nixon's revenue-sharing.

Evans

Far from it. The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee dominated the luncheon with Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien and congressional leaders by spinning out a series of revenue-sharing alternatives. These ranged far beyond the jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee.

Indeed, the luncheon in Speaker Carl Albert's dining room raised possibilities transcending Mr. Nixon's revenue-sharing. It raised the possibility of the party's national committee and congressional leadership collaborating on issues with a Republican in the White House. In an even deeper break with precedent, it portrayed Wilbur Mills as partisan Democrat for the first time in his 22 congressional years.

Friend of O'Brien

It was Mills who worked out the luncheon. On excellent terms with O'Brien since his days as President Kennedy's chief lobbyist, Mills told the national chairman it was high time to breach the traditional gap between Capitol Hill and the national committee.

The meeting came at a time of intense disappointment by Democrats that Mills's welfare reform bill, tentatively approved by Ways and Means, had not, as Mills hinted for weeks, picked up the state share of all welfare costs. Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, house majority leader, did not hide his chagrin in conversations with colleagues. Presidential aides exulted that revenue-sharing now had a new lease on life.

What the chairman's critics were saying was that here was the old Wilbur Mills. Facing presidential opposition and uncertainty in the House, he trimmed. In fact, just such considerations were at work in his drafting of a generally conservative welfare reform most pleasing to the administration.

But at the Albert luncheon, Mills emphasized he has certainly not given up his attempt to shape a politically viable alternative to revenue-sharing and was now looking toward a three-step program:

No. 1: The welfare reform bill, which even in its tentative version does provide some extra Federal help (particularly to Southern states) for aid to dependent children and a complete federal takeover of the uncontroversial aid to the blind, aged, and disabled. The overall price tag is about $2 billion.

No. 2: Greatly stepped up appropriations for federal aid to education, thereby relieving intense pressures on local school districts. As a start, Congress could make up the roughly $2 billion difference between school aid funds authorized but not appropriated.

Medicaid Program

No. 3: Substantial federal help to states on the runaway program of Medicaid to the medically indigent. This could yet be added to the welfare reform bill but will probably be attached to the health insurance bill to be drafted in the Mills committee this year. This could provide the states with another two to three billion dollars.

Typically, Mills did not lay out a closed-end program. He stressed that his committee's hearings on Nixon revenue-sharing would deeply probe alternatives. He added that none of his program did all that much for the grave financial plight of the big cities, which need special help. There was some talk of interest-free loans to city hall.

However much legislation this finally produces, the sight of Democratic grandees of Capitol Hill trying to share in the making of party policy was rare indeed. Rep. George Mahon of Texas, who as the conservative chairman of the appropriation committee has seldom flashed his Democratic credentials, actively engaged in the conversation (particularly regarding school appropriations).

Even Sen. Mike Mansfield, the mild-mannered Montanan who in 10 years as Senate majority leader has come to look upon himself as a non-party institution, showed sparks of partisanship.

But most important was Mills. Contrary to published reports, he is realist enough to know that his chances for a vice presidential nomination are miniscule. What is significant to his party and bad news for Mr. Nixon is that, this late in his career, he is emerging as Democrat Mills.

Nixon Again Speeds Pull-Out

North Vietnamese to sustain major offensives in South Vietnam than were the operations in Cambodia 10 months ago."

Reaction Predictable

Capitol Hill reaction was predictable. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott praised the announcement. "President Nixon has said he will end our involvement in South Vietnam," the Pennsylvania senator said. "and he is doing it."

Pointing to the politically charged nature of the troop withdrawal issue, Sen. Robert Dole, who also serves as Republican National chairman, said the announcement "has put the monkey right back where it belongs—on the backs of those politically motivated Democrats who would rather be president than right."

Muskie's criticism was typical of presidential opponents. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said "The people of Southeast Asia can no longer bear this war and neither can the people of the United States."

Hughes Displeased

Calling the speech "disappointing in the extreme," Iowa Democratic Sen. Harold Hughes said Nixon "has chosen to continue those same policies which 73 per cent of the American people have already said they reject."

This was the seventh troop withdrawal announcement made by Nixon since he set in motion U.S. disengagement from the war in June 1969.

It comes about three weeks before the May 1 date when American troops are due to reach the 284,000 mark. As of last week, the total stood at 301,900 and Pentagon officials have predicted the target will be hit before May 1.

White House officials said the President in effect shortened the next pullout period when he raised the average by about 1,800 men a month.

Infiltration Levels

As a result, they said, the administration will be able to take a look at enemy infiltration levels and other activity in November, when the new dry season sets in, and judge what threat may be faced by the shrunken U.S. forces still in the country next year.

Then, presumably, Nixon will determine whether to speed the withdrawal or keep it at the new rate beyond December. A slowdown seems unlikely.

In his TV speech Wednesday night, Nixon alluded indirectly to the My Lai massacre, saying that what he called "isolated acts of cruelty" should not rub off on the 2½ million "fine young Americans" who have served in Vietnam.

"The atrocity charges in individual cases should not and cannot be allowed to reflect on their courage and their self-sacrifice," Nixon said.

Emotional Note

Nixon spoke for 20 minutes, ending the address on an emotional note that had not been included in the prepared text provided newsmen.

Recalling a White House ceremony several weeks ago in which Medals of Honor were presented posthumously to the families of soldiers killed in action, the President told of giving the decoration to Mrs. Karl Taylor, whose Marine husband died while charging an enemy machine gun.

"After I presented her the medal," Nixon said, "I shook hands with their two children, Karl Jr.—he was 8 years old—and Kevin, who was 4. As I was about to move to the next recipient, Kevin suddenly stood at attention and saluted. I found it rather difficult to get my thoughts together for the next presentation.

"My fellow Americans," Nixon went on, "I want to end this war in a way that is worthy of the sacrifice of Karl Taylor, and I think he would want me to end it in a way that would increase the chances that Kevin and Karl, and all those children like them here and around the world, could grow up in a world where none of them will have to die, in a way that would increase the chance of America to have what it has not had in this century—a full generation of peace."

7 Leaders of Black P Stone Gang Arrested

23 Charged With Taking Money From Job Training Grant

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven top leaders of the Black P Stone Nation street gang have been arrested following the federal grand jury indictments of 23 gang chieftans on charges of illegally taking money from a federal job-training grant for South Side ghetto youths.

Nine of those indicted already were being held in jail on various other charges. FBI agents and police were seeking the remaing seven members.

Bonds totaling $116,500 were set Wednesday for six of those arrested. The seventh failed to appear at the bond hearing.

The 132-count indictment, prepared by the Justice Department, charged the black street gang members with conspiracy to commit fraud, conspiracy to file false statements and obtaining money by fraud from a $927,341 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity to The Woodlawn Organization (TWO) on the city's South Side.

The indictments were returned Tuesday but suppressed until Wednesday to allow FBI and police officials to arrest those charged.

The grand jury action was another setback to gang leadership, whose ranks have been thinned through prison sentences, pending trials and police pressure.

The indictment charged that the gang leaders systematically stole funds from the program by claiming salaries between $3,840 and $6,500 a year for teaching duties they did not perform.

Sham Classes

Between June 2, 1967, and July 13, 1968, the indictment charges, "the only classes held were sham classes to convince OEO and TWO that classes were being held."

The indictment also charged the leaders with forging names of persons purporting to be trainees on class attendance sheets and salary checks.

The defendants also divided the $45 and $48 weekly trainee checks among themselves and demanded and received kickbacks from other gang members, the indictment charged.

The Black P Stone Nation is a federation of black street gangs on the South Side. Leader Jeff Fort, 24, was one of the 23 named in the indictment. He already was in Cook County Jail awaiting trail on attempted murder charges.

Three of those indicted, including the gang's reputed No. 2 man, Charles Edward Bey, 26, were among seven P Stone Nation members charged last August in the fatal shooting of policeman James A. Alfano. All seven were found innocent of the charges last January.

The grand jury investigation stemmed from 1968 Senate subcommittee hearings into the misuse of the federal grant to TWO. The subcommittee was chaired by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

Rape Counts Reduced for State Man

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) — County Judge Harold Mueller Wednesday dismissed two charges of attempted rape against John J. Watson, 49, of Milwaukee.

Instead, Watson was charged with two counts of endangering the lives of others by conduct regardless of life. Acting as his own attorney, Watson pleaded guilty to the new charges. He had previously pleaded guilty to one count of attempted rape.

Judge Mueller convicted Watson on all three counts and sentenced him to undergo a presentence social, physical and mental examination at the Waupun State Prison. Watson is to be returned to Manitowoc for sentencing probably in 60 days.

The three girls, all 19 and University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee students, testified that Watson picked them up in his car the afternoon of March 19 in Milwaukee and drove them to the Two Rivers area.

There, they said, he threatened them with a knife and ordered them to disrobe. They said as he attempted to rape one of the girls, she grabbed his knife and all three fled nude to a nearby home.

His Salute Was Returned

AVELLA, Pa. (AP) — Four-year-old Kevin Taylor stood ramrod straight in his cowboy and Indian pajamas and snapped the same crisp salute he used to touch the heart of the President of the United States.

Later, in the living room of his grandparents' home, he flashed an apple-cheeked grin and seemed at ease for a lad who had just been thrust into the national spotlight.

"I saluted President Nixon and he saluted me too," Kevin said matter-of-factly in recounting the story Nixon told a few hours earlier Wednesday night in a television-radio address. "I did it when we went to the White House."

That was last February when the President posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor to Kevin's father, Marine S. Sgt. Karl Taylor, killed Dec. 8, 1968, in South Vietnam while charging a machine-gun bunker in an attempt to rescue wounded comrades.

Nixon had just given the medal to Kevin's mother, Shirley Taylor, when the youngster came to attention and saluted.

"I found it rather difficult to get my thoughts together for the next presentation," Nixon said Tuesday night.

As the President spoke, Kevin sat watching the TV set in the living room of his grandparents' home where he, his mother and an older brother and sister live.

"He looked at President Nixon and said 'I know him, mom,'" Mrs. Taylor said.

Posing later for a photographer, Kevin pointed to the picture of a square jawed Marine. "That's my daddy," he said.

Holding in both hands a frame containing the Medal of Honor, he explained, "President Nixon gave this to me. It's my dad's."

The salute during the award ceremony caught Mrs. Taylor by surprise.

"He learned it from his older brother Skipper (Karl Jr.)" she said.

"But I never dreamed he would do it to the President."

Karl Jr., 7 and Kevin still have a lot of growing up to do in this southwest Pennsylvania town. But both, as sons of a soldier killed in action, are entitled to enter service academies when they come of age.

"Nothing would make me prouder than for them to go to Annapolis and become officers," said Mrs. Taylor. "This is something that Karl really wanted."

Vietnamese Discotheque Blasted by Terrorists; One GI Dies

SAIGON (AP) — An explosion wrecked a popular discotheque crowded with U.S. soldiers and Vietnamese on the Saigon waterfront tonight, killing at least two and injuring about 40.

It was the first major terrorist incident directed against Americans in the capital since last December.

U.S. authorities said the dead included one American soldier and a Vietnamese woman.

Most of them wounded were Americans, authorities said. They were treated at two U.S. military hospitals in Saigon.

The discotheque is located next to the South Vietnamese navy headquarters.

Murder of Hindus Recounted By American Who Escaped

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Americans who fled from Dacca says Pakistani troops are systematically mowing down the Hindus in the capital of East Pakistan in the belief that they were behind the independence Rahman's Awami League.

One man said bodies were piled up in the narrow streets in Hindu sections of Dacca and a in pieces" and demolished.

"I saw a Moslem name in Urdu and English on every door," said the man, who declined to give his name for fear of reprisals against Americans remaining in Dacca.

"I assumed they were making claims on houses. I had often gone to the bazaar and had never seen a Moslem there."

Both East and West Pakistan are predominantly Moslem, although most people in the east are Bengalis while those in the west are of other tribes. But about 10 million of the 70 million Bengalis in the east are Hindus.

The American said he visited two small Hindu quarters near the Dacca race track.

"Houses were still aflame and bodies were stacked at grotesque angles," he said. "Estimates of the dead were from 80 to 200. There were two people left, a woman and a man, crying.

Towns Loyal

Other evacuees reported that towns in the countryside were still loyal to Bangla Desh—or Bengali nation—the independence movement led by Sheik Mujib. They also told of growing fear among the Pakistani army.

"The plane which left Dacca before ours was packed with Pakistan army dependents," said a woman whose husband remained behind to work in Dacca.

About 160 more Americans flew out of Dacca early today to end a three-day airlift of 4 0 Americans, mostly wives and children from the eastern capital. They described Dacca, which had a population of nearly a million, as a "dead city."

A number of Americans said they were angry at airlift arrangements under which they flew 6½ hours to Karachi on Pakistan International Airlines insead of being permitted to use American military aircraft from Thailand to fly to Bangkok two hours away.

U.S. Embassy sources said the Pakistani government refused to let American military planes land at Dacca and offered priority use of the Pakistani airline as a "reasonable alternative."

Americans Lost 88 Last Week

SAIGON (AP) — Eighty-eight Americans were killed in combat in Vietnam last week, the highest weekly toll in more than nine months, the U.S. Command reported today.

More than a third of the losses occurred in the North Vietnamese attack on Fire Base Mary Ann early March 28. The North Vietnamese killed 33 Americans and wounded 76 in that attack.

Last week's toll was 30 more than the previous week and was the highest figure since the week of June 21-27, 1970, when 104 Americans died in battle.

Despite the high toll last week, the U.S. Command issued a tabulation supporting President Nixon's statement in his broadcast Wednesday night that U.S. casualties in the first three months of this year were one fifth of those in the first three months of 1969.

The tabulation showed 580 Americans killed and 3,687 wounded in the first quarter of 1971, compared with 3,098 killed and 18,311 wounded two years before.

The U.S. Command reported 347 American servicemen wounded last week, a considerable drop from the 542 reported the week before. But the command had said the earlier summary included some casualties from previous weeks that had not been tabulated.

The summary today raised the number of Americans reported killed in action in the war 44,876 and the number wounded to 297,258.

U.S. officials also reported 22 American servicemen died last week from such nonhostile causes as accidents and illness, raising the total in this category to 9,408.

Tuesday's Election Results

The narrow margin by which Al Woehler was elected Outagamie County's first executive can be ascribed to the fact that voters had a choice between two excellent candidates for the position and that the campaign was extremely hard fought.

It was an important decision for the future of Outagamie County, and for the future of county government in Wisconsin for that matter. And the slim majority which put Mr. Woehler into office should encourage him to devote the utmost of his abilities to the job before he faces re-election.

Mr. Woehler is well qualified by experience for the responsibilities which the statute adopted two years ago assign to the position as the executive head of county government. His performance therefore will be judged on how positively he asserts those responsibilities.

There's an interesting contrast to the election of an executive in Outagamie County and a similar election in Brown County Tuesday. In the latter case the candidate with the most experience in county government, Board Chairman Lester Hansen, lost out to a county political office holder, Clerk of Courts Donald Holloway. Holloway, like James Long of Appleton, has been a successful Republican office-seeker.

Rather surprising were the margins by which referendums calling for the expenditure of additional tax monies were adopted in the city of Appleton for the bus subsidy, and in Brown County for a bond issue to finance a new Mason Street bridge in Green Bay.

Generally it is assumed that any referendum asking people to approve additional government expenditures faces an uphill battle. But these two results Tuesday also would indicate that voters will respond favorably if a thorough educational campaign is conducted on the merits of such proposals. And in this regard we recall the substantial margins by which bonding for bridge construction was approved in the city and town of Menasha last November.

U.S. Arms Kill Pakistanis

The matter of our helping foreign nations with military aid has been a consistently controversial matter. Are we helping other nations to repel outside aggressors or merely to maintain in power dictatorial regimes?

The question has arisen again in regard to the fight between East and West Pakistan.

According to a British correspondent in Dacca before all newsmen were ejected, the army of Pakistan, which means West Pakistan, moved in with tanks and mortar fire and killed, according to his estimate some 7,000 civilians in East Pakistan. The weapons used were part of the $2 billions worth of military aid the United States has given or loaned to Pakistan since that nation became independent of Great Britain.

So what is the responsibility of the United States in this fracas? Obviously there are no outside agressive forces against East Pakistan, unless one considers those of West Pakistan exactly that. Should this be a united nation, a thousand miles apart and should United States military equipment be deciding the issue?

Once again we would like to have more information on how decisions are made to send military equipment to the variety of nations, some of them definitely leaning away from democratic concepts, and who determines them. The slaughter in East Pakistan has been brutal, perhaps no more so than in parts of Indochina. But must we continue to contribute or even lead the way in providing the weapons of slaughter?

The Future of the Menominees

The vote by the Menominee Indians for or against the continuation of the voting trust was anything but conclusive. Of the votes counted, the opposition led by DRUMS (Determination for Rights and Unity of Menominee Shareholders) won out, but of all the votes available, DRUMS did not have a majority. The matter will now go to court to determine whether the First Wisconsin Trust Company of Milwaukee can or should have the right to vote the shares of minor children and incompetents. The First Wisconsin voted those shares in favor of continuing the trust.

The major issue, but not the only one, has been the decision of Menominee Enterprises to develop and sell land at Legend Lake to outsiders. The decision was made in order to raise the tax base of the area and financially speaking it was undoubtedly a wise one. Menominee County is not a wealthy one and the money to be raised in the future from the sale of lumber will dwindle. The only other major source of income is the lease of part of the Wolf River to the state of Wisconsin.

But there has been developing among Americans Indians, as among other nonwhites, pressure toward maintaining their own traditions and cultures rather than being assimilated by whites, and even antagonism toward integration in schools and other public facilities. There is a new pride growing among the Indian people in that they understand more the needs of ecology than do the whites who have exploited and plundered. There is a new defiance of reservation regulations, new claims to territory, new demands for reparations. And generally the courts have agreed to the legal actions. Moreover, there is some sense of shame among whites over that manifest destiny of the 19th Century, the massacres such as at Wounded Knee which paralleled My Lai, the breaking of treaties matching all those that the Russians have ended. There is also the realization that the whites can learn something from the Indians whom they have often scorned over the last couple of centuries.

The Menominee Reservation status was ended arbitrarily, practically by one man, Senator Arthur Watkins, who made only a casual stop in the area. Menominee Enterprises was set up in 1961 to take over as the tribal organization was dissolved. But those who support DRUMS are not so sure the tribe should have been dismantled. The changing attitude among Indians as to their status is making the difference.

The future of Indian groups throughout the country is quite likely to become increasingly concerned with emphasis upon maintaining their identity as Indians and as members of a particular tribe.

GOOD GUYS AT HEART

Mao's Great Revolution

It's All Over Now, and Army Is Really Running Red China

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

Despite the American obsession with events in Indochina, it is probable that a historian writing in, say, 1990 will look back at the 1960s with a very different Asian perspective. Three events will likely dominate his canvas: 1) the destruction of the myth that India was a great power, a job the Chinese Communists brilliantly accomplished in 1962; 2) the transformation of Indonesia from an aggressive proto-Communist regime into an anti-Communist, neutral state; and, 3) the demolition of the centralized Communist state on mainland China known as Mao's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution.

It began with an article by a theater critic in a Shanghai newspaper on Nov. 10, 1965. For the next three years, as the Red Guards mobilized, marched, screamed, fought and agitated, the Chinese People's Republic seemed to outside observers more and more to resemble a lunatic asylum seized by the inmates. One million (that is, 1,000,000) Red Guards demonstrated day and night around the Soviety Embassy. The Russians had taken precautions, replacing their diplomats with hard-eyed KGB types, but even secret policemen have their noise thresholds, and it must have been sheer hell.

Made No Sense

Those who were trying to make sense out of events had a hard time. Every morning the White House specialists went over all the latest intelligence material, but it was extremely difficult to sort out the signals from the static. The only reporters in Peking were Japanese, who spent their time rushing around reading the "Big Character" posters that seemed to be the main communications devices. Chinese radio stations were mostly unhelpful — indeed, in crucial areas, some of them were off the air for months.

The best sources were the "China Watchers," perched precariously in Hong Kong, who spent their time talking to refugees, reading papers that came over the border, and, seemingly at times, visiting astrologers. The United States Consulate had a particularly skilled staff, though the burden was overwhelming. Mao was up! Mao was down! Mao was dead! Mao was alive! The Red Guards had taken control in Tibet . . . the Army in Tibet had suppressed the Red Guards. So it went, month in, month out.

Throughout this turmoil three men seemed able to make sensible patterns out of the chaotic pieces. Ed Rice, our consul general in Hong Kong, Paul Kreisberg, a brilliant China expert in the State Department, and Robert S. Elegant, Hong Kong bureau chief of the Los Angeles Times. Neither Rice nor Kreisberg is in a position to go public, but now fortunately Elegant has brought out a masterful analysis of Red China's travail. "Mao's Great Revolution" (World) may be replaced by more detailed, inch by inch, scholarly studies as more facts leak out. But I doubt if it will ever be matched as a synoptic tour de force.

Tore Country Apart

Elegant begins with Mao's disillusionment in the late 50s and with his paranoidal conviction that only the existence of sinister, traitorous forces within the regime could account for the appalling economic conditions that existed. A classic megalomaniac, the aged chairman set his course towards "instant" Communism, a course that required the elimination of the reactionary forces blocking progress, notably the Communist Party hierarchy. The youth became the chosen instruments of his revenge and for three years they tore the country apart.

This anarchy obviously could not last forever, but there remained only one agency in the country that could try to put the pieces back together: the Army. Now it is clear that Mao is a museum piece and the People's Liberation Army is running the country. To anyone who had read Elegant's superb book, this would come as no surprise. He clearly indicates that today we are dealing with military Communism in China, and he suggests this is a far more hopeful development than one might initially surmise.

Wisconsin Report

Image of Democrats In State Government Is Being Redefined

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The election of the Democrats to power in Wisconsin last fall may turn out to be as important for what it will do in forcing a revision of traditional assumptions about the posture and purpose of the party as in true changes in the direction and policy of the state government now in their hands.

The image of the Democrats has been one of big government, more spending, more intervention of public authority in private affairs, more public services, tighter regulation and higher taxation to pay for benefits to a broader proportion of the populace.

The Republican image has been one of fiscal caution, of reluctant taxation, emphasis upon economical administration, resistance to the extension of government responsibility and regulatory authority except for clearly demonstrable need.

Pressure Groups Unhappy

Now the state has an administration which is preaching economy to the point of what it calls "austerity." Spending pressure groups have reacted in a state of mind somewhere between astonishment and grief. Educators, state employe unions, veterans' organizations and others are growling about denial of budget aspirations and demands. Democratic administration spokesmen are noting the contrast between their careful taxing program and the boosts in tax liability imposed upon the state by the last Republican regime.

In the executive suites of Van Hise Hall at the University of Wisconsin, some of the more senior retainers may remember what their elders in turn were saying a generation or more ago — that the conservative Republican regimes on the whole tended to be more considerate of UW spending desires than the "liberal" La Follette party.

If there had been any doubt about changing perspective from the top of the state government establishment, it should have been eliminated with the publicity recently about a Democratic administration task force report which labored the familiar argument that government is growing far more rapidly in Wisconsin than is the economic base upon which it rests.

Comparisons Made Earlier

The leaked commentary of Prof. Jon Udell (who may get some frowns from faculty colleagues for his pains) of the University of Wisconsin was old hat. Precisely such comparisons had been made months earlier — no doubt upon the same research materials — in a chapter of the "Mission 70" document of the State Department of Local Affairs and Development when Republican Gov. Knowles was presiding in the executive department.

"Government has been Wisconsin's fastest growing employer," said the Udell analysis, leaving no doubt of the conviction that a high tax liability resulting has been a depressing economic factor and that the time has come for a change of course.

When that conclusion was published by the Knowles administration, it was with no special emphasis or special response, perhaps because of the implied criticism of the fact that the decade of unprecedented expansion of the government "business" in Wisconsin and its parallel climb in tax liability occurred during a decade mostly represented by Republicans in Wisconsin political control.

Story Ignored Earlier

Perhaps reporters and editors who exploited the "Udell story" last week while ignoring it in the earlier round reflected reaction to the unorthodox turn of events. Such a document representing a Democratic state administration, however obliquely, is truly news, in the sense that novelty represents news.

But events of significance also make news for the sophisticated reader and voter. It may not yet be wholly believable, but the evidence is nevertheless accumulating. The assumptions about what ingredients compose a liberal and distinguish the conservative in Wisconsin politics probably must be modified. The old and convenient test of attitudes on taxation and spending are no longer to be trusted.

An overly-polite policeman who gives you a traffic ticket is more infuriating than a rude one, for he gives the impression that he is sadistically enjoying your discomfiture beneath his irreproachable mask of courtesy.

If you want to be a Pollyanna these days, you have to be cynical at the same time — like reflecting on how much worse the population explosion would be if it weren't for the automobile fatalities.

The unyieldingness of our convictions was neatly punctured by Bernard Berenson, when he pointed out: "What people call their 'consistency' requires them to be as ignorant today as they were a year ago."

Very few pretty women are in the vanguard of the "Liberation" movement, for pretty women know that "equality" would be a reduction in their status.

A man who imagines that because he runs his business well, he could run the government equally well on similar lines, is as deluded as the bachelor who imagines that he will control his life in the same way after he has a wife and children; in both cases, the irrational and emotive elements far outweigh all others.

Speaking of government, when it was learned that many states have appointed some of the worst polluters to their "anti-pollution" commissions on the grounds that they knew the field, I was reminded of Harry Truman's shrewd warning when he was President: "You don't set a fox to watching the chickens just because he has a lot of experience in the hen house."

The Education of Leonid Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Neither threats, appeals to patriotism nor money succeeded in spurring the Soviet worker to feats of sustained production.

Now the Soviet leaders are promising him more to spend his money on, and Western observers are calling this "The Education of Leonid I. Brezhnev."

Whether or not he conceived the idea, Brezhnev, as general secretary of the Communist party, is taking credit for the party's new campaign to "saturate the market with consumer goods."

The leadership clearly hopes that the availability of more consumer items will prompt the worker to work harder and better.

Increased Productivity

The outcome of the new five-year plan for 1971-75 depends on the success of the campaign; increased labor productivity is counted on to provide 10 per cent of the nation's economic growth in the next five years.

Holding out a higher standard of living as an incentive to labor represents a marked change in Brezhnev's thinking.

At a meeting of the party Central Committee in December 1969 he was reported to have demanded a traditional hard-line approach, stressing the need at every level to agitate for harder work, better discipline and a curb on drunkenness.

This didn't work, nor did payment of higher wages for more output.

The worker is not lacking surplus cash. Last year the fastest growing item in the Soviet economy was private savings, which increased from 38.4 billion rubles to 46 billion, a 20 per cent rise.

Brezhnev has recognized that people are not going to work harder for money they can't spend. Until now there has been precious little in the shops worth buying.

Some specialists are wondering how much the situation will have changed by 1975. Though the plan calls for a 48 per cent rate of growth for light industry and 45 per cent for heavy industry, the latter has been predominant for so long that the relative output will hardly change.

If all the targets are fulfilled, heavy industry in 1975 will still account for 62.1 per cent of the national income, instead of 60 per cent, and light industry, from which consumer goods come, will represent 21.1 per cent instead of 20 per cent.

If, as the figures suggest, Brezhnev will be unable to deliver on his promise to saturate the market with consumer goods, the question arises as to why he committed his prestige to the campaign at this time.

Observers offer two possible explanations:

—The Soviet leadership was deeply concerned that the discontent over living standards which touched off the riots in Poland in December could be found in the Soviet Union.

Eventual Goals

—Brezhnev has chosen to identify himself with an issue that cannot fail to be popular with the people and wants to use it to improve his status and power within the collective leadership.

Time of the Cross—4

Darkest Hour Also Brightest

(Editor's note: Something decisive for life happened in the crucifixion, as Christians understand it. Theology refers to it as "redemption," "deliverance," "atonement." It was a stark tragedy, but believers see it as the basis of man's highest hope. The following article, fourth in a five-part Easter series, deals with the legacy it left to men..

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The world's darkest hour also was its brightest. Through the consummate atrocity of history came the greatest gift to man. Out of an exercise of hate flamed the supreme substantiation that in spite of it all, love sustained the universe.

It bared the heart of God.

This is the affirmation that flashed from the brutal scene on the hilltop of the Cross, a symbol of torture, yet as believers see it, the sign of mankind's salvation.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life."

He already was dead when the Roman soldiers checked him, so they did not break his legs, as they did of the two outlaws crucified with him, so as to prevent them from lifting themselves to breathe, thus speeding their deaths.

But just to make sure in Jesus' case, Scripture relates, a legionaire drove a spear through his side. Blood and water poured out, indicating he died of a ruptured heart.

"Through the crucifixion, God in effect says to man 'Though he kill me, yet will I love him'," says theologian J. Robert Nelson. "Nothing could more forcefully demonstrate the assertion that 'God is love.' The moral power of this insight into God's relation to man has been beyond measure in human existence ever since."

"Good" Friday

"Good Friday," Christians call the day it happened, good in the sense that it is regarded as forgivingly welcoming men into divine providence despite their failings.

It is the core of Christian faith, the reason its emblem is the Cross.

Even in a skeptical age, men cannot escape the idea something decisive, cosmic and continuously effective happened there, a turning point for mankind.

The "atonement," it's called, meaning it makes up for men's shortcomings through divine bearing of the painful effects, thereby drawing men together in the movement toward eternity.

Various theories have been advanced as to the profound transaction that took place that day, some of them couched in the thought patterns and imagery of the past, yet all of them reflecting a central theme, namely:

That on the Cross, divine compassion absorbed men's worst depredations, and in the mighty dynamic of love, accepts men anyhow, forgives them and embraces them.

"The Cross is the central manifestation of God's participation in the suffering of the world," writes the late Paul Tillich. But it also is an "actualization," he adds, since anything that "becomes manifest" is an active reality.

"Something happens through a manifestation which has effects and consequences. The guilty conscience looks at the Cross and sees God's atoning act in it and through it, namely, his taking upon himself the destructive consequences of man's estrangement from him."

Takes Its Toll

To illustrate on the human level, whenever anyone cares for another, it takes its toll in the necesity of becoming involved in the other's problems, responding to his needs, sharing his difficulties, weaknesses and pain, even his guilt.

It costs. As believers understand God's reclamation of man, it cost the ultimate—death itself. He entered mankind's deepest travail. It was the "absolute self-giving," says British theologian John Macquarrie.

In a simple way, it's like a banker who wants to give a thief another chance by repaying the stolen money out of his own pocket instead of having the man sent to prison, but it takes something out of the banker.

"The damage that was done is carried by the person who was injured rather than by the person who did the injury," notes Episcopal Bishop Angus Dun. "The person who is right takes the loss."

That, as shown by the Cross, is God's way of dealing with man's guilt.

"It means the world's sorrow and agony are real to God, indeed in one way are more real to him than to us, for only an infinite love can enter comoletely into sympathetic union with all life," says theologian Daniel Day Williams.

At the same time, it doesn't undermine divine justice. Just as in natural physics, every action demands a reaction, so God's justice, which is the structure of genuine love, cannot remove the effects of men's sin without some counter-action, or else his love would be mere flabby sentimentality.

Takes Them Himself

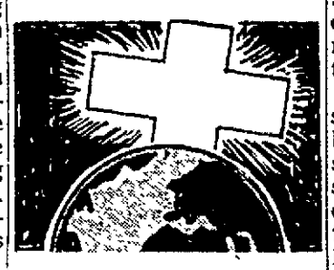
But in the atonement, God does not violate justice by overlooking the depth of human separation and wrong, Tillich says, but takes them on himself by participating in them and transforming them for those who participate with him.

In a sense, although divine resources are considered limitless, the Cross reveals that God, in his love and grant of free will to men, is somehow vulnerable to their perversity, swallowing up the grief and pangs of their wrong doing.

In the classic views of the crucifixion, several interpretations are offered, including:

—The ransom theory: That Jesus, through his death, paid a ransom for man's release from the power of evil. As man, Jesus acted in the name of all human nature, and since he also is divine, his life had such worth that it settled for all human sin. He "gave himself a ransom for all," writes Paul.

—The moral influence theory:



Based largely on subjective factors, this view holds that the Cross set before men a great, permanent example and influence, which draws men to Christ and points them the way to reconciliation with God through self-surrendering work in behalf of others. "And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all men to myself," Jesus said.

—The victory theory: That in the crucifixion, a titanic battle took place between good and evil, in which the satanic powers that enslaved man were crushed. Through trust in Christ, man shares in the victory. "We are more than conquerors through him that loved us," says the epistle to the Romans.

—The substitionary theory: Since man's guilt is so radical he can't rectify himself, God through Christ substitutes himself for man, a vicarious sacrifice, shouldering the punishment for man's sin, thereby expiating it and satisfying the requirements of divine justice. "He is the propitiation for our sins," says John's epistle.

All of these theories, however, are only theological attempts to see the crucifixion from God's side, which in the final analysis, must remain a mystery. Men can see their side, their distortions and sin, but only catch dim hints of the divine processes.

Nevertheless, the various insights seem to supplement one another, and are basically compatible.

Most Christians see the crucifixion not as a mere revealing influence, but as somehow being a real saving act of itself, an act of God's purpose and love for men that specifically benefits them in and of itself.

"It is a realization that costly suffering voluntarily and humbly endured, above all the costly suffering of the righteous, possesess an atoning power, and can be beneficial to others than the sufferer himself," says British theologian John D. Kelly.

He adds the "saving effect" of Jesus' death is extended "potentially if not actually to the entire human race because at a deeper level than their fragmented individuality, all men and women form a unity with one another."

Jesus was like a "rock" in the midst of a whirlpool, says theologian Vernard Eller. A rock "does not resist, does not fight back," yet it absorbs the punishment of the current and "displays a courage, strength and power which in the very truth is capable of conquering the violence of the "whirlpool."

Probably, however, Jesus himself, best put what it all meant when he said: "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Home, Family Council Fights for Survival

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The strife-torn Home and Family Council fought for its life Wednesday in a battle over a proposed budget of $39,500 for the biennium that lasted longer than discussion over the billion-dollar budget of the Department of Health and Social Services.

The council that Gov. Patrick Lucey has proppsed be restricted as a joint legislative study committee rather than the quasi-executive agency it now is, pleaded with the legislature's Joint Finance Committee to permit it to continue operating on the funds it now receives from the sale of marriage licenses that would total about $111,000 for the biennium, rather than the general revenue allocation the governor proposes.

"The financial allotment section of the (budget) bill would reduce the operational funds for the current year from approximately $50,000 to $19,400, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward M. Kinney of Cambridge told the committee. This kind of thinking does not take into account the many things that need to be done and could be done if ample funds are available and wisely used."

Msgr. Kinney told the committee the council plans to expand its work to develop local programs at the grassroots to help reduce the number of failing marriages and broken families in the state. The work at the local level would cost more than the governor's proposal provides, he said.

The governor proposed, however, that the council discontinue its operation of conferences and programs and devote itself entirely to the research function for which it was formed originally. The agency would change from a citizen council with a staff to a legislative committee with a research staff that would consider legislation relating to the home, family, marriage and divorce issues among others.

Msgr. Kinney told the committee that it is the citizen members of the present council that put in the most service to its work, while the legislators on the council rarely attend. "The ones who have made the greatest effort toward council attendance, interest and contribution would be eliminated and those who remain would be the ones who found it so hard to give any of their time," he said.

The council that has been torn by dissention within the group and between the membership and the executive director Nestor Kohut has functioned sporadically in the past year. It has been charged with fiscal mismanagement as the result of its sponsorship of a conference last year that cost nearly as much as its entire annual budget, a large amount of the funds going to a Madison public relations firm that organized the program in the council's behalf.

Back Publicity

Msgr. Kinney denied the council's problems and bitter discussions and charged that the accounts of such trouble were the result of "unfortunate and biased publicity."

Kohut, who has had strained relations with the council that hired him a year ago and has reduced his responsibilities and attempted to cut his pay several times, did not make a presentation to the joint finance committee. His failure to speak was unusual since the executive director of most agencies have appeared in behalf of their budget.

While Kohut did not appear, Mrs. Alice Schmidt a former executive director who was fired by the council more than a year ago, testified before the committee.

She told the committee she was told she was being fired in an effort to make peace for the council, but she said the situation has gotten worse rather than better since her departure. She challenged reports of the council's accomplishments in the past biennium saying "The council has done nothing of significance," in the areas of family planning, divorce, abortion, marriage and other matters that are of particular relevance to its responsibilities.

Important Work

Mrs. Schmidt said that she thought the work for which the council was formed is important. She endorsed the governor's proposal that the agency be tied to the legislature and serve as a research agency.

Judge Clarence Traeger of Dodge County, a member of the council who has encouraged the council to propose a bill that would push Congress to pass a fugitive fathers law that would enlist federal agencies in the attempt to locate and return men who flee alimony and child support payments told the committee many counties of the state would save a considerable amount of money by going after its fugitive fathers. Milwaukee County would save $12 million a year in welfare payments if a judge were delegated the responsibility of handling fugitive fathers.

He said the council's work was particularly important in view of the fact that there are threats on the stability of the home and family from the young who have abandoned traditional moral values.

"It's time you go after the bastard father and sex-crazed mother who bring into the world 27 per cent of the AFDC children," he said. The council, he indicated, is the only agency in the state interested in solving the problem he cited.

Ban Proposed for X-Rated Films at Outdoor Theaters

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — In the interest of promoting "some type of moral decency," the Assembly State Affairs Committee was urged today to endorse a bill banning "X" rated films at outdoor theaters.

Rep. Eugene Dorff, D-Kenosha, said homes are being built at an accelerated rate around outdoor theaters in suburban areas and that children under 18 are being subjected to movies that resemble stag films.

"I saw the film "the Stewardesses recently, and I'm sure that if you have children 9 or 10 years old you would not want them to see it," Dorff told the lawmakers.

Disgusted

A co-sponsor of the bill, Rep. James Lynn, D-West Allis, said he and others were "rather disgusted with our entertainment" and that the public was looking to the legislature "for some guidelines."

Phillip J. Fox of Milwaukee, representing the Wisconsin Association of Theater Owners, said the intent of the bill "is laudable" but that its constitutionality was questionable.

Fox suggested the committee ask Atty. Gen. Robert Warren for an opinion on the proposed legislation because "this is a blanket denial of the ability to show a film.

Dorff said he knew of no opposition to the bill except from "those individuals who are out to make a fast buck."

The committee took no action.

Attempt to Increase Aid to Education Defeated in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing another budget deficit and the threat of a presidential veto, the House has narrowly defeated an attempt to boost federal education aid far beyond President Nixon's requests.

A bill appropriating $4 6 billion for the Office of Education was approved 354 to 7 Wednesday and sent to the Senate where another try to increase spending is expected The figure is $131 million above the President's budget.

A key vote of 191 to 187 defeated an amendment by Rep. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, to add $726 million for a dozen programs. Voting against it were 149 Republicans and 42 Democrats; for it 173 Democrats and 14 Republicans.

Spending Levels

The amendment, which Hathaway said still would leave spending for most education programs far below levels authorized by Congress, was backed by a coalition of education organizations which had recruited teachers and other educators to lobby for it on the Hill.

The coalition, calling itself the Emergency Committee for Full Funding for Education, pushed successfully for big increases vetoed by Nixon the last two years. Congress overrode one veto and compromised on a sizable increase in the other bill.

The measure sent to the Senate provides $167 million more than requested to aid school districts enrolling children of military or other federal government personnel The Appropriations Committee had recommended $137 million

Final Enactments

Opponents of the Hathaway amendment noted the administration anticipates an $11.4-billion budget deficit and that the Nixon veto of an education bill last year delayed final enactment until near the end of the school year.

"It doesn't serve the cause of education to play politics with the education needs of the country," said Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, in arguing against the Hathaway amendment. He voted for the proposed increases last year.

The House retained provisions preventing the federal government from forcing school districts to bus students and requiring withdrawal of federal aid from any student or faculty member involved in campus violence.

Tentative School Accord Reached In La Crosse

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — Mediators announced a tentative agreement was reached today in a contract dispute which had almost caused a walkout by the city's school teachers.

Negotiators concluded a 12-hour bargaining session with a predawn announcement of a settlement on which members of the La Crosse Education Association were then scheduled to vote late this afternoon.

Spokesmen said the agreement contains a minimum starting salary of $7,300 and a number of fringe benefits.

The chief stumbling block in talks had been a union demand that the school board agree to binding arbitration if a teacher wished to challenge the board's refusal to renew a contract.

Teachers voted to strike Monday, then stayed on the job under the shadow of a Circuit Court restraining order as contract talks continued.

Darryl Zanuck Out After Loss Of $77 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl F. Zanuck, the last of the tycoons from Hollywood's golden years, has resigned as chief executive officer of the 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

The announcement Wednesday following a special meeting of the company's board said Zanuck, 68, will retain his title as chairman of the company and concentrate on film production.

The board said that Dennis C. Stanfill, who was elected president March 18, would have responsibility for all phases of corporate activity except film production. Zanuck, a co-founder of 20th Century in 1933, left Hollywood in 1956. He returned in mid-1962 to take control of the company and turned its loss of $39 million that year into a $9 million profit in 1963.

The success continued until 1969 when the firm lost $36.8 million. In 1970, Fox reported a loss of $77.4 million and a dissident stockholders group initiated moves for a proxy battle to control the firm.

FBI Dismisses Employes for Working on Antiwar Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union says it will sue to reinstate two FBI file clerks who claim they were forced to resign because of off-hours work for a peace group.

Philip J. Hirschkop, an ACLU attorney, said Wednesday the suit will seek to enjoin FBI director J. Edgar Hoover from "interfering with the constitutional rights of any other employe."

Hirschkop commented at a news conference where Linda Janca, 21, and Christine Hoomes, 18, said they were given an ultimatum last Friday to stop part-time volunteer work for the National Peace Action Coalition or quit the FBI.

The girls said they held nonsensitive jobs filing fingerprint cards in the FBI identification branch.

Status Unclear

Hirschkop said a third girl, Janie Bush, 19, of Nunda, N.Y., had been given a similar ultimatum but her status is unclear.

The FBI declined comment on the assertion.

Miss Janca, of Biloxi, Miss., and Miss Hoomes, of Woodbridge, Va., said they had worked for the peace group two or three nights a week for the past two months stuffing envelopes in preparation for peace demonstrations scheduled April 24 here and in San Francisco.

They said they were questioned by superiors March 31 about their off-hours work and their views on the war, then given the ultimatum Friday.

They said J. Allison Conely of the FBI's identification branch, told them regulations prohibit political activity and indicated he thinks peace groups are antiadministration.

Jerry Gordon, coordinator of the peace group, said the FBI action was "an effort to coerce people not to come April 24 but we are going ahead."

The two girls said other employes of their FBI division are working for the coalition but declined to name them or say how many there are.

The incident comes at a time when Hoover is under increasing criticism, with some members of Congress calling on the 76-year-old director to resign.

"Mr. Hoover should think twice about firing any FBI employe at a time when there is a rising clamor in the nation that he be fired," Gordon said.

Former Star Backs Red China in U.N.

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black says she is "pretty certain" Red China will join the United Nations and that she hopes it will.

The former child movie star who served as a U.S. representative to the U.N. General Assembly said Wednesday in a interview that if China asks to join, the only prerequisite should be the nation's willingness to demonstrate it is a peace-loving nation as required by the U.N. charter.

Byrnes Delays Insurance Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two powerful Republicans in Congress, fearing the Nixon administration's program for broadened health insurance would hurt small employers, have delayed legislative introduction, it has been learned.

Administration health officials said Wednesday they still hope to win over Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., and Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., and avoid a politically damaging contraction of coverage.

President Nixon has proposed all employers provide a federally prescribed package of medical and hospital insurance to all workers. Excluded would be domestics and migrant workers.

The package would require employers to pay 65 per cent initially and then 75 per cent of the insurance cost.

Byrnes, ranking minority member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he was afraid some employers might "because of the insurance requirement decide not to hire that one extra man."

Administration officials said Byrnes and Ford are advocating a subsidy for small employers. But the officials feel this would cost the government too much money.

Stations to Monitor Fouling Of Atmosphere Are Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government plans to analyze air at isolated points around the globe to determine if man is fouling the atmosphere enough to cause a catastrophic change in world climate.

Plans are in the works to establish five more international clean-air monitoring stations in addition to one already operating on an inactive volcano at Mauna Loa, Hawaii.

Officials said the need for increased monitoring of clean air became more urgent when the Hawaiian station detected a sharp jump in the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere in the last few years.

Scientists have expressed fears a large increase in carbon dioxide could produce a "greenhouse effect" and lead to a warming of the earth which could result in melting of the polar ice caps.

Growth Rate

At Mauna Loa, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said, the annual growth rate of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere was three times greater from 1968 through 1970 than it was during the middle 1960s.

"It is vital to know whether the Mauna Loa growth rate is typical of the globe as a whole," the agency said.

Next year, it said, plans call for establishing a clean-air monitoring station at Point Barrow, Alaska, and one at the South Pole.

Other sites being considered for future stations include New Zealand, an island south of the equator and a mountain peak in South America.

"They have to be in exceedingly isolated areas, where the air is clean," said Dr. Lester Machta, director of the agency's air resources laboratory. He said some of the stations may be operated in collaboration with foreign governments.

Establishing one such station and staffing it would cost an estimated $100,000 a year. The station will play no part in weather forecasting, a function now handled by NOAA.

The stations would measure carbon dioxide, solar radiation, the chemistry of precipitation, dust in the air and the amount of pollution particles.

The agency hopes to learn also whether discharge of pollutants is cooling the atmosphere.

While the fear of a warming of the globe through increased carbon dioxide exists, the atmosphere has been cooling off, a phenomenon thought traceable to increased particle pollution in the air.

"A satisfactory program for measuring the long-term burden of atmospheric trace contaminants does not now exist, either to monitor global trends in the atmosphere or to determine the climatic effects of these trends," NOAA said.

Private Accused of Murdering 2 Officers

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Army private has been charged with murdering two lieutenants in his artillery unit by throwing a fragmentation grenade into their quarters while they were sleeping, a spokesman of the 1st Cavalry Division announced today.

The spokesnan said Pvt. Billy D. Smith, 22, of Watts, Calif., has been charged with premeditated murder in the deaths March 15 of the two officers at the Bien Hoa Army base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

The spokesman said Smith also is charged with three counts of attempted murder but he refused to say whether these counts involved accusations of attempted murder of three other persons. He said the circumstances concerning these charges would be revealed at Smith's trial.

No Trial Date

No trial date has been set.

Smith was apprehended at Bien Hoa March 15, the day of the alleged murders, and is now in the Army jail at Long Binh awaiting trial.

The Army spokesman said a third officer was wounded when a grenade exploded in an officers' quarters about 1 a.m.

The two dead officers were 1st Lt. Thomas Dellwa of Mechanicsville, N.Y., and 2nd Lt. Richard Harlan of Dallas, Tex., the spokesnan said. First Lt. Peter B. Higgins was wounded in both legs and was taken to an Army hospital but later returned to duty.

All three officers along with Smith were assigned to Bravo Battery, 2nd Battalion, 9th Artilery, an artillery unit of the 1st Cavalry Division based at Bien Hoa.

Smith is also charged with resisting lawful apprehension and assault of a police officer.

The charges were lodged following an Article 32 investigation, the Army's equivalent of civilian grand jury action.

Yorty Boycotts As Protest for Three Policemen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rather than dine on beef bourguigno and hear an address by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Mayor Sam Yorty ate soup at his desk and worked.

Yorty said he stayed away from the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Wednesday to dramatize his opposition to federal grand jury indictments of three Los Angeles policemen, not as a snub to Agnew.

"I personally like him," Yorty said, but doubted that Arnew had full information on the indictments.

The officers were indicted on civil rights violations in the slayings of two Mexican nationals in an apartment.

Yorty, a Democrat who supported President Nixon in 1968, has said the Republican administration secured the indictments in an effort to win the Mexican-American vote in 1972. Agnew told a news conference Tuesday night, "The federal government does not indict anyone. The grand jury does the indicting."

Estimate Asked For Converting School Building

Architect to be Hired on Cost of Police Quarters

The cost of installing "a modern, functioning police department" in the Appleton Vocational School building should be known in about six months, according to a decision Wednesday by the City Council.

The council approved hiring an architect to estimate the cost of remodeling the school building, asking for the report within six months.

The council's Public Safety Committee recommended the action, which is to be carried out through the Board of Public Works and Finance Committee.

The action is the first serious attempt at improving police station facilities since the department was moved into a former automotive showroom and garage to permit the previous headquarters to be razed for the Gimbels Department Store construction project.

Several proposals ranging from building a new city hall-police station complex to remodeling the present police headquarters have been offered. The committee acted during a special session Wednesday after receiving three alternate remodeling cost estimates from Police Chief Earl Wolff, and a plea by the Appleton Professional Policemens Association for an all-new station building.

Bare Necessities

Wolff's proposals, revised from figures he presented earlier, included a "bare necessities" plan costing $4,212 if only wall partitions are extended for privacy, or $7,982 if light fixtures were upgraded and a storage room added.

Two other proposals involving more extensive work carried cost estimates respectively of $22,284 and $23,051, also subject to reduction by eliminating selected elements of the plans.

The three plans were labeled by Ald. William Errington (15th) as "permanent", "temporary-permanent" and "temporary" and he said the choice should depend on how much longer the present facilities will be occupied.

But Ald. Robert Roemer (8th), chairman, told the committee that William Sirek, vocational school director, says the school "unequivocally will vacate the present vocational school facilities in 1972," with

Build Oneida Bridge First, Council Urges

Resolution Will Go To Outagamie Board

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Appleton City Council Wednesday formally asked the Outagamie County Board to support the shifting of state bridge-building priority from the Memorial Drive bridge to a high-level S. Oneida Street crossing over the Fox River.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) cast the only opposing vote in the 19-1 decision. He said the action was too serious to pass without thorough study and consideration.

Supporters of the measure, adopted immediately by suspension of council rules, said the council already has agreed that the priority change is needed. There already have been several studies of local bridge needs, Thompson was told.

Thompson replied that he wasn't questioning the contention that the Oneida bridge rates higher priority than the replacement of the existing Memorial span. He said his concern was with the relationship between the Oneida project and other bridges proposed in the Tri-County Expressway system.

Alleviate Congestion

The south side alderman said he is concerned, with routing through traffic around the downtown area to alleviate congestion. Thompson also pointed out that an accurate cost estimate is unavailable.

He was told by Ald. Peter Beckley (10th), whose ward includes both Memorial Drive and part of S. Oneida Street south of the river, that prompt action is necessary to prevent losing out on state bridge funds.

Ald. Orville Strutz (17th) added that if the county can be persuaded to work with the city on the project, the answers to Thompson's questions will be found. Ald. Robert Roemer (8th), author of the resolution, added that the city and county must be in 'complete agreement' before the state will consider switching priorities or building any bridges.

So far, the county board has taken no stand on bridge proposals in the city.

Resolution Tabled

The board's highway committee tabled an earlier council resolution asking the board to agree to provide the county's one-third share of the Oneida bridge cost required by state bridge financing regulations. The city and state each also would provide one-third.

The county board meets April 20, and the council session Wednesday was the last scheduled before that date. By suspending rules requiring committee deliberation on resolutions before the council acts, the council was able to fit its action to the board schedule.

Other council business Wednesday included:

—Swearing in of most of the successful candidates in Tuesday's election, following official canvass of the votes and certification of the outcome.

Floodplain Ordinance

—Ordering first publication of the city's new floodplain zoning ordinance, one of the last steps toward adoption of the measure to comply with state and federal requirements.

—Acceptance of a new one-year labor agreement with sewage treatment plant employes in Local 73, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, AFL-CIO. The pact carries a 25 cent

Kaukauna Will Seek New Sewer Bids Within Budget

KAUKAUNA — Members of the City Council voted Tuesday night to throw out all sewer bids amounting to $290,681 and ordered City Engineer Robert Natrop to prepare new sewer plans which would enable the city to remain within the $248,425 figure budgeted for sewer purposes in 1971.

The engineer is to eliminate some projects and have others bid as alternates or extras in an attempt to remain within the budget. Aldermen debated borrowing, transfer of money from the road fund and delaying some payments on sewer work until 1972 before finally agreeing to rebid the projects.

A charter ordinance was approved calling for a primary election whenever three or more candidates file nomination papers for any city office.

Pollution Complaint

Mayor Gilbert Anderson was instructed to work with the State Department of Justice concerning a complaint received by the state of air pollution from the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. The state notified the city that a complaint of air pollution and obnoxious odors was filed with the Department of Natural Resources by residents of the city.

Anderson also was instructed to continue checking with the Fox Valley Council of Governments and the federal government to insure that the city is aware of any federal aid which might be available for various city projects as they arise.

Action on a request for annexation of 1,033 acres of land from the Town of Vanden Broek to the city was delayed when it was noted that the legal amount of time had not elapsed since the first request for annexation was received.

Public Hearing Later

The planning commission already has investigated and recommended direct annexation. Representatives of the township and property owners were on hand, but since the counsil took no action, neither were given a chance to be heard. A public hearing on the annexation will be set for a later date.

Boy Scout Troop 31 was given permission to work with Earl Luedtke, city forester, to plant about 500 evergreens and possibly sugar maples around the city where Dutch elm disease has hit heavily. The trees are being donated to the troop for city beautification, but the donor requested to remain anonymous.

Members of the troop also were assured of use of a city truck for a planned project to clean up the river area near old railroad buildings now owned by the city. A letter from Marvin Marcus, Madison, expressing an interest in purchasing the railway property was referred to the railroad committee of the council.

Aldermen voted to suspend the council rules and voted to

Beyer Wins Center Race As Write-in

CENTER — Clarence Beyer, route 3, Appleton, was elected chairman of the Town of Center as a write-in candidate Tuesday. It had been inaccurately reported that incumbent Donald Devine was re-elected.

Beyer, a farmer, received 187 votes, compared with 180 for Devine, who was elected to the post two years ago.

Another write-in candidate received 30 votes for the assessor post. He was Roy Conant who won the post for which there were no announced candidates.

The town also will have a new clerk. Francis Hofacker ran without opposition and received 196 votes. Walter Techlin, a retired farmer and clerk for 37 years, decided not to run for re-election.

At the annual meeting, it was reported that the town dump would be open from 5 to 8 p.m. Wednesdays from May 1 to Oct. 1. The dump also is open from noon to 5 p.m. Saturdays year-around.

Mrs. Wieckert Credits Helpers

Mrs. Beverly Wieckert, elected 11th Ward alderman Tuesday, wants credit to go where it is due.

Commenting on a Post-Crescent report Wednesday that her campaign was supported by League of Women Voters members and other civic groups, she said she had one League member helping her, but the bulk of the work was done by citizens of her ward.

Mrs. Wieckert has been a League member of long standing and her opponent, Ald. Arthur Hoolihan, had charged that she was being backed by "interest groups". Not true, said the new alderman Wednesday.

Machines Checked

Kaukauna's Dix Gets a Recount

KAUKAUNA — An allegation of a discrepancy in the 4th Ward aldermanic voting in Tuesday's election caused aldermen to personally investigate figures on voting machines before declaring election results official.

Never in the history of the machines have aldermen been called on to open and read to machines. They have relied on official figures supplied by election workers on a master tally sheet.

The unique situation was triggered by Ald. Russel Dix, who was defeated by 84 votes in his bid for re-election by Michael Swiontek. Dix told the council that he had been informed by an election worker that there was a discrepancy in figures for that race, and that he would not declare the election official until he had viewed the figures on the machines.

After agreeing that this was a serious allegation and that the machines should be checked immediately, aldermen, the mayor and city clerk went to the second floor of the waste treatment plant, where the voting machines are stored, to check the results.

An off-duty plant employe was called to open the plant doors and machines.

After aldermen opened the two 4th Ward machines, they turned to get the tally sheet from City Clerk Karl E. Marzahl only to find him not there. Two aldermen also were missing.

Thinking they had been delayed, the group waited 15 minutes when someone heard pebbles being thrown against one of the second story windows. The missing officials had been locked out and had been desperately trying to get the attention of those already in the plant since their arrival.

Finally, the machines were checked, election results verified as correctly reported by election workers, and the entourage returned back to council chambers.

Before going to the waste treatment plant, aldermen had attempted to learn the identify of the election worker from Dix, who refused to reveal the name. Upon returning, they tried again, pointing out that the situation cast a shadow on all election workers in the ward, but Dix still refused to identify

Fees Lowered at Valley Campus

Fees for the summer session at Fox Valley Campus have been reduced from $85 to $54 per three-credit course.

The reduction was approved by the UW Board of Regents because local students do not have access to major extra-curricular programs in summer.

The session will be from June 14 to August 6. Twenty-three courses will be offered, many in late afternoon and evening to serve more adults.

It Was While the Israelites were still in the land of Egypt that the Lord made a covenant to deliver the people of Israel from bondage. This covenant was sanctified in a meal, known as the Paschal Meal, the meal Jesus and His Disciples were having at the event known to Christians as the Last Supper. To gain a deeper understanding of the celebration which was the forerunner of today's communion the children of Holy Name Catholic School, Kimberly, participated in such a meal, which had some of the traditional foods. Assessing System Questioned

Two Appleton aldermen Wednesday proposed a public hearing to take stock of the city's property assessing system and consider whether a citywide reassessment might be justified.

Aldermen Glenn Thompson (13th) and Judith Winzenz (12th) submitted the resolution calling for the hearing to be held next month. It was referred to the City Council finance committee.

Thompson explained to newsmen that several constituents have questioned him about the city's assessing system in recent weeks and he found himself unable to answer all their questions.

He thought it best, he said, to call for a public hearing and have Assessor George Schwarzbauer explain the system and answer the questions.

No Objection

Schwarzbauer said today he has "no objection to it. I'd be glad to explain it to anybody." A meeting or hearing would make it easier, bringing more people together to hear the explanations at one time, the assessor said.

Thompson said he gave Schwarzbauer advance notice of the proposal for a hearing. In the course of discussing the proposal Thompson said he learned Mrs. Winzenz also had been interested in the subject and he invited her to sign the resolution.

The proposal only asks for discussion and explanations, without taking a position or recommending action.

The purpose of the hearing, explained Thompson, would be "to see if there is need to reassess or if our policy that we have today is adequate."

System Criticized

There has been apparent heightening of criticism of the present assessment system in recent months, centering primarily on the case of Harold Oswald, 622 E. Grant St., who has publicly protested an increase in his property assessment following his purchase of his home.

His argument is that it is unfair to raise assessments on the basis of sale price unless property that has not been recently sold also is reevaluated frequently. The present system discriminates against buyers and unfairly favors long-time residents, Oswald contends.

Schwarzbauer admits that the present system has deficiencies, and blames it primarily on shortage of personnel. His position on a citywide reassessment of all property is that since the cost would be considerable, the decision should be up to the City Council rather than him, since the aldermen must approve the budget and levy taxes.

The Oswald case is expected to bring further discussion of the system when Oswald goes before the council's finance committee later this month to explain his objections and seek relief from part of his tax bill, which he has been paying under protest.

Social Services Needs Legal Help

The Outagamie County Department of Social Services is suffering from a legal backlog chiefly because the county hasn't had a full-time corporation counsel since September.

Raymond Kaskey, deputy director, told the social services board Wednesday that he would confer with newly-elected County Executive Alvin Woehler, today on the appointment of a new counsel.

He said after the meeting that the department needed at least a half-time man. A.W. Ponath, who was appointed part-time counsel last October for the entire county, hasn't had time to satisfy the legal needs of the social services department.

The primarily legal difficulties have been in trying to bring juvenile, delinquent or abandoned, into court for action on their cases, Kaskey said, noting the law says the court — not the department — must decide if the youngsters be placed under super-vision, in foster homes or in an institution.

He said there also is a need for a counsel to interpret the many laws and rules concerning welfare and to initiate action on probate cases.

Kaskey said the use of the part-time corporation counsel has been "helter-skelter." He said he felt that now that Woehler was elected county executive, he would be ready to name a full-time counsel.

Woehler said he would be making appointments, including the counsel, probably later this month.

Positive TB Test Is Not Proof of Disease

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There can be no doubt, I am sure, that tuberculin testing is a very useful tool. Yet I cannot help but feel that it has caused much grief and unhappiness.

In fact, this letter is the result of a case I am familiar with. One parent, over 40, had a mild reaction to the test recently. The rest of the family was found negative.

X rays on this parent were normal. Yet the test has caused alienation between the couple themselves and the children to the point where I fear a break-up of the family is a real possibility.

What does the test mean? Could a person who came in contact with the germ 30 years ago still harbor the germ inactively, and can it become active in later life? Maybe if they read something about it in the paper it would help. — A. R.

I've written several times before about the tuberculin or "skin" test, but I'll do it again.

I'm at a loss to understand why this family you mention should get into what seems to be a savage uproar instead of asking for some information that could clear up the fuss.

The tuberculin test does not tell whether a person is harboring tuberculosis germs — active or inactive. All it tells is whether he has ever come in contact with TB.

A negative tuberculin test is proof that you don't have TB. A positive test, however, is not proof that you do.

All it proves is that, having been in contact with the germs, you need further tests to see whether you do or you don't have TB.

In the case you describe, the parent with the positive test has had such a further test — the chest X ray — and no evidence of TB was discovered.

So what is the family so upset about?

He was exposed once, but he didn't get the disease.

The way the test works is this: when one is exposed to TB germs, the body's protective mechanism goes to work, and antibodies are created in the blood. The antibodies are substances which are designed to combat that particular germ.

These antibodies, once created, remain in the blood — a positive tuberculin test will show them. But whether they were originally from 30 years ago or three is a question.

Anyway, the person who has had a positive tuberculin test thereafter should have periodic chest X rays, because if he ever does contract TB, he wants to find out without delay.

As for the rest of the family, as long as they continue to have negative tuberculin tests, they don't need chest X rays. (Not to test for TB, anyway.) Because you may or may not get TB when exposed, but you can't have TB without exposure to the germs.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a baby (or adult) catch asthma by being in close contact with a person who has asthma? — R. L. S.

No. That is, as a vast generality, the answer is no. Asthma is a wheezing, caused by congestion in the breathing passages, and in almost all cases, this is related to allergy, which is not "catching."

There might be an occasional case in which the "asthma" is the result of infection which could be transmitted, but that in any event would be a temporary condition, and not what we usually refer to as asthma.

Note to A. C.: Unrecognized diabetes? A lot of it. "Disease Detection Newsletter" reported a drive in Florida with 3,989 people tested — and 143 found with abnormal sugar levels.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching, and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent requesting a copy of the booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Hearing Set On Unfair Labor Charge

Guards' Request for Union Withdrawal Before Commission

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission has scheduled a hearing April 21 to hear unfair labor practice charges against the city and consider a request by school crossing guards for an election to determine whether they will withdraw from the Teamsters Union.

Previously scheduled hearings on the election request were postponed, most recently when the Teamsters filed the charges against the city.

City Atty. David Geenen has prepared an answer to the charges, which named the city and Ald. Robert Roemer (8th), chairman of the Public Safety Committee of the city council, and Mrs. Leona Bodmer, 816 W. Fifth St., a crossing guard.

Geenen denied the union allegations that Roemer and Mrs. Bodmer entered into illegal, secret negotiations in January.

Teamsters Local 563 charged that the city told the crossing guards they would receive a raise if they dropped their affiliation with the Teamsters.

The 30 crossing guards have been members of the local since 1969. Sporadic bargaining last year failed to produce a first contract between the city and the group, deadlocking after the city refused to accept a WERC-appointed fact finder's recommended settlement.

The guards subsequently petitioned WERC to hold the representational election, to determine whether a majority favors continuing or dropping affiliation with the Teamsters.

THANK YOU!

VOTERS of the 11th WARD, for electing me your alderman.

Ecology Groups Petition Against Nuclear Plant

Radioactivity Feared From Unit Located North of Manitowoc

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Three environmental groups have filed a petition to block issuance of an operating permit for the second of two nuclear power plants north of Manitowoc.

Sol Burstein, senior vicepresident of the Wisconsin Electric Power Co. which owns the plant along with its subsidiary, Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co., said he received a copy of the petition Tuesday.

The petition was filed with the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington by Businessmen for the Public Interest, Chicago; the John Muir Chapter of the Sierra Club; and Protect Our Wisconsin Environmental Resources (POWER), a group of citizens with homes near the plant.

The petitioners contended that analyses of the safety of the plant were inadequate and that there was no assurance that there would not be a major release of radioactivity if the cooling system at the plant failed .

Burstein said the action will delay the opening of the plant which had been set for commercial production this fall. He also maintained that loss of power from the second plant at Two Creeks would contribute to a "particularly tight" pow supply in the Midwest this summer.

Area's Federal Tax Bite Declines From Last Year

Approximately $127,458,000 in personal income taxes left the four-county Fox Valley area last year bound for Washington. Some $49,051,000 of it was from Outagamie County residents.

This year, based on government estimates, the overall amount is expected to be smaller. This is due to a smaller surtax, 2½ per cent, and despite the fact that many people earned more money in 1970 than in the previous year. The reason is that there were many more people than usual who were unemployed.

As a result, the government expects to collect $88.3 billion in personal taxes, or $1.9 billion less than last April.

The local share of the tax load was determined by an unofficial breakdown of the payments received from the State of Wisconsin as a whole, which totaled $1,858,000,000.

2.64 Per Cent

Outagamie County residents contributed close to 2.64 per cent of that amount, or about $49,051,000.

This year, in line with the changed economic situation and with the revised figures contained in the budget that was recently submitted to Congress, the personal tax returns from the local area will be around $124,399,000, it is estimated, with $47,874,000 of it from Outagamie County.

Large as this amount is, it may be the smallest sum residents will be called upon to pay on an annual basis for some time to come.

Personal tax returns from Calumet County are estimated at $9,611,000. This compares to $9,847,000 in 1970, or .53 per cent of the state's contribution.

It is estimated that Waupaca County will contribute $12,875,000 in tax returns this year. This is down from last year's amount, $13,192,000 which was .71 per cent of the state's total amount.

Current tax returns in Winnebago County are estimated at $54,039,000. Last year's amount, $55,368,000, was 2.98 per cent of the amount contributed by the state.

The expectations for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1971, run considerably higher. The budget counts on personal income taxes reaching $93.7 billion, which is $5.4 billion more than at present.

For local residents to be able to carry their current share of that tax load and maintain their present standard of living, their 1971 incomes will have to be about 6.1 per cent higher than they were in 1970.

Ban Asked on Mailing Unwanted Credit Cards

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Banks and other financial institutions would be barred from mailing unsolicited credit cards to consumers under a bill introduced Tuesday in the Wisconsin Assembly.

"Working people, already living largely on credit, do not need further invitation for what in this case is open-end spending," asserted Rep. William Johnson, D-Milwaukee.

He said the measure would "eliminate the temptation to a man of modest income to go off on a spending spree through a card that was 'just sent.' "

Johnson said the bill also would cut down on the possibility of unsolicited credit cards falling into the wrong hands.

"Someone has to pay for this loss, and you can be sure it isn't the banks," Johnson said.

Penalties under the legislation would range up to $100.

Program to Train Electric Power Technicians Initiated

The future for those interested in a career in electric power appears to be a bright one and eastern Wisconsin residents are being given the opportunity to benefit from that potential.

The Lake Michigan shoreline has become the center of the state's electric power industry which more and more is utilizing the lake's cooling waters in the production of power.

This has led to the establishment of a program at Lakeshore Technical Institute-Sheboygan, to train technicians for the complicated plants along the lakeshore.

The institute, for the first time this year, is offering a two-year electric power program designed to train individuals for jobs at the technician level in the industrial areas of power generation, transmission and distribution.

Western Wisconsin Technical Institute at La Crosse, offers a similar program.

The technicians work directly with or under the supervision of engineers responsible for design, testing and maintenance of power generating and transmission systems and equipment.

During the first year, the student receives instruction in the fundamentals of electrical power. The second year is devoted to a more detailed study of the industry including power generator plants, thermodynamics and instrumentation. In his two years in the program, the electrical power student also takes such academic courses as communication skills, economics, psychology of human relations and American institutions.

The program instructor is Roger Rulseh of Two Rivers. Rulseh sees a great future for electrical power program graduates because of the expansion of the power industry.

The Wisconsin Electric Power Company, Wisconsin Power and Light Company, and the Wisconsin Public Service Corporation all have plants between Milwaukee and Green Bay along the Lake Michigan shore.

The latest plants are the nuclear power complexes at Point Beach State Park at Two Creeks in Manitowoc County and the plant at Kewaunee in Door County. The Point Beach State Park plant has already begun operatons and the facility at Kewaunee is scheduled to begin producing power in the fall of 1972.

The three power firms have endorsed the institute's program.

"As the electric power industry expands, so do its problems," says Rulseh. "That's why in our courses, we are including discussions of ecological matter. It is very important that students who are thinking of a career in the power industry are aware of what's going on."

A seven member advisory committee meets periodically to discuss various aspects of the program. The committee membership consists of representatives from industry management and labor.

Neenah Council Gives Nod To Sewer User Fee Program

NEENAH — A sewer user fee ordinance, similar to the one assed in Menasha, was adopted y the Neenah city council Vednesday night.

The only difference between ne Neenah and Menasha ordinances is Menasha's outlines the ate charges, while Neenah's oints out that the charges will e determined after "a detailed tudy of residential, commercial and industrial usage."

The Wednesday action following a recommendation from Mayor Roman V. Hauser on Monday to adopt the Menasha ordinance without the rate chedules.

January, 1972

For all practical purposes, the wo ordinances will go into effect Jan. 1, 1972. Menasha's ordinance legally goes into effect May 1, but no fees can be charged until a budget has been agreed on by the two cities.

Other than the legal differences of an interim rate structure for Menasha the two ordinances are identical.

Both call for measuring devices to be placed on all industrial outfalls as a base for charging. Residential and small commercial rates will be based on water usage.

The industrial measuring will include liquid in gallons: five-day BOD (biochemical oxygen demand) and suspended solids.

Both cities currently are considering hiring the same engineering firm to conduct a sewer user fee study to determine what the cities should charge contributors to the treatment plant to make sure the plant and the proposed addition is a self-supporting operation.

An equitable sewer user fee based on actual cost of treatment plus debt retirement, has been listed as one of the requirements to get federal aid on the proposed $17 million addition.

Both cities and the sewerage commission are under orders and involved in a legal hassle with the Department of Natural Resources to fix up the plant so that it will stop polluting Little Lake Butte des Morts and the Fox River.

With the adoption of the user fees, money for the operation and capitalization of the treatment plant will be raised through the fees instead of the former practice of putting the cost on the tax rolls.

In Neenah's case it will mean that $489,528 raised via the tax levy for 1971, will be removed in 1972. Had the change been in effect for 1971, the tax rate would have been reduced by $2.97 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Guidance Counselor With Mobile Unit?

OSHKOSH — Psychiatrists on wheels?

That's a possibility which Supv. Eugene Williams opened Wednesday night at the Guidance Clinic Board meeting. It did not get far, but Williams promised to bring it up again.

The Oshkosh supervisor is trying to solve one of the center's problems, getting people to its services. Now the center is in the WNAM building on the south edge of Neenah. In August, it will move to the old nurses home at Sunnyview Sanatarium in Winnebago.

The clinic staff and county medical society resisted the move, claiming it would make the mental health services less available to the public. The staff wanted offices in both Oshkosh and the Twin Cities, but encountered stout resistance to the idea on the county board.

Williams sees a mobile unit, much like the library bookmobile or the TB x-ray unit, as a way to bring the services to the people. He suggests a regular schedule of stops at schools, public agency buildings or other places where demand existed.

The van would provide diagnosis and treatment, consultation service to courts and school psychologists, give greater visibility to the clinic and make it easier to broaden the available range of hours for the service, Williams argues.

He is a persistent man, and though the board only mused briefly with the idea, Williams promised them they would hear it again.

The Clinic will be on WOSH's Public Opinion program April 15. Administrator Fred Kepfield said there would be at least three and possibly five representatives. At a minimum there would be a psychiatrist, a psychologist and a county supervisor on the center's board. Possibly two psychiatrists would be on the first program.

Kepfield said the hour-long program would be counted as duty time and that people would be paid for it at their usual rates. For the psychiatrists that's $35 an hour.

And for many county board members that is outrageous. There was lively comment on the board floor last fall when the center included the rate in its budget, and there is presently feeling that the psychiatrists who are being hired on a consultant basis by the center should donate the radio time as a community service.

Supv. Arthur Ales, Menasha, put it this way: "It is time for professional people to give a little, to knock off a bit on their fees." Others on the board feel the same way.

The program is planned as a one-shot, but a similar one in Fond du Lac has been so popular it has run for five years. Kepfield said they would have to wait to see if WOSH would find it popular enough to invite them back. The center is also making a series of 15-minute taped shows for educational broadcasts in other time slots. It is concerned with its lack of public outreach.

Williams made one other proposal which will receive more study. He suggested fees be changed to catch insurance money availabe but not now tapped. Fees at the center are based on ability to pay; that is judged by the amount of the patient's previous year's federal income tax. The fee is 1 per cent of it.

This means that 80 per cent of the patients pay below $10 an assistance fee figured for the hour, even though the medical assistance fee figured for the center is $13.50 an hour. Williams and the staff will study costs and legal implications to see if the basic rate can be pegged high enough to charge insured people the full cost and still base it on ability to pay. There is no desire to scare away people who need help with high fees.

A resolution will be presented to the county board asking it to accept a low remodeling bid of $37,233 for the new quarters at Sunnyview. Peter Rasmussen Construction Co., Oshkosh, was apparent low bidder. The board has $40,000 budgeted for the work.

Winnebago Issue Faces Board

Petition Presses for Executive

NEENAH-MENASHA — After nine months of petition passing, Winnebago organization Restructuring Committee (WORC) says it finally has enough signatures to force a reluctant county board to race the county executive issue.

The citizens needed 5,599 signatures and were about 100 short before they went to gather names at the polls Tuesday. Mrs. Anne Neer, WORC secretary said 450 were added. That should put them over the top.

The petitions will force the county board to create the executive position or put it on the ballot as a referendum question.

Outagamie Move

Mrs. Neer and A. John Wiley, executive of the Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce and a WORC member, said publicity around the issue in Outagamie and Brown counties helped efforts here.

Wiley said he was able to get 70 signatures in 90 minutes outside the Memorial Building, Third Ward voting place in Menasha. "I missed only 10 or 12 out of the people I could keep up with.

"People in general were kind of disgusted with the county board for not doing anything. They asked why do we always have to keep up with Appleton? And felt the board was not very responsive to this issue."

Mrs. Neer was cheered by the response. "It indicated people were still very much in favor of changes." In five hours of signature gathering, she said she got only five or six outright refusals and three or four who favored an appointed administrator over an elected executive with veto power.

In Oshkosh, the response was in keeping with the effort. William Neer, WORC chairman, said no petitions were passed at polls there; they were only circulated at various listening parties. "I'm not expecting a great return." Oshkosh petitions had not been gathered or counted.

Because of the schedule of elections and the need to budget for the position, the soonest voters would get a crack at deciding between candidates would be the spring of 1973. That assumes they vote for the creation of the job in the first place, or that the board creates the position. The latter would be quite out of character with the unit's past attitude.

Outagamie and Brown counties joined Milwaukee County Tuesday in filling the position. Outagamie voters overwhelmingly approved the idea in a referendum a year ago.

Youth Placed on Probation After Burglary at Store

An 18-year-old Appleton youth this morning was placed on two years' probation for burglary, but must spend the first eight months of the term in the Outagamie County jail under the Huber Law.

County Judge Nick F. Schaefer withheld a prison term for John Landusky, 120½ E. Spring St. He previously pleaded guilty and was being held without bond.

Landusky and a juvenile broke into the Quaker Dairy Store, 125 E. Pacific St., on March 24. Landusky was discovered hiding inside the building. The other youth was lurking near a door outside.

Police checked the premises when a window was noticed broken.

Landusky will be counseled by an agent from the State Department of Health and Social Services. The department performed a presentence investigation. The case of the other boy will be handled through the Juvenile Court.

Kimberly Recreation Group Plans Membership Campaign

KIMBERLY — The annual Kimberly Recreation Association membership drive is underway with a neighbor to neighbor envelope campaign for $1 collections.

Membership is open to any village resident over 18 or persons employed at the Kimberly-Clark mill. Income for the organization also is derived from annual village appropriations and from proceeds of vending machines in the mill.

Each year the organization sponsors socials for summer, winter and spring. Other activities are a golf jamboree, golf school, fishing and hunting contests, ice fishing contest, cribbage tournament, Christmas home decorating contest, softball leagues, volleyball, indoor horseshoe, touch football, slim gym club, archery, couples bowling leagues, and support of the Golden Age Club.

The board of directors will give consideration to sponsoring any program of adult recreation in which a sufficient number of members indicate a desire to participate.

The annual membership meeting, which usually attracts from 300 to 500 persons, will be held at 7:30 p.m. May 19 at the Darboy Club. Guest speaker will be Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice who will discuss the county drug problem.

Annual reports will be made, and five directors will be elected to two-year terms. Lunch and refreshments will follow.

Council Endorses Revenue Sharing Plan Once Again

In a resolution addressed to Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, and Wisconsin's two U. S. senators, the Appleton City Council Wednesday endorsed for the second time President Nixon's federal revenue sharing plan.

The resolution, submitted by Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, states that a fiscal crisis faces states and localities because traditional sources of revenue including sales and property taxes "can no longer support the expanding needs of local government."

Revenue sharing, the resolution continues, "would provide to states and localities needed funds to operate their governments, without federal controls now attached to federal grant-in-aid programs."

Byrnes, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, favors portions of the Nixon plan that would make some $11 million in present grant-in-aid funds available on a "block grant" basis, without complicated applications and approvals currently required.

But the Green Bay congressman is at odds with Froehlich and other fellow Republicans including the President, on a proposal to add $5 million in additional appropriations.

Neenah Supports Public Housing Plan

NEENAH — A cooperation agreement and application for a $110,000 preliminary loan, passed Wednesday by the city council, has cleared the way for the city to apply for 275 public housing units.

The pair of resolutions point out that the city fathers are aware and in agreement with the housing authority's intent to apply for Department of Housing and Urban Development funds to help finance a public housing project.

The action also puts the city council on record as recognizing the need in Neenah for low cost housing for elderly and low income persons.

The housing authority intends to apply for 200 dwelling units for the elderly and 75 for low income families.

In other action, the council endorsed pending state Senate legislation calling for a new type of revenue bond which could mean lower interest rates for municipalities in the sale of bonds to finance a revenue producing facility.

According to State Rep. Michael Ellis, also Third Ward alderman, the new law provides that a city could underwrite the revenue bond with its taxing powers "Which we hope will mean lower interest rates."

At present, revenue bonds are underwritten only by the money raised by the structure, such as a water plant or a parking ramp. With the uncertainty of the money raising ability, the bonds usually sell at a higher interest rate.

But, according to Ellis, the new law would let the city underwrite the bond issue which would give investors in municipal bonds a little more assurance of getting their money back.

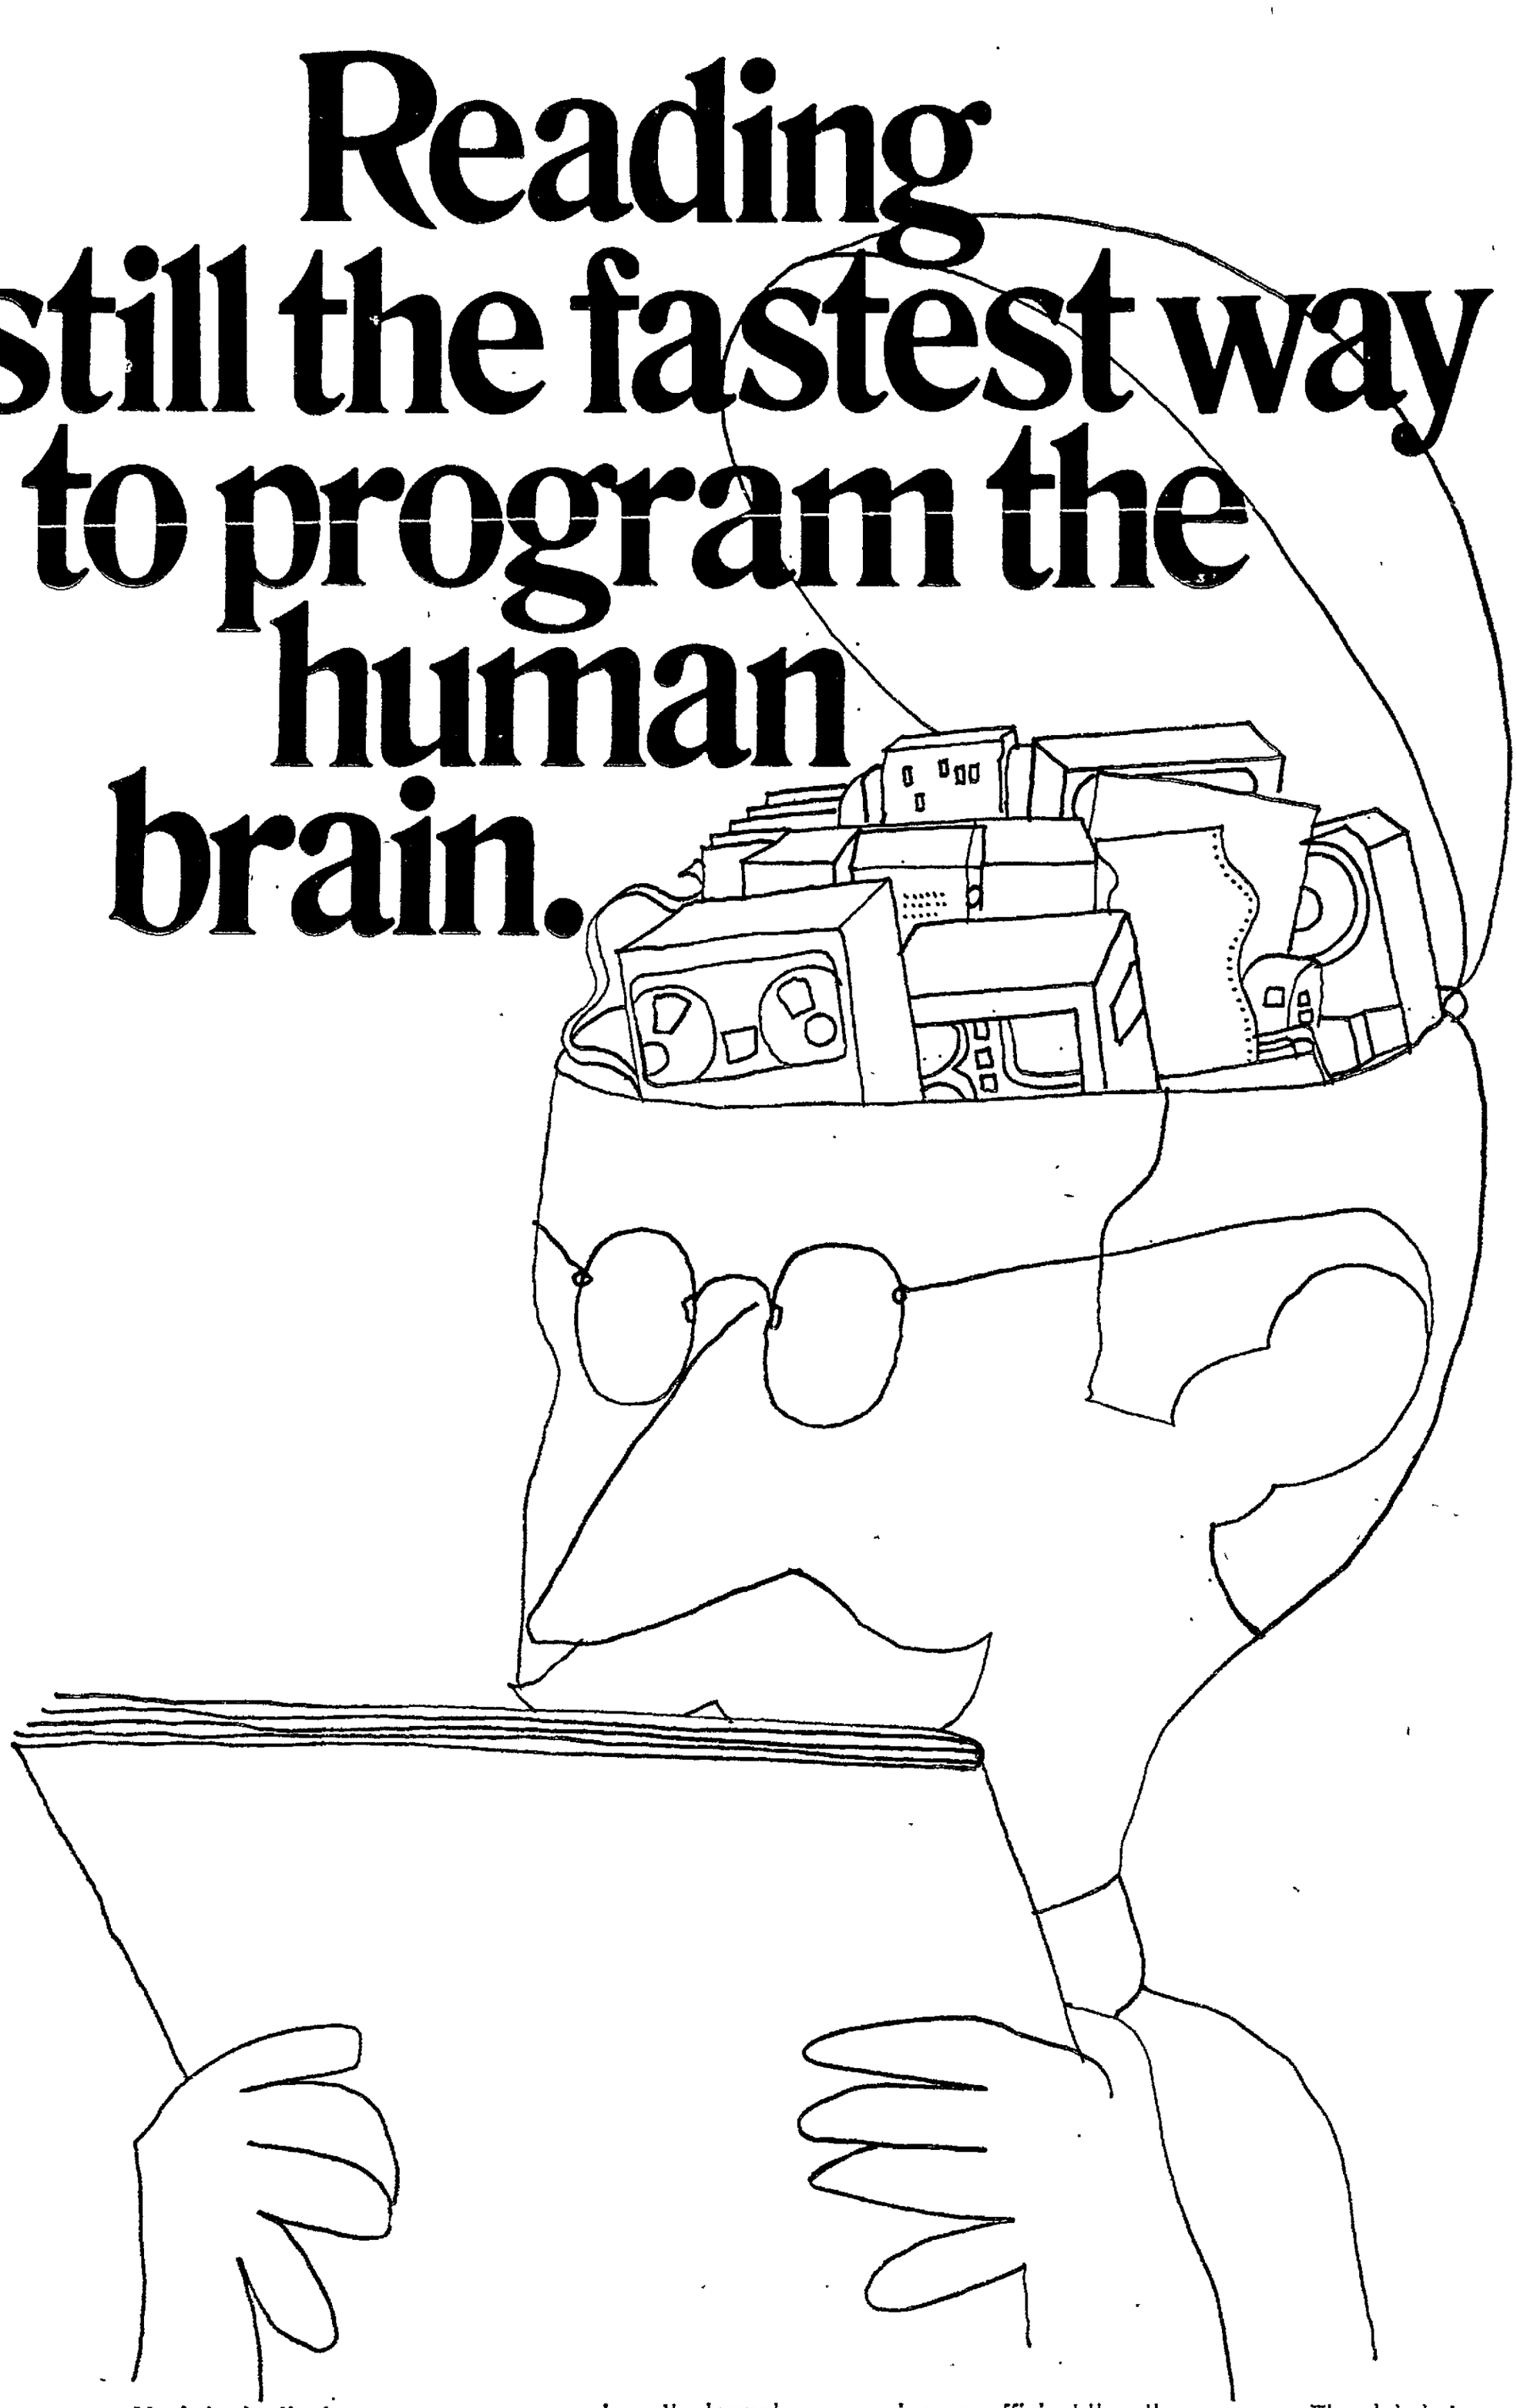
Reading is still the fastest way to program the human brain.



Man's brain, the human computer, faces a problem. Like man-made computers, the brain can process data with such lightning speed that men are hard-pressed to devise ways of feeding it information fast enough.

In fact, the human brain has been called the world's finest, most expensive computer. By comparison, the largest electronic computer in use today looks like a child's plaything.

But in an era of "information explosion," how do you "program" information to the human brain? Spoken language is far too slow. The average person speaks about 150 words per minute. The mind can think far faster than that.

In fact, man has yet to devise a means of feeding information to his brain that is more efficient than the written word. Fast readers can read up to 1,500 words a minute—ten times the average rate for the spoken word. Scanning can accelerate this rate still more.

Perhaps some day men will devise some electronic system to program their own brains more rapidly. Until they do, no method is as efficient as the written word.

The alphabet, movable type and the printing press are among man's oldest inventions. But as tools for furthering human knowledge they are as modern as the most modern computer.

Perhaps this is the reason more people still get more information from daily newspapers than from any other source.

hourly pay boost retroactive to the end of December, and a five cent raise next October, at a cost to the city estimated at $9,000 over the previous contract.

—Approval of an ordinance change permitting homeowners to repair sidewalks themselves, provided they receive a permit and do the work during times when city inspectors are available.

Policy Waived

—Adoption, without debate, of a wage schedule to be paid by contractors on city projects this year. The schedule, based on current union agreements, was recently the subject of angry debate between union officials and the city finance director, David Champion.

—Waiving of a policy prohibiting concrete pavement to be poured earlier than May 1, in the case of Hutter Construction Co., Fond du Lac, builders of the Oneida Heights high rise apartments for the elderly. Hutter requested the waiver so sidewalks can be installed in time for the scheduled April 26 turnover of the low-rent apartments to the Appleton Housing Authority.

—Rejection of two offers to sell real estate to the city, including 70 acres adjoining Langedyke Park on the northeast side and a vacant business building at 830 W. Foster St. in the Town of Menasha, which had offered as a future fire substation if Appleton someday annexes the area.

—Rejection of an annexation petition involving a single residential lot on Richard Street in the Town of Menasha. The lot would be too costly to provide with sewer and water service unless it is part of a larger annexation parcel, city officials reasoned.

The Wolf Is Open

NEW LONDON — The ice is officially out on the Wolf River, and the walleye will be king for the next few weeks, now that Pete and Joe have taken their annual float down river.

The two dummies and their boat left their place on the ice at the S. Pearl Street bridge at 11:53:12 a.m., according to the clock used to record their official departure.

There was a massive chunk of ice which carried the boat to the Shawano Street bridge, where everything jammed to a halt.

Wolf River watchers noted that last year the ice around the boat melted entirely, and the boat floated around beneath the Pearl Street bridge, held by strong winds. Due to the wind the clock was not tripped for several days after most of the ice had disappeared.

Walleye fishermen have been taking advantage of the warm weather and openings in the ice to sit along the shore and in boats trying for walleyes.

Reports are that fish are being caught from Fremont to Shiocton. The average length of the early catches are around 20 inches.

some spaces vacated this year.

Based on that, Roemer suggested hiring an architect to do a cost study in time to be ready to decide whether to remodel the structure when it is available. If the cost is too high, Roemer added, other alternatives will have to be considered.

New Building

The police association, meanwhile, told city officials that "a building specifically designed for law enforcement needs is necessary if we (the policemen) are to respond adequately to the challenge we now face. We urge the Common Council to take prompt action to construct a modern and efficient building designated specifically for law enforcement needs."

The letter, addressed to the mayor, council and Roemer, was signed by David Head, association president.

"Our existing facilities are inadequate and not adopted (sic) to modern law enforcement problems," said Head. He cited lack of privacy, inadequate parking for police vehicles and lack of detention facilities.

Inspector John Gosch, asked by an alderman how much has been invested in the present quarters, said the amount is near $100,000.

Tire Stud Road Damage Hit

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislators who travel Milwaukee-area expressways to and from the state capital told Wisconsin Wednesday it can do without metal studs in automobile tires. They appeared before a Senate committee in support of a bill which would outlaw the studs because of the deterioration of paving surfaces.

Highway engineers report the Milwaukee area is facing a $10-million resurfacing job for its expressway network.

Sen. Nile Soik, R-Whitefish Bay, weighed the damage by asking if defenders of studded tires would agree to a sales tax of $100 per tire to cover repairs.

Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner, R - Shorewood, said manufacturers of stud-tire equipment "are on the defensive" because of increased complaints about pavement wear, and are stepping up lobbying against the proposed prohibition.

No Evidence

"I have not seen one shred of evidence that what little safety advantage is gained from these tires outweighs the cost of damage to the highways," he said.

Wisconsin prohibits metal tire studs except in winter months when, safety tests show, the studs provide a better bite on icy surfaces.

Opponents of the studs, however, say plows and salt keep highway surfaces clear of ice and snow 98 per cent of the year.

The bill before the legislature would ban studded tires from the state's highways after Jan. 1, 1973.

Joseph P. Kigin of Washington, a spokesman for the Rubber Manufacturers Association, said studded tires have become popular because of their safety features.

Winter Wear

Kigin said the association questions studies that indicate studs are causing pavement deterioration. Wisconsin highway officials said tests indicate insignificant wear on Milwaukee expressways in the summer, but that winter travel seems responsible for up to a half-inch of wear over the last few years.

A Marshfield Republican, Sen. Raymond F. Heinzen, asked that the bill's provisions exclude wire coils in tires.

The newly developed coils, he said, are concealed in the tires, and do not wear directly on the pavement.

Kahl Makes Appeal

Return to Original School Aids Asked

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Restoration of original school aid formulas and program requests of the Department of Public Instruction was asked of the Joint Finance Committee Wednesday by department superintendent William C. Kahl.

Committee members appeared unsympathetic to the department's fiscal appeal.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey reduced the department's budget $78.4 million in his proposed executive budget. Lucey's recommendation is still $209 million higher than the present budget, chiefly because of increased amounts of school aid to be allotted in a different manner.

"We go home and meet the taxpayers. You don't have to do that very often," Sen. James D. Swan, R-Elkhorn, told Kahl.

Swan was angered at increased costs of operating the department.

"You're doing so much more than the public is willing to pay for," Swan told Kahl.

Another edge of the department's budget—school aid formulas—is razor sharp and something on which many incumbent lawmakers may find themselves impaled when they seek re-election.

Much Discussed

The formulas have become for legislators what the weather is to ordinary citizens—a subject for much conversation, but something they can't do much about.

Lucey has suggested decreasing the cutoff level of state aids to individual school districts from 110 per cent of the state's average costs to 100 per cent.

The move would save the state $13.7 million over the next two years, and add that amount to the property tax rolls of the affected districts unless they cut costs.

About 30 per cent of the state's school districts would lose aids in the first year of Lucey's proposal.

Republican leaders attributed Allan Robertson's victory over Democrat Keith Kardie in Tuesday's election to fill an Assembly vacant seat as partly due to resentment over Lucey's aid formulas.

"Millions for Milwaukee County but not a penny for Jackson-Trempealeau," was one Republican's version of the campaign strategy.

Even Democrats are not satisifed with the school aids.

"Every session, we are dumping millions of dollars into a system that at best is no good," Rep. Raymond Tobiasz, D-Milwaukee, told fellow Finance Committee members.

Tobiasz complained of inequities in aid formulas that reward areas which forego real estate reassessment for long periods.

Other Finance Committee members were surprised Wednesday by a school aid bill introduced by Sen. Walter G. Hollander, R-Rosendale, which would cost $196 million more than Lucey's $616.1 million school aid package.

Kahl and the Department of Public Instruction supported Hollander's bill.

No Funding

"Where is this committee and the legislature going to get $196 million?" queried Rep. Dennis Conta, a Milwaukee Democrat closely allied with the Capitol's executive win.

Hollander has suggested raising sales and income taxes to make up the amount, actions few legislators are expected to endorse. But his proposal does have the virtue that it would hurt few of the 144 school districts which would lose under Lucey's plan.

Hollander would open the state purse to all costs of school districts up to 115 per cent of the statewide average.

Kahl offered the dim hope of increased federal support as an alternative to increasing state taxes.

He contended that any decrease in the percentage of present state aids would hurt school districts which can least afford the burden.

It would present them with the unpalatable alternatives of increasing taxes or sacrificing quality of instruction, he said.

WEA Wants Law Prohibiting Firing of Pregnant Teachers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill to prohibit local school districts from firing teachers because of pregnancy was urged on legislators Wednesday by the Wisconsin Education Association (WEA), other teachers, groups and civil rights organizations.

School districts in Berlin, Oostburg, New Berlin, St. Francis, Greenfield, Germantown, Mukwonago, Montello, Menomonee Falls, Port Washington and Waterford have fired teachers during the current school year because of pregnancies, WEA statistics show.

Of the 23 cases represented in those districts, some have been taken to court by the association.

School districts frequently have a "rather medieval philosophy about pregnancy, and that's the reason we're here," Richard Swanson of the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers told the Assembly Education Committee hearing on the WEA's proposal.

Several school district officials, however, defended their individual policies on maternity leaves, declaring the proposed bill may upset pupil-teacher rapport.

Providing temporary replacements for teachers who seek maternity leave "is not good education, particularly in the elementary grades," said Dale Hight, Brookfield school superintendent.

Another school system administrator told the committee had hired four temporary teachers during a single school year to replace a teacher on maternity leave.

New Emphasis at Nursery School

The Puppets stand as sentin ils on a clothesline along one wall at the Christin Cooperative Nursery. The aligator that Doug Rammer is talking to is a favorite among the little boys in the class.

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

More sophisticated, more knowledgeable about the world in which they live is one way to describe preschoolers today. Television has brought them information about the plights of people everywhere and their young minds wrestle with thoughts of others. They watch shows especially written and produced for them and have bigger vocabularies and greater understanding of number concepts than any of their predecessors.

For the nursery school teacher, this means facing a different kind of child than she did just a few years ago.

At the Christian Cooperative Nursery at First English Lutheran Church where Mrs. Paul Gladfelter teaches each morning (one class runs three days per week and the other two), it has meant a change in her approach with the little ones. She has found that she is concentrating more and more on language arts and on number concepts. Games are frequently played with words and with numbers to stimulate the youngsters' imaginations.

"What is the opposite of hot? Of in? Of up?"

"Can you make a sentence using the word blue? Play? Store?

A graduate of New York State College for Teachers in Buffalo, Miss Cathie, as her small charges call her, is working on her master's degree in reading at Oshkosh State University and doing her seminar paper on pre-school language arts. The emphasis in this area just seems necessary and natural to her in light of all of the things with which children are familiar today.

Recently purchased for the school was a small stage for hand puppets. As the youngsters become acquainted with the manipulative process, they will begin to make new characters to use in their little theater.

As the children take turns giving the puppets life, they make up their own set of happenings. Sometimes, when they have heard a new story, they incorporate this into their little productions.

While the children have snacks, go on field trips and make such things as cookies and popcorn as they do in other nurseries, Miss Cathie feels the cooperative nursery should help them develop self-confidence and a sense of responsibility. She hopes they will learn to carry on conversations, to listen and to be helpers not only in the classroom but also at home.

Because this is a cooperative, mothers are expected to help at least four times during a semester. This means they will join in when games are being played, will help serve juice and cookies, and will lend a hand wherever it's necessary to make the classroom experience a happy one for the children.

Plans have been made for an Open House the evening of April 22 in the classroom at the church. This event is for parents whose children are enrolled or for those who wish more information.

Playing With Mommie's hats has always been a favorite pastime for a little girl. As Julie Belling, above, dons one of the creations she smiles at her reflection in the mirror. At left, Amy Blocker puts a wig on but doesn't seem sure of its effect on her appearance.

Drawing a Picture of her house to be added to a street mural captures the attention of Michele George. At right, Dominique Partlo has her little house all finished and has even printed her name on the front of it. She concentrates on spreading paste on the back so she can place it to the mural.

Everyone Has Eyes on center stage where the puppets are being put through a routine by some of the youngsters. Miss Cathie sits at the back of the group and watches the performance.

Rock Artists Argue About Portraits of Women

EDITOR'S NOTE — The rock culture has often been termed drug oriented. But now, in the wake of women's lib, it is also being attacked as antifeminine and a stronghold of male chauvinism. Is it? Following is a report based on interviews with leading rock world figures.

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Music Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Does the rock culture degrade women? Does it portray them and treat them as mere bedroom and kitchen servants to men?

These questions are being asked more frequently in the wake of the women's lib movement, some members of which point to the rock culture environment as a stronghold of male chauvinism.

True, and more, says Mary Travers, long-time member of the folk trio of Peter, Paul and Mary, now a solo singer.

Yes, says song writer Carol Hall, but pop music always has been like that. The difference today is that women are becoming aware of being maligned.

No, says a man, who is leader of the hard rock Alice Cooper group and believer in male superiority.

No, says Kip Cohen, manager of the New York rock palace Fillmore East. Women would have to be paranoid to think so.

Carol Hall, mother of two, whose best-known song is "Jenny Rebecca," recorded by Barbra Stresand, calls herself "a fellow traveler of women's lib."

She mentions old songs like "Tea for Two," in which the woman will awake and bake a sugar cake for the man to take for all the boys to see, and "My Bill." "That's about how he treats me ratty but I love him.

"Those were written by men and that is what everybody thought women were supposed to be feeling.

Songs Reflect Feelings

"You can't really dump on rock. Songs always have reflected what women should feel and men should feel. What is different now is the ladies are becoming aware."

Rock publicist Penny Ross looks at the "new culture" which has presumably rejected the values of the middle-aged parents and toned down the status differences between the sexes with hair lengths and unisex clothes. "Ironically," she says, "the new culture has everything the old had. The men make the decisions and the women make the coffee. Music reflects things as they are."

She adds, "The musicians I know are terribly insecure. They need somebody lower so they can feel superior, and it's women."

Mary Travers, mother of four, says, "You can't look at a symptom without looking at the whole problem. There was a terrible cynicism that came out of the latter half of the '60s. The good guys were killed and the marches didn't change anything. Out of that came an anti-intellectualism and hopelessness. There is no reason to reason. Let it be. It doesn't really matter. There is nothing you can do about it anyway.

"Rock is suppossed to go straight to the gut, very anti-intellectual.

"There's a group of young people bent on oppressing themselves with drugs. They say society is going to blow me up without any reason; I'll be the one to blow myself up before society gets a chance. That has to be insane. There's an inability to see there is an opportunity for people to rise together. A guy says to his chick, 'I can't get out of this and I'll be damned if you will. My liberty first and then we'll talk about my chick. It's very depressing.

"It is interesting that the one lady, Janis Joplin, who made it in rock ended up looking like a hooker, cheap and loose. She put herself down. Women are their own worst enemies; isn't that always the case?"

Male Explains

Alice Cooper is the name taken by a young man from Phoenix and also used by his five-man rock group. Their name, their costuming and eye makeup worn on stage are unisex. Their music is aggressive hard rock and Cooper's views are of male superiority.

He says, "The purpose of rock music is sex. It doesn't exactly hit you in the brain. The drums, that four-four beat, is a sex feeling. Pop music used to be romantic. We're romantic in a more open, rough, sex way. We play hard rock, which is very loud sex music.

"Most of the lyrics are about 'I'd like to get that girl. I'm impressed by her beauty or personality or she is just plain sexy.' I don't think that puts women down. It should be a compliment to them. I think women are sex objects and I think that's why they're here."

In hard rock, the drum beat and the volume of the amplified guitars are everything. The lyrics frequently are unintelligible.

In soft rock, which is by far more dominant at present, the lyrics are of prime importance, and most of them are gentle and introspective. Soft rock is usually performed by one person with an acoustic guitar rather than by a group.

There are comparatively few women performers and writers making it big in either of these fields. Grace Slick sings with the hard rock Jefferson Airplane. Laura Nyro writes with a certain toughness. Gentler are songwriters Melanie and Joni Mitchell and singers Judy Collins and Joan Baez.

Why so few women?

Miss Ross says, "Women have an instinct for failure. They think people will laugh if they take up the drums, so they don't try."

Miss Travers says, "The majority of record buyers are girls. They buy the fellows."

Kip Cohen of the Fillmore doesn't find rock music degrading to women. "There is hardly any song in the entire library of rock that praises great men or heroes, and there is an enormous library of songs praising women. Most of them are love songs. Anybody who thinks they're degrading is really far more paranoid on the subject of Women's Lib than I ever thought was possible."

The Face of Theology . . . III

'Sin Was That Which Was Destructive to Man'

The sermons running this week in The Post-Crescent were presented by clergymen of different faiths during a citywide ecumenical Lenten series. The Rev. Kenneth Engelman, pastor of First United Methodist Church, spoke on "The Face of Sin in Scripture and in 1971."

BY THE REV. KENNETH ENGELMAN

There are a variety of ways of approaching sin in Scripture, and because of the broad nature of the subject, I want to limit myself to how I understand Jesus' view of sin in His time.

First, Jesus seemed to feel that sin was that which was in essence destructive to the human being. For example, there is a bit in the Gospel of Mark where Jesus and his Disciples are accused by the Pharisees for eating the heads of wheat on the Sabbath to satisfy their hunger. And Jesus replied:

"Have you never read what David did that time when he needed something to eat? He and his men were hungry so he went into the house of God and ate the bread offered to God."

It's not lawful to do that. Only the priests are supposed to do that. But Jesus said unto them, "the Sabbath is made for men, and not man for the Sabbath."

In short, He was concerned with the human condition. And He was much more concerned with the sinner than with the act of sin itself. He was so concerned with the individual that He seemed to handle every situation on its own.

There's another story in Scriptures to illustrate that: In the synagogue they brought a man with a withered hand and everyone was watching to see if Jesus would heal him on the Sabbath, because it was against the law.

And Jesus healed the man despite that, which says to me that Jesus was concerned with the human being and that sin was that which was destructive, whether it was ritual or not.

For Jesus, sin was primarily an inner quality of life. He was not a diehard when it came to rituals. That's illustrated many times.

Remember the forgiveness bit with Peter? Seven being the holy number, Peter said, "How many times am I going to have to forgive a man? Seven times? And Jesus said, "seventy times seven." Now, if you get bogged down to literalism, you'll figure out that came to 490. Of course, Jesus didn't mean that. He simply said there was a quality of life within a human being that enables him to accept another human being for what he is. Everything else is a numbers game.

In brief, Jesus saw sin as that which was humanly destructive; he was more concerned with the sinner than with the sin and sin was essentially an inner quality of life.

Now we come to sin in 1971.

It means at least this — primarily broken and severed relationships, particularly in reference to man's relationship to man.

That's in the Bible too — the parable of the Prodigal son. After the son realized what he had been doing, he also realized that it was not the damaging thing he was doing, but the fact that he had broken relationships.

So there you have it; he was lost not because of deeds, but because he chose to separate himself from other human beings.

That's the generation gap in 1971 in Appleton. It's not a generation gap at all as far as age is concerned. Rather, it's a "style of life gap." But that is sin. Not because who does what or when but because of the severed and fractured relationships and the inability to listen and really hear what another is saying.

Most of us, you see, are prodigals. We live in a foreign land from each other. And when we come to our senses, we will discover that the sin is healed when the relationship is mended.

Let me move to another section of sin in the 1970s and that refers to man's relationship to himself. Sin in relation to ourselves is our own personal refusal to be a free, autonomous, spontaneous human being.

There is a poster in my study and on it is a picture of a cocoon. Superimposed on the cocoon is a butterfly and the caption on it reads: "You can fly, but that cocoon has to go."

All right, Sin is the cocoon. It is the refusal to accept ourselves as a free, autonomous, spontaneous human being.

You see, in the New Testament, man is seen in the light of a free man. Jesus was a free man.

Not to accept the autonomy that's proper to a free person is sin. We need to decide what we will do with ourselves. To refuse to do that is sin. It's a lack of self-fulfillment; it's a turning away from the source of life.

Sin in the 20th century, therefore in terms of my relationship to my neighbor, is the separation, the brokenness. In terms of the relationship to myself, it is the refusal to acknowledge my own quality, my own possibility as a human being.

There are two other aspects of sin.

The first is what I call the collective, or the corporate nature of sin, and the fact that it is more than individual. Let me give you an example.

Have you been following the My Lai situation? You don't like this chap Cally, do you? Why? We don't know who's guilty. Calley? The man above him? Joint Chiefs of Staff? The President? You? Me? Who's guilty?

We all are. That is the corporate nature of sin. We all are.

And there's one more area. It's what I call the ambiguousness of sin. That is to say, the confused nature of sin in the 20th century.

Sin is the face of confusion and the refusal to honestly face the implication of that confusion and the refusal to take a stand in the midst of it.

Like, for example, what are you going to do about abortion, and the issue of war . . . about pollution . . . or the ecological situation?

What are you going to do about the fact that there is a church in this city practically on every corner that is used about two hours a week?

These are ambiguous things. They're confused and they're problematic.

What is sin in the face of that? Sin is the copping out and not dealing with it: "I don't really know what I could do about the war situation," or, "I really don't understand this changing sex pattern. I hope these kids know what they're doing. It's their problem, not mine."

That's sin. That's sin because I am refusing to take upon myself the authentic and autonomous responsibility of choice and action and I'm backing away from it.

Let me recap briefly. I said that Jesus saw sin in primarily three ways: It was that which was humanly destructive, He was more concerned with the sinner than the sin, and that sin essentially was an inner quality of life.

In 1971 it is a broken relationship, a refusal to accept yourself as a free person. Sin is also corporate and it is ambiguous. And in the face of ambiguity, sin is "copping out."

Cause of Bridge Collapse Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — A crack in a chain link caused the collapse of the 40-year-old Silver Bridge at Point Pleasant, W. Va., four years ago, the National Transportation Safety Board has announced.

The suspension bridge, which connected Point Pleasant and Gallipolis, Ohio, fell into the Ohio River Dec. 15, 1967. Forty-six persons were killed and nine injured.

The board said the bridge's suspension system consisted of 45 to 55-foot-long steel bars connected by steel pins. It was the failure from corrosion of one of these pins that caused the 1,753-foot structure to fall.

Glamorous Bombeck Frustrates Readers

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The reviews from my first television commercial for AT&T are beginning to come in from my readers and frankly I am shocked.

I certainly didn't expect everyone to run right out and buy a telephone, but I certainly didn't expect the barrage of criticism.

The one letter that typifies many said, "I will never read your column again. You led me to believe you were just another housefrau writing in your bathrobe while staring at your commode. Now it turns out you have a clean desk, a phone and combed hair. Nuts to you."

Boy, is that all the thanks I get for what I went through? I hit New York around 5 p.m. on the eve of the commercial and promptly went to my room without dinner. (I had to crash diet 18 pounds by 8 a.m.) I rolled up my hair and spent the night sleeping on my face.

The next morning I went into "makeup" where I was given an estimate and a cup of coffee while they sent out for parts.

On the set, a crew of men were simulating my office from pictures I had sent them. It was beautiful. For one awkward moment I lifted up a blue plastic-covered mechanism and said, "What is this?"

"It's a telephone," said one of the crew.

"I remember now," I said, "Before I had teen-agers I used to call mother."

The director appeared and signaled for a first take. I whipped through it perfectly. We all smiled and visualized a 9:30 a.m. lunch.

On take 3, I still insisted on saying, "Hello there. My name is Erna Bromdeck."

On take 5, the teleprompter operator sneezed.

On take 7, I crossed my legs under the desk and nearly broke my foot.

On take 11, I gestured and knocked the paper clips off the desk.

On take 12, I crossed my eyes.

On take 22, my stomach growled.

On take 27, I pronounced Hawaii like Arthur Godfrey (How are ya').

Take 33 was destined to be perfect. It went without a hitch until the last line. Then the ceiling of the set fell in.

I am back in my bathrobe, staring at the commode. My hair is greasy and my desk should be recycled for ecological reasons. I hope you are all satisfied.

For one wonderful day, those were "some a spicy meatballs."

Your Problems

Rebellious Children Outgrow Hostilities

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a heartsick mother who needs to know what to do about a letter I found on my daughter's dresser. She is 18 and will be going away to college next term. The letter was written by her 23-year-old sister who graduated from college two years ago and is now teaching in another state. Here it is:

"Dear Little Sis: You wanted advice on how to handle the folks. Well, I've made the scene and can give you the straight poop. Here it is: Play it cool. Get all the financial help out of them that you can. Stay in school and earn your degree no matter what. You can tell them to go to hell later.

"When you come home for vacation sleep a lot, stay in your room and pretend to study. This will enable you to avoid chores. It's awful to be home on 'vacation' and get stuck with housework (Ick!)

"At mealtime stuff cotton in your ears to drown out the banalities and dumb chatter. (It will be mostly about drugs, sex, and bad companions.) Mom and Dad don't know one damned thing about the issues of our time. They are stupid, uneducated and unbelievably square. It's just scarey that they are so freaked out about 'a good reputation' that they live in fear that one of us will stain the family name.

"For God's sake always ask for extra money often! You never know when you'll need it. Extra scratch can be vital. I've been able to bail friends out of the can and help my roommate to pay for an abortion in advance — which is the only way those attic docs work. If you need more info, call on me, Sis. I've been there. — Love — Senior Citizen"

Ann, I have not shown this letter to my husband. Should I? He never misses your column and if you print it he wouldn't guess in a million years that it came from our daughter. Tell me what to do. — Heartsick Mother.

Dear Mother: Don't show the letter to your husband. It's enough that you saw it. Rebellious children have been known to outgrow their hostility. When your daughter begins to think better of herself she will think better of her parents. Be Patient. And chin up, dear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Because of my husband's job

Landers

(he's an executive in a large and important firm) we are invited out a great deal, invariably to cocktail parties, and I loathe them. In my opinion the cocktail party is the most insidious form of torture known to modern man. By the end of the evening my feet are killing me, my girdle is cutting me in two and my face is stiff from smiling. Invariably, I am trapped in a corner by the biggest bore in the room.

People lean on walls, trying to look engrossed in conversation. How could they be? It's mostly idle chatter, two-bit gossip and drunken gibberish. As the evening goes on, the talk becomes increasingly unintelligible and senseless, until it finally sinks to the level of the dirty joke..

My husband asked last night when we are going to give a cocktail party and pay back the people whose parties we have attended this past year. I hate to be a drag but I despise cocktail parties and I don't want to give one. Must I? — Rather be Home With a Good Book

Dear Rather: Try to sell him on a small dinner parties. They are more work, more expensive and more time-consuming, but a lot more fun. Good luck.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

David Jordan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man with Paul Jordan as groomsman. Ushers were Bret Haller and Dennis Zimmerman.

The couple greeted guests at a church reception. A delayed wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park is being planned for summer.

The newlyweds will live in Brillion.

Colby-Johnson

PALISADES PARK, Calif. — Mrs. Elisabeth Des Marais Colby became the bride of Eric James Johnson in a Saturday noon ceremony in the Presbyterian Conference Room.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Hubert H. Des Marais, 1208 Manitowoc Road, Menasha, and the late Mr. Des Marais. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr and Mrs. John E. Johnson, Los Angeles, Calif.

Miss Ann Des Marais, Menasha, sister of the bride, attended the couple.

After a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarte, Mexico, the new Mr. and Mrs Johnson plan to live in Los Angeles.

The Ailing House
Installer Corrects Mistake

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: The installer did not allow for our baseboard heating units when he cut the new wall - to - wall shag carpeting and underpad. As a result, the carpeting and underpad fill the lower space and act as a damper. The living room is now several degrees cooler can we do now? — Norfolk.

A: Get the installer to correct his mistake by trimming off the unwanted extra length under the heating units.

Q: The hardwood floor in a room over a crawl space has several squeaky boards. I could get at the underside of the floor, if you can tell me what to do. — Boise, Idaho.

A: While someone walks on the squeaky boards, you mark the underside where you see motion. Then drive wood wedges between the boards (or subflooring) and the beams, so there's no motion. Stop motion, stop squeaks.

Q: Although the skirting around the base of my mobile home has vents on each side, I found the entire skirting covered on the inside with dampness. Could this be from the ground underneath? — Tilton, N.H.

A: It most surely could be. I highly recommend covering the entire ground area underneath with a layer of heavy plastic sheeting as vapor barrier.

Q: Is there any way I can remove kitchen carpeting? This is cemented to a concrete floor. It has a rubber backing. — Rockaway, N.J.

A: Unless the dealer can give you the name of a solvent for the cement he used, this is a difficult removal job. Of course, if it's a water-soluble cement, then hot water will loosen it. Otherwise, it's grim prying with a putty knife and pulling, and a rented floor scraper to remove the residue.

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR.

TEAM CAPTAIN

Bridge for large-audience enjoyment became a reality in New Orleans in early February this year. Sponsored by the Times Picayune and the Crippled Childrens' Hospital, an exhibition match between The Aces and a group of New Orleans challengers attracted an average of 1,000 spectators for each of four sessions of play.

Today's quiz is from hands played in this match. Compare your results with those of the contestants.

Question No. 1. You are South, the dealer with no vulnerability, and hold:

♥ A98
♦ KQ9762
♣ 10964

Do you pass or bid game after this bidding?

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♦	Pass	3♠	Pass

Question No. 2. You are South, all are vulnerable, dealer is West, and you hold:

♠ Q10
♥ Q4
♦ Q854
♣ AK743

What do you bid after the following auction? (Your two-club bid commited you to game.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	2♠
Pass	2♠	Pass	2NT
Pass	3♥	Pass	?

Answer No. 1. If you continue on to game, you agree with Ace Bob Hamman and gain six international match points. If you pass, you break even, since game was not bid at the other table.

North's bidding indicated six spades and three diamonds, and Hamman discounted the probability of finding three quick club losers

The entire hand:

NORTH
♠ AK8754
♥ K4
♦ A83

WEST
♠ Q632
♥ Q1053
♦ J4
♣ AQ8

♠ J109
♥ J872
♦ 105
♣ KJ76

♥ A96
♦ KQ9762
♣ 10964

Answer No. 2. Four hearts loses 12 international match points; three no-trump gains a tie. Ace Mike Lawrence chose four hearts over partner's (Bob Goldman's) three-heart bid, while a successful three no-trump by New Orleans was bid at the other table.

The entire hand:

NORTH
♠ K743
♥ AKJ872
♦ 107

WEST
♠ A62
♦ KJ832
♣ Q965

EAST
♠ J985

♦ A6
♣ J103

SOUTH
♠ Q10
♥ Q4
♦ Q854
♣ AK742

Against the four-heart contract, Sidney Lazard and Morton Nelson of New Orleans found the best defense of three rounds of diamonds. Declarer Goldman ruffed high and later finessed against East's spade jack. However, the bad trump break resulted in the loss of two diamonds, one spade and one trump for down one.

The Aces will answer your bridge questions in this column. Send questions to The Aces, P. O. Box 12363, Dallas, Tex. 75225. Include the name and city of your local newspaper. For a personal reply, include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Jingo Reports on New Valley Theater Venture

Odyssey Playhouse Has Its Charter; Already Underway With Its Program

BY JINGO

Hear ye! Hear ye! Jingo takes to the role of town crier for a spanking new community theater with State of Wisconsin charter in hand.

It's called Odyssey Playhouse, Inc., now looking for bright-eyed and eager recruits, a permanent home and the building of a worthy program, not necessarily in that order but all equally important to its future.

The whole thing started officially Sunday afternoon, April 3, in Fellowship Hall of Neenah's First Presbyterian Church when college and high students from Neenah, Menasha, Kimberly, Appleton and other contiguous points met with their burning common interest in good theater.

Ambitious Program

Odyssey has an ambitious program already underway and its goal is thoughtful and needed in this Valley in spite of the several theater programs established here. Odyssey has high hopes in establishing a three-phase program. If they realize any one of the three they'll be accomplishing a lot, thinks Jingo.

First, the group intends to build a repertoire of short works primarily for the purpose of presentation before area organizations. This is great and sorely needed. This phase is started with a performance of "The Boor" by the great Russian dramatist Anton Chekhov scheduled for two showings May 8 at meetings of the Solo Parents and Friends of Riverside.

Secondly, the Odyssey Playhouse intends promoting and establishing a children's theater showcase with a series of productions for young audiences.

The third phase is a program of full-length plays, with a possibility (they say) of six dramas being given this coming summer. Jingo says again, "Great!" — but wonders at the same time about the possibility part when it's already mid-April and there's no cast, no director, no place to act, no set designer and crews in sight. One play, maybe even two — but six is a little overwhelming.

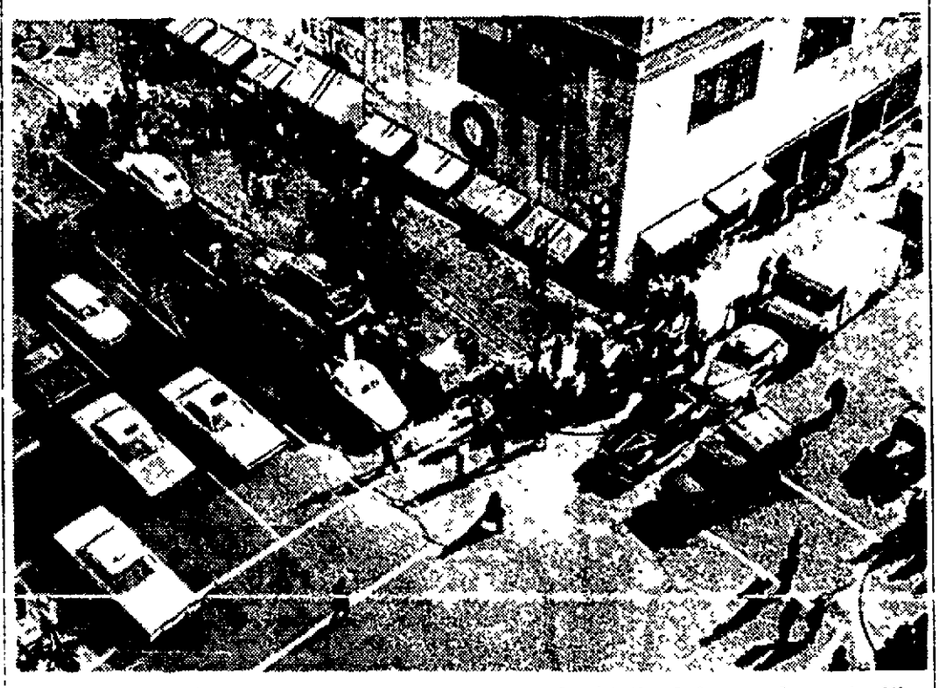
One of the items this group hopes to resolve is the acquisition of a home. The Playhouse would like (what community theater doesn't and hasn't?) to acquire a permanent home to continue its program through the winter months. Jingo surely hopes this all comes true and that one of those tentative sites being considered really turns into an Odyssey Playhouse Theater. What a start that will be!

The premise, of course, is based on the idea of self support, plus a little fund-raising to get started. Odyssey plans to operate on the income from its programs; fund-raising activities are in its plans, ready for action as soon as the organization receives its tax-exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service.

Under consideration for the summer season are such productions as Moliere's "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," Murray Segal's contemporary hit "Luv," three Shakespeareans, the bright musical "Fantasticks" (already done enough in Jingo's opinion), and the Arthur Miller adaptation of Ibsen's "The Enemy of the People."

There's to be another meeting, tentatively set for Saturday, April 17, time and place not decided yet. Anyone interested in live theater in general and the new Odyssey Playhouse in particular should contact James Toland, 711 Congress St., Neenah.

Jingo's a bit skeptical about getting all these things done, but still yells "Bravo" and "Great" to the new venture. After all, Jingo was stage struck at a very early age and still hasn't recovered. Nor does Jingo ever want to.



New York's Fifth Avenue was a scene of today and 1945 at the same time when the filming of "The Godfather" was started last week. The scene called for Christmas decorations on the department store building and old cars along the curb. At the left, modern traffic moves along with some of the passers-by watching the making of the movie. The tracks at the upper center, on the sidewalk, are for the camera dolly. (AP Wirephoto)

Family Affair Focus on 5th Year Together

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7 Channels 2-7 — Family Affair's story deals with the fifth anniversary of the children arriving at Uncle Bill's (Brian Keith) and he forgets the big day — but recovers in time to prevent a complete family disaster. There are some flashbacks from the first show, like a TV family album.

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — Alias Smith and Jones has the boys in Mexico, trying to lure a murderous lady north of the border.

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — Bewitched puts its witchy spotlight on Esmeralda (Alice Ghostley) in a funny show.

7:30-9 Channel 5 — John Wayne gallops back on the TV prairie, with a repeat of his 90-minute salute to the U. S., Swing Out, Sweet Land.

8-8:30 Channels 11-9 — Danny Thomas stops yelling and firing his accompanist on Make Room for Granddaddy because there's a new man on the job: Rosey Grier.

8:30-9:30 Channels 11-9 — The last new Dan August is more like an old Perry Mason plot. An old lady is killed and everyone has a motive — her son, her young boarder, the boarder's girl friend, a jeweler — and it's up to August (Burt Reynolds) to narrow it down. He finally tests his theory by letting the killer try again. Carolyn Jones, Joan Hackett and Gary Collins are among the suspects.

9-10 Channel 5 — The Dean Martin Show closes out its regular season the way it's done it for the last three years — with Jimmy Stewart as chief guest. Stewart works a couple of skits with Martin, and Dom DeLuise is in a couple, too — the best has Dom running a pet shop, with Dean as a man in search of a mate for his lovebird.

Centrifugal Force Test riments Are Fun

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's fun-project for boys and girls is an experiment with centrifugal force. This is the force that impels things outward from a central point of rotation.

Easy to Prepare

The experiment requires advance preparation which is easy to accomplish. The first step is to punch four small holes in the rim of a paper plate, placing them an equal distance from each other. The next step is to tie four 14-inch strings to the holes as shown in figure 1. Also tie the free ends of the strings together, first making sure the knot will permit the plate to hang perfectly level.

Place one navy bean at the center of the plate. Pick up the strings as in figure 1 and commence swinging the plate from left to right. Expand the arc until you finally have the plate traveling in a circle as in figure 2.

The object is to continue the complete circle without dropping the bean. Finally bring the plate to a full stop (with the bean still on the plate), add a second bean and continue swinging. Repeat the process, adding another bean each time. It will be fun to see how many beans you can add and still swing the plate in a complete circle without dropping any.

SEND FOR THIS BOOKLET OF PARTY STUNTS!

Mothers, fathers, aunts and uncles! If you have the task of planning a party for the children and need new ideas to make it big fun, you'll find 45 good ones in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to CAPPY DICK BOOKLETS, P. O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Illinois 60642.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Changes Again Planned in Ever-Shifting Social Security

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP).— The chances are 10 to one that you're involved with an undertaking that has assets of $42 billion and does close to a $40 billion annual business—and there's a good chance also that you will soon be putting more into it or getting more out of it.

That undertaking is the Social Security system, which has grown from an almost timid beginning during the depression of the 1930's into a huge, tax-supported umbrella over more than nine out of 10 working people in the United States, and more than nine out of 10 persons 65 or older.

Of course, the working people and their employers pay the taxes that hold up the umbrella.

Congress, which has added benefits or coverage to the system more than a dozen times since the first Social Security bill was passed in 1935, has just done it again. It enacted a 10 per cent across-the-board benefit increase and a tax stepup to finance it.

Retroactive Benefit

The benefi increase, raising the income of more than 26.2 million persons and sluicing an extra $3.4 billion purchasing power into the still-sluggish economy, is retroactive to Jan. 1971. The recipients will not actually have the cash in hand, however, until June because of the time required to adjust the mammoth computerized payout machinery.

The increased tax bite will be felt only next year and, initially, only by persons earning more than $7,800 a year and their employers. The payroll tax, currently 5 2 per cent each on employe and employer, applies only to earnings up to $7,800. Next year the base goes to $9,000. Later the rate goes up, to a top of 6.05 per cent by 1987, but Congress almost certainly will have made more changes by then.

Changes Planned

In fact, more changes already are in the works A better break for widows and for retired persons who continue to earn some money is considered almost certain. And there is much sentiment for another benefit increase, or else a provision for future automatic increases tied to the cost of living.

The 1935 Social Security act provided only for payments to retired workers 65 or older, and only those who had been in commerce or industry. It imposed a 1 per cent tax on earnings up to $3,000. The first benefit payments were to be made in 1942.

But even before the first benefits flowed Congress liberalized the system, providing for payments to aged wives, widows and children of deceased workers, and moving the first payouts up to 1940. The average payment that year was $22.10 a month for an individual. Recipients totaled 113,000.

Beneficiaries

By 1970, there were 26,230,000 beneficiaries. The average individual monthly payment now is $131. A 65-year-old wife gets, in addition, 50 per cent of her husband's basic benefit.

Successive changes have extended the coverage of the system, taking in many farm employes, domestics, self-employed professionals such as doctors, clergymen, employes of nonprofit organizations and, on an optional basis, employes of state and local governments. Now the system embraces nearly 94.5 million workers, more than 9 out of 10 jobs in the country. The only large groups omitted are federal employes, who have their own retirement and health system, and some state and local government workers, similarly covered. Of the persons reaching 65 in 1971, 93 per cent are eligible to receive cash benefits from Social Security.

Benefit Increases

Besides, broadening the coverage, Congress repeatedly raised benefits—and taxes. In addition, it created whole new components of the system. Thus in 1956 retirement for the first time was provided for workers disabled before reaching pension age. And in 1965, after years of argument, Medicare, the plan under which Social Security pays much of the health care expenses of elderly retirees, came into being.

The family insurance factor of Social Security, the protection guaranteed to wives and children in case of a breadwinner's death, now reaches 95 out of every 100 children under 18 in the country, Social Security says, and is equivalent to insurance with a face value of more than $1 trillion.

Special Groups

From the start, the financing of Social Security has caused controversies. There was a sentiment for a three-way split of the cost among employers, employes and the general funds of the Treasury. But President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his advisers decided the system had a better chance if self-financed.

So the payroll tax on worker and employer has been used ever since, with only minor general fund infusions to take care of special groups.

Congress and Social Security actuaries alike have insisted that the rates set, and reset from time to time, have produced a sound fund, capable of meeting foreseeable obligations.

The price, however, has been steeply mounting payroll taxes, not only paying for current outlays of the systen but building up trust funds that now own a significant part of the national debt.

Ultimate Payout

When Social Security started, the maximum tax was $30 a year each on worker and employer. This year it is $405.60. Next year it will be $468. By 1987, even in the unlikely event Congress makes no more changes, it will be $544.50.

Social Security spokesmen say that, in terms of protection for departments and the prospects of ultimate payout on retirement, the payroll tax paid by a worker is a bargain. Nevertheless, as a current obligation that starts with the first dollar earned, the payroll levy can be a heavier burden for some low-income families than income tax.

The congressional decision to increase benefits this year but let the tax boost wait until 1972 was criticized by President Nixon, who had recommended simultaneous adjustments. But there is reason to believe it was not wholly unwelcome throughout the administration, concerned with an economy that remains sluggish and unemployment that continues high despite generous doses of relatively easy money.

Precisely such moves as the Social Security benefit increase —putting out 3.4 billion quickly spent dollars and postponing the countervailing tax increase until next year when things may be livelier—are what some economic doctors are ordering.

Normally the payroll tax is, on balance, a restraining factor in the economy. Each year it produces more revenue than is needed to pay benefits for that year. The surplus goes into trust funds intended to make sure that the system will be able to meet future obligations to its growing number of beneficiaries.

Social Security, obviously, does not keep its surplus in shoeboxes. By law, the funds are invested in government bonds. In effect, the government borrows the surplus as fast as it accumulates, paying on each increment an interest rate based on the current cost of borrowing in the open market.

At the end of 1970 the Social Security trust funds totaled $41.5 billion, invested at an average rate of 5.2 per cent. The major funds, for retirenent and disability, are expected to earn more than $2 billion interest for the system during 1981. The funds are expected to grow by about $3.5 billion during the year.

When the President makes up his annual budget, should he total in with other receipts the yield of the payroll tax and list benefit outlays along with other expenditures—even though Social Security is, in a real sense, distinct from other government operations? Since midway in the Lyndon B. Johnson administration this has been done and it has been argued over, mainly because the result is to show smaller budget deficits than would have resulted from the old system of separating trust funds operations from the general operating budget.

Economists say the new "unified budget" provides the best measure of the government's role in either stimulating or restraining the economy, because it reflects the total amount of money the government takes out of the economy and the total it puts in through spending and grants.

Japanese Idea Is for Mini-SST

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The Japanese have put in a bid for the SST now that it has been turned down by the U.S. government. A delegation from Tokyo is in the United States at this moment negotiating for the plans and equipment, and I was fortunate to speak to one of the members.

Buchwald

His name is Hakai Samauri and he told me that he thought the Japanese would be able to build two prototypes of the SST by July.

"How much do you think the planes will cost you?" I asked him.

"We estimate that each plane will cost $79.50, but this includes color television at each seat."

"That seems awful low," I said. "The Americans claimed they couldn't build an SST prototype for less than a billion dollars."

Samauri said, "That is because the Americans are so far behind in miniaturization. We feel we can get everything down to size, which will cut costs immeasurably."

"But how large will your SST be?"

"About the length of this conference table."

"But how many people will an SST of this size hold?"

"I can't give you a figure now, but we also intend to miniaturize the passengers. If we can get them down to size, we could get between 200 and 250 people on board."

"That's amazing," I said. "Why didn't the Americans think of that?"

"Americans have always been taught to think big. We Japanese have always been taught to think small. If you will excuse my impertinence, I believe the American SST manufacturers did not proceed with their plans in a wise way."

"How do you mean?"

"They announced they were building a supersonic transport airplane at the very moment your country was more interested in mass ground transportation. Had Boeing said they were going to build a supersonic train, no one would have questioned it. After they built the fuselage they could then have announced that their tests showed it wouldn't work as a train, but in order to save all the taxpayers' money invested they would add wings and see if it could fly."

"It probably would have worked," I said. "Tell me, Mr. Samauri, will your SST cause ecological problems?"

"We have made studies and we can say that if you had 500 Japanese SSTs flying at one time they would give off as much pollution as 12 pigeons at the Washington Monument."

"I must say," I said, "you people really have this all worked out. How many do you plan to make?"

"Probably only a million in the first year. We don't want to flood the market."

"Wait a minute," I said. "What about the dangers of a sonic boom?"

Samauri took a brown paper bag out of his pocket, blew it up and then, as I watched in amazement, smashed it with his fist. It went "pop."

He bowed and said, "You have just heard a Japanese sonic boom."

One of The Top prizes in the ninth annual Bowl-O-Rama sponsored by The Post-Crescent will be a 1971 Gremlin from the American Motors Corp. and C and T American, 1850 W. Wisconsin Avenue, Appleton. The Gremlin will be awarded to the first bowler rolling a perfect (300) scratch game in the tournament, which gets under way April 20 at the 41 Bowl. Here pretty Jeanne Roemer, Kimberly, affords an added touch to the Gremlin. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Gremlin Prize for Perfect Game

Bowlers Shoot for Auto

The car that started the "compact revolution" in America is the way the Gremlin is described by the American Motors Corp.

Bowlers in the ninth annual Bowl-O-Rama sponsored by The Post-Crescent will get a chance to compete for a sparkling new 1971 Gremlin and to top it all off, each entrant not only gets one, but a total of four chances to win.

C and T American, one of Appleton's newest auto dealerships located at 1850 W. Wisconsin Avenue, is offering a new Gremlin as a prize for the first perfect (300) scratch game rolled in the Bowl-O-Rama.

The four chances to win the Gremlin come from the fact that each entrant in the tournament will roll four games.

Never Recorded

A perfect game of 12 strikes in succession has never been recorded in the Bowl-O-Rama. While several keglers could "hear the keys jingling" after good strings of strikes, none has been able to run the perfect game.

The Gremlin that C and T will award to the first lucky 300 kegler will be a 135 horsepower auto with a 6-cylinder engine. It will be a four-passenger car with a 3-speed floor transmission. The car will have a white exterior paint job with red rally stripes and the interior will be of red deluxe custom designing.

The Gremlin features up to 28 miles per gallon on gasoline. Maneuverability is another plus for the Gremlin as the American Motors product has a turning cycle of 32 feet, 8 inches, three feet less than another popular compact. Other specifications on the Gremlin include a 96-inch wheelbase, 70½ inches wide, 161.2 inches in length and 6 cubic feet of trunk space.

While 1971 is only the second year on the auto scene for the Gremlin, Gregg Coenen and Ken Tourville, managers at C and T American, report the car has really "caught on" with the general public.

Consequently, Bowl-O-Rama entrants are urged to set their sights high as they just might be fortunate to be scooting around their home town in a new Gremlin.

Five Bowl-O-Rama shifts are already listed as sellouts and bowlers desiring specific nights or shifts are urged to get their entries in as early as possible.

On the second night of the tournament, April 21, for the 9 p.m. shift it will be "Weyauwega Night" with Radtke's Recreation bringing in a squad of bowlers.

The 7 p.m. shift on April 27 already is filled and on April 30 it will be "Bonduel Night" with Hugo Kamke of the Legion Arcade bringing in a contingent of keglers.

Floyd Driessen, host at the T and O Lanes, Oshkosh, has served all 36 lanes at the 41 Bowl for the 7 p.m. shift on May 11 and on May 21 all 36 lanes are taken by a Green Bay group made up chiefly of bowlers from the Fort Howard Paper Company.

Proprietors, league secretaries or squad sponsors who wish to make group reservations for the Bowl-O-Rama are asked to contact the 41 Bowl as soon as possible. Some other shifts are filling rapidly and choice times and dates may be gone quickly.

Bowlers are reminded about the "Sponsor's Night" that is run in connection with the Bowl-O-Rama. Any person who brings in a group of 30 or more bowlers qualifies for the special "Sponsor's Night" activities which include cash prizes as well as merchandise awards.

The "Sponsor's Night" will be held May 26, after the Bowl-O-Rama is completed. Sponsors will bowl three games for the cash prizes and the evening will include free lunch and refreshments through the courtesy of the 41 Bowl.

Entry fee for the Bowl-O-Rama is $2.50, and this amount must be included with the entry blank. Bowling charges ($2) and the tournament expense fee ($1.50) can be paid at the time of registration for bowling.

Cards Pound Cubs, 14-3

Astros Eclipse Dodgers, 2-1

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just because Jesus Alou is sitting on a bench, it doesn't mean he's sitting still.

"I try to stay in shape, who knows what will happen?" says the Houston Astros' outfielder who's in an unaccustomed reserve role this season.

It happened Wednesday night for Alou against the Los Angeles Wodgers as Houston won 2-1.

The St. Louis Cardinals crushed the Chicago Cubs 14-3; Atlanta topped Cincinnati 2-1 and San Francisco dumped San Diego 7-3 in the other National League games Wednesday. Wet grounds postponed the Montreal-New York contest.

Alou broke into the line-up after Jim Wynn sprained his back while at bat. The newcomer delivered three singles off Dodger ace Don Sutton, including the go-ahead run that scored Cesar Cedeno.

George Culver saved the victory for Wade Blasingame, slamming the door on the Dodgers with one out and a man on first in the ninth. He coaxed pinch-hitter Richie Allen into a game-ending double play.

Jose Cardenal and Joe Hague each drove in four runs as the Cardinals capitalized on five Cub errors. The losers coughed up nine unearned runs as third baseman Ron Santo and first baseman Joe Pepitone committed two errors apiece.

Three Errors

Southpaw Steve Carlton, a 19-game loser last year, checked the Cubs on three hits until Pepitone homered in the seventh. Billy Williams got Chicago its other runs with a two-run shot in the eighth.

St. Louis, aided by three errors, scored five unearned runs in the third, with Cardenal's two-run single off losing pitcher Bill Hands the key blow. Hague delivered two of the runs with a single in a six-run sixth for St. Louis.

Hank Aaron struck his first home run of the season and 593rd of his career and Clete Boyer knocked in another run in a two-run seventh that carried Atlanta over Cincinnati. Until the Braves' rally, they had been unable to reach Reds' starter Jim McGlothlin for only one hit.

The Reds, who had 10 hits off Ron Reed and Cecil Upshaw, scored their run in the sixth on a double by Johnny Bench, a walk to Bernie Carbo and a single by Hal McRae. Upshaw choked off a Red rally in the ninth with one out and a man on second.

Dick Dietz, Ken Henderson and Willie Mays unloaded homers and Gaylord Perry pitched a four-hitter for San Francisco. Henderson hit a solo homer in the second, Dietz a two-run shot in the fourth and Mays smacked his 630th career homer in the seventh.

Nate Colbert was the whole San Diego offense, knocking in all the runs with two homers.

'Kilier' Swats 488th Homer

Blyleven Cools Brewers; Minnesota Triumphs, 4-0

By PAT THOMPSON

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bert Blyleven, a whiz as a 19-year-old rookie with the Minnesota Twins, went to spring training this year to learn a changeup.

Blyleven still needs work with a change of speed delivery, but he credits the experiment with improving his fastball.

"I'm holding the ball different and it's moving in on the hitters," Blyleven said. "When I throw a fastball, I hold the ball the same way I do on a changeup."

The Milwaukee Brewers will attest to Blyleven's pitching Wednesday.

The Twins' right-hander set the Brewers down on a 4-0 four-hitter with six strikeouts and two walks.

Used Fastball

Blyleven said he used 60 per cent fastballs, the rest curves and an occasional change.

"I'm trying to move the ball around on the hitters," said Blyleven, 10-9 as a rookie. "I guess I put it all together. The last couple of spring games I started throwing strikes."

Manager Bill Rigney of the Twins simply said about Blyleven's pitching. "He's so smooth."

But in the second inning, a Blyleven fast ball struck Brewer catcher Phil Roof on the ear flap of his batting helmet. He was rushed to a hospital and held overnight for observation after doctors reported they couldn't detect a serious injury.

The Twins staked Blyleven to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Harmon Killebrew swatted his 488th career homer after Tony Oliva singled. Rich Reese singled and raced home when left fielder Andy Kosco fielded Jim Holt's hit and threw wildly trying to beat Reese at third.

Killebrew singled in the eighth, and pinch runner Paul Powell came in from first on Holt's double to right for the final Twins run.

The Brewers, who beat Minnesota 7-2 in the season opener Tuesday, made their best threat in the seventh when Dave May and Bernie Smith singled. But Roberto Pena grounded into a double play to end the inning.

With two out in the eighth, the Brewers had Ted Kubiak, with a walk, and Tommy Harper, with a single, on base. Blyleven summoned for Rigney. There was a short conference on the mound, and then Blyleven struck out Mike Hegan to end the inning.

"I was OK," said Blyleven. "My pants were too tight and I told him (Rigney) I wanted a different pair."

Melton, Carlos May Spark White Sox to Double Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Writer

Carlos May. Then again, he may not. Touch home plate, that is.

The rest of the Chicago White Sox know the way home and they took the route 18 times Wednesday while sweeping the Oakland A's 6-5, 12-4 in the first opening doubleheader in major league history.

Carlos almost May-ed it. He negotiated 359 of the 360 feet around the bases without incident after blasting the ball into the seats. The last foot proved elusive. So did the plate. Carlos stepped over it and merrily continued on into the dugout.

Baltimore Twins

"I knew I missed it," he confessed. "I was too busy shaking hands."

Catcher Gene Tenace spotted the boo-boo, appealed to umpire Jim Odom and Carlos suddenly went from three-run homer to two-run triple.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore edged Washington 3-2, Minnesota blanked Milwaukee 4-0 and California tripped Kansas City 7-3. Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and the New York Yankees were not scheduled.

The White Sox, who blazed their way through spring training, got Manager Chuck Tanner off to a sparkling AL debut with their twin win. They battled from a 4-0 deficit in the opener—Sal Bando slammed a three-run homer for the A's—with Bill Melton and Walt Williams homering and tied the score in the seventh on Rick McKinney's pinch single. The winning run scored when center

Track Career Ends

Vikings' Alwin Signs Packers Pact, Vows to Be in Best Shape Ever

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Lance Alwin, a standout the last two years in the shot put and discus events, did not compete as a member of the Lawrence track team Wednesday when the Vikes made their outdoor season debut against St. Norbert.

Nor will the Fort Atkinson senior appear any other time this spring in a meet to carry the colors of his school. The reason?

Lance Alwin

Alwin is now a professional football player, more specifically, a member of the Green Bay Packers after signing a contract with the club last week. In fact, the 5-11, 211-pound running back participated in drills with the Packers last weekend in Arlington, Tex.

The decision to sign the pact now and thereby forego his eligibility for the LU track squad was a difficult one for Alwin, but he stands by it as a sound one.

To Miss Competition

"Yes, I'll certainly miss being able to compete in my senior year on the track team," Alwin said Wednesday night. "I had been looking forward to it and planning on it, and it seemed until last week that I would be participating in track.

"I did speak with the coaching staff up at Green Bay about this," he went on, "the fact that I would like to compete and finish up my eligibility.

"But it turned out that if I didn't go to Arlington, I felt personally it would be a mistake," he explained. "I felt I wouldn't be able to have the time that a rookie needs to become adjusted to the pro ranks, and this would be valuable time lost when I reported to camp in July. All the other rookies would have those few days to get over the initial scare, and I wouldn't."

Personal Decision

Relating his thoughts on the subject further, Alwin noted, "I spoke to my coaches at the university, and it boiled down to a personal decision.

"This was what I had been working for a number of seasons now. I wanted to play pro football, the opportunity had arisen, and this was the time to go full steam ahead—and that meant elimination of participating in track.

Alwin's personal reasons go even deeper, he said.

"When you come from a family of 16 kids, you learn early in life what it is to have nothing, to have to sacrifice for other people, to work hard and look toward the future for some type of goal.

"I'm newly married, and at the same time I'm planning to help my family along. This is what my family needed, this is what my wife needed, and it probably boils down to that I had to be selfish."

Canadian Offer

Alwin, who was not drafted by any of the NFL teams, had been negotiating with a Canadian

Frodesen Accounts For 2 of LU's 6 First Places

St. Norbert College won 11 first places on a 17-event program, including both relays, in spoiling Lawrence University's outdoor track debut at Whiting Field Wednesday afternoon, 88-57.

Leading the Green Knights were Don Holmes, who won both the 440- and 220-yard dashes easily and also anchored the victorious mile relay team, and Greg Fredericks, winner in the 120- and 440-yard hurdles and runnerup in the high jump.

Of Lawrence's six first places, two were garnered by Mark Frodesen in the long jump and triple jump. Other Vike winners were Bill Jensen, mile; Tom Cutler, javelin; Francis Campbell, 3-mile, and Doug Gilbert, pole vault.

The St. Norbert quartet of Mike Walters, Mark Billotti, Mike McCabe and Mike Thomas started the meet by winning the 440 relay in 45.4 seconds, beating LU's foursome of Bill Gruetzmacher, Dave Spear, Ron Lee and Frodesen by 1.3 seconds.

Never Trailed

That triumph gave the De Pere school a 5-0 jump in points, and it never trailed, moving to a 35-15 advantage afer six events.

St. Norbert did not sweep any individual events but did take first and second places in five of them — the shot put, 120-yard high hurdles, 440-yard hurdles, high jump and 220-yard dash.

LU's best overall showing was in the javelin throw where the Vikes, led by Cutler's throw of 179 feet, 9 inches, swept all three places. Dennis Obriant followed Cutler at 152-6, and Bill Trauba was third at 135-0.

Frodesen fouled his first two tries in the long jump trials before sailing 18-8 to qualify. He then captured first in the finals

Lew Meets Wilt

Battle of Giants Key To NBA West Playoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The battle of giants and the struggle between long-standing rivals . . . that's the match ups when the National Basketball Association playoffs resume Friday afternoon and night in Milwaukee and New York.

The giants are Lew Alcindor, 7-foot-3 all-NBA center of the Milwaukee Bucks, and 7-1 Wilt Chamberlain of the Los Angeles Lakers, and they will pair off Friday night in the opener of their best-of-seven games Western Conference final.

The Baltimore Bullets and the New York Knicks square off in the second game of their Eastern Division final, which started Tuesday night with another bruising, hard fought game that has marked the meetings of the teams the past three years.

Lew MVP

Alcindor, the NBA's Most Valuable Player, led the Bucks to the best record in the league this season and to an easy 4-1 victory over San Francisco in the conference semifinals.

Chamberlain, with both Jerry West and Elgin Baylor sidelined with injuries, carried the Lakers past Chicago 4-3 in an inspired performance of defense and rebounding.

This will be the first time Alcindor and Chamberlain have faced each other in a playoff game, and with Oscar Robertson complimenting Alcindor, the Bucks are strong favorites. They beat the Lakers four times in five games during the regular season.

Defending Champ

The defending NBA champion Knicks opened with a 112-111 victory over the Bullets, a typically down the wire finish between the two clubs. New York has eliminated the Bullets from the playoffs the past two seasons, first 4-0 and last year 4-3, and beat Baltimore four straight times this regular season after losing twice. But almost every game has been a thriller.

Baltimore gave the Knicks quite a run Tuesday night despite the absence of all-NBA forward Gus Johnson, out with aching knees. But he hopes to return Friday afternoon.

The second game of the Western series will be played Sunday afternoon in Milwaukee before the teams move to Los Angeles Wednesday and next Friday nights.

The third and fourth games of the Eastern series will be in Baltimore Sunday afternoon and Wednesday night.

Bucks, Lakers on TV

The first game of the Bucks-Lakers playoff series will be telecast by Channel 11 at 8 p.m. Friday.

Italians Make Evading Taxes a Way of Life

ROME (AP) —If you judge a man's ingenuity by how well he circumvents taxes, Italy is brimming with genius.

Some act outraged when a tax official names the correct amount of taxes they owe. Others try to bargain with him. Many consider it a dishonor to be honest in any tax matter at all.

"We never pay the amount asked," says an Italian journalist, "because we think the government is trying to cheat us. So we try to stop that ourselves."

The latest group trying to stop that are the "professionisti." These self-employed physicians, attorneys, architects and engineers claim the government has no right to compel them to keep an account of income and force them to submit the accounts to inspection.

The government considers them the biggest tax evaders of any class.

To support their stand the professionals went on strike recently. Doctors, dentists and veterinarians were unavailable. Work on many building sites ground to a halt for lack of engineers. Courts shut down almost completely.

The opposition to paying the exact amount of tax is so prevalent, and well-publicized, that not only the family doctor but also the storekeeper, the landlord and even the wealthiest of entertainers join in.

The city of Rome says Sophia Loren and her producer-husband Carlo Ponti netted $1 million last year, the most for a Roman couple. Her share was $560,000, the city asserts. It demanded $80,000 in taxes.

But she says she won't pay a lira of it. She claims she is a legal resident of Switzerland and beyond Rome's tax jurisdiction.

Almost every landlord has a "two-tier" contract with his tenants, one for about 20 per cent of the rent and the other a private landlord-tenant agreement. The taxman never sees that when he comes.

Finance Minister Luigi Preti says last year only 198 of some 150,000 professionals declared an annual income of more than $8,000. The estimates most professionals made about $50,000.

Reinstatement to Order Of Garter Approved For Emperor Hirohito

LONDON (AP) —Queen Elizabeth II has given permission for Emperor Hirohito of Japan to be reinstated to the Order of the Garter, Buckingham Palace said today.

He will rejoin the ancient order of chivalry before his Oct. 5 state visit to Britain, a spokesman said.

The emperor was stripped of his membership by King George VI, the queen's father, after the outbreak of war with Japan in December 1941.

All other Japanese holders of British honors and awards also were struck off, but the palace said members of the Japanese party accompanying the emperor will be allowed to wear insignia of British awards made to them before 1941.

Surgery Performed

Career of Unitas in Jeopardy, But Doctors Express Optimism

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Unitas, who missed a relatively few games while being knocked around for 15 years in the National Football League, finds his career in sudden jeopardy because of a freak off-season injury.

The 37-year-old quarterback ruptured his right Achilles tendon while playing paddle ball Wednesday with teammate Tom Matte, and underwent surgery about six hours later.

Matte, who drove Unitas to Union Memorial Hospital, also was admitted not long afterward when he suffered a recurring attack of bleeding ulcers.

"The surgery confirmed the early diagnosis of a ruptured Achilles tendon of the right foot," a Colts' spokesman said after the 1½-hour operation on Unitas.

Doctors Optimistic

"The tendon was separated and shredded about two inches above the right heel," the spokesman said. "The separation was repaired and Colt doctors are optimistic about the surgery."

Unitas is expected to be in a

cast for about six weeks, however, and the type of injury has been known to cut short the careers of much younger athletes.

"This has been some year," Unitas reflected. "First, I was hurt in the Super Bowl, then my wife sued for separation, and now this."

Unitas, who holds almost all of the NFL passing records, was injured in the first half of the Super Bowl game against the Dallas Cowboys, but the Colts went on to win, 16-13.

Gone Through Mill

Since he started with Baltimore in 1956, Unitas has suffered broken ribs, a punctured lung, dislocated fingers, torn knee cartilege, broken vertebrae, and tendonitis of the elbow.

He missed one game in 1958 and sat out another, although he was ready to play, after suffering broken ribs and the lung puncture. In 1965, following knee surgery, he was sidelined for four games.

The elbow tendonitis kept Unitas out of action almost the entire 1968 season, but a rigorous therapy program restored his throwing arm for the 1969 season.

"It's a staggering thing, not only for all of us personally," said Don Klosterman, the Colts' general manager, "but because John Unitas has contributed so much to professional football and the Baltimore Colts. But with John's determination and courage, we are hopeful of his early return to the team."

Maritime Takes Title In 8-Ball Pool Loop

Maritime Bar has completed a sweep of honors in the 8-Ball Pool League.

Despite a 5-4 loss to Hide-A-Way in season-ending action, Maritime finished the second half with an 82-44 record. Maritime had also won the first half title.

KC Bar (71-55) took a 5-4 decision over Schwalbach's (52-74) to finish second.

In other 5-4 verdicts, PJ's (49-77) beat the Pub (61-65) and Catcher Joe's (61-65) nipped Kelly's (63-63).

There will be a playoff for second place Tuesday between KC Bar and Schwalbach's.

CLINTONVILLE — The return of eight lettermen from last year's highly successful team buoys Clintonville High School baseball hopes this spring, despite an unusually small turnout of 16 candidates.

Some valuable personnel were lost through graduation last June after coach Werner Wernberg had guided the Truckers to a 12-3 record and a share of the Mid-Eastern Conference championship.

Among the most prominent seniors were second baseman John Malloy, the club's top hitter with a .444 average; first baseman Todd Nordwig, the Truckers' best power man; Pat Zingler, an ace pitcher as well as clutch hitter and infielder; center fielder Kevin Korb, a good fielder and excellent bunter, and catcher Bob Fletcher.

In spite of the departure of these high-calibre players, Wernberg — starting his 11th season at Clintonville — has reasons for optimism in the upcoming campaign, which opens with a home, non-conference encounter against Marion April 16.

The pitching staff, Wernberg believes, should again be strong. It is headed by senior right-hander, Craig LeBeau, along with another righty, Rusty Ehlert, and southpaw Glenn Olson, both juniors. All three won letters last year.

LeBeau and Ehlert can also play shortstop or the outfield, while Olson is also handy around first base.

Other lettermen back for the Truckers, all seniors, include Mark Heideman (center field, first base), Brian Dunlavy (third base, catcher), Randy Nelson (shortstop, second base), Mark Smith (catcher, first base) and Dave Dieck (right field, first base).

Seniors out with jayvee experience are John Christman (pitcher, infield), Bob Stanislawski (outfield), and Warren Hanson (infield, outfield). Infielder Bill Rice was making his first bid for the squad as a senior but recent arm surgery will prevent him from competing.

Ron Henn (infield, outfield) is the only non-lettermen junior with jayvee experience, while pitcher-outfielder Bill Mullarkey tops the list of sophomore candidates, also including Randy Steenbock (outfield), Randy Buelow (outfield, first base), Dennis Dieck (infield, outfield), and Ron Schmoll (outfield). Schmoll is nursing a knee injury presently.

Clintonville, of course, will be competing in a new league this spring — the Bay Conference — and Wernberg is confident his team can be strongly competitive in the circuit. A chance for another conference title will be decided by the Truckers' ability to fill the gaps left by seniors from last year.

With the season opener a week off and snow still covering parts of the field, Clintonville hasn't had opportunity for outside practice. However, Wernberg has settled on a tentative lineup of Olson at first base, Nelson at second, LeBeau at third, Dunlavy at third, Smith catching, Ehlert pitching, Mullarkey in left field, Heideman in center, and Dave Dieck in right.

Pitching changes would see LeBeau and Ehlert switch positions in one situation, while if Olson were to come in, LeBeau or Ehlert would play shortstop and the other would go to the outfield.

Bruins, Black Hawks Notch Opening Playoff Triumphs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Orr made certain he wouldn't be missed when he left the game, but the Philadelphia Flyers made no such provision when they lost a player against the Chicago Black Hawks.

Three times a Philadelphia player was whistled off the ice for a penalty and three times the Black Hawks converted the power play, twice by Bobby Hull, for a 5-2 victory in their National Hockey League playoff opener.

Orr got the Boston Bruins off to a good start in defense of their Stanley Cup title by scoring one goal and assisting on another, enough for a 3-1 victory over Montreal, despite Orr's absence the final 11 minutes.

The New York Rangers had a rougher time as they had to come from two goals back in the final 20 minutes, 3 seconds for a 5-4 victory over Toronto.

Stars Beat Blues

In the only surprise result, fourth place Minnesota upended second place St. Louis 3-2 in St. Louis in a West match.

All four games were the openers of best-of-7 game division semifinals, with the second games scheduled for Thursday night at the same sites.

Hull got the West champion Black Hawks started with a 20-foot slap shot past goalie Doug Favel in the first period with Larry Hale in the penalty box.

After Pat Stapleton made it 2-0 and Philadelphia's Bill Lesuk hit on a power play, Hull came on again with the clincher at 6:24 of the second period with Ed Van Impe off the ice.

Doug Jarrett added still another power play goal in the period as the Flyers streak of losing in Chicago since joining the NHL in 1967 remained intact.

Slap Shot

Orr, the highest scoring defenseman in NHL history, put the host Bruins ahead with a long slap shot in the first period while Montreal was two men short.

After Montreal pulled even on John Ferguson's power play goal that trickled past goalie Gerry Cheevers, Orr assisted on Wayne Cashman's tip in midway through the second period.

However, Orr wasn't around for the finish when he was called for holding with 10:55 left in the game and made an uncomplimentary remark to referee John Ashley. He wound up with a misconduct and had to be restrained from going after Ashley.

The Rangers, down 4-2, pulled up on Bob Nevin's goal that glanced off Toronto defenseman Bob Baun's skate with only three seconds left in the second period.

Fires Clincher

Vic Hadfield then opened the third period with his second goal of the game and Walt Tkaczuk supplied the clincher on a brilliant breakaway 6:44 into the period. Dave Keon and Paul Henderson each scored twice to give visiting Toronto its early lead.

Danny Grant set up one third period goal by J. Parise and then scored the winner himself at 7:12 in Minnesota's victory over St. Louis. The Blues cut the deficit with six seconds left on a goal by Gary Unger.

Jude Drouin had given the North Stars an early 1-0 lead before Fran Huck of St. Louis tied it midway in the opening period.

Track Opener Set April 22

Lettermen to Lead Xavier

A squad of 47 candidates, headed by six lettermen, is currently working toward Xavier High School's opening outdoor track action April 22.

Coach Bob Pliska's charges will be meeting De Pere Pennings and Oshkosh Lourdes in a triangular on the Xavier track on that date.

The list of lettermen include three seniors and a like number of juniors. The upperclassmen are Mark Collar, (long jump, dashes), Mark Kramer (mile) and Joe Bissing (pole vault), while Gary Krueger (2-mile), Mark Rechner (440) and Jeff Nack (dashes) comprise the other group.

Of the prospects for this year's squad, Pliska says, "We will be very good in the distance runs, good in the dashes and hold our own in the 440 and hurdles."

He indicates, however, that the Hawks "need a lot of work" in the field events.

With only five seniors on the team, Pliska views this season as a building year, although he also sees Xavier competitive with the Fox Valley Catholic Conference's top teams — namely Premontre, Lourdes, Roncalli, St. John and Pennings.

The schedule:

April 22 — Pennings, Lourdes Triangular
April 29 — Roncalli
May 1 — FVCC Relays (at Pennings)
May 5 — At Fox Valley Lutheran Triangular (Xavier, St. John)
May 7 — St. Mary
May 11 — At Premontre Triangular (also Pennings)
May 15 — FVCC Meet (at Fond du Lac)
May 19 — At Lourdes
May 22 — State Class B Meet

Alwin Signs With Packers

team for a contract. But then former Packer Bob Skoronski made some contacts with the Green Bay office, and the ball started rolling.

Alwin, naturally, is elated by the break he received.

"It makes me quite happy, to say the least," he declared. "I was feeling pretty bad after not being drafted. This was like a dream to work with a beautiful person like Mr. Skoronski, and the organization is top notch."

Alwin admits to being a little awestruck by the training camp and "meeting the players I've always read so much about." In spite of the pressure of such a situation, he was satisfied with his performance at Arlington.

In Good Condition

"I thought I was in pretty good physical condition," he asserted. "I wouldn't say excellent. I started myself out on a long distance running program (six miles a day) plus using weights. I produced a pretty good time down there, and I know when I go to camp, I'll be in the best physical condition of my life."

Alwin, like other members of the Packer squad, said he was "impressed" with Dan Devine as a coach. "I respect him," Lance commented. "He knows what he wants. He's got a lot of goals he set, and I don't think he's going to let too many things stand in the way of achieving them.

"He's going to make sure his club is the most prepared and physically fit. With those tools and the proper motivation," he concluded, "the players should be able to go out and achieve championship status."

Frodesen's mark in the triple jump was 41 feet.

Mile, 3-Mile Wins

Jensen stepped off a 4:44.2 clocking in taking mile run honors, 4.9 seconds ahead of the Knights' Jerry Feldhausen, while Campbell — a freshman from Richmond, Va. — set an LU yearling record in the gruelling 3-mile with a time of 16:39.0.

Gilbert passed until the 12-foot mark in the pole vault and then missed on his first two tries. He cleared the bar on his third attempt (his last to qualify), however, and then went on to win the event by clearing 13 feet.

The Sturgeon Bay junior failed three times to clear 13-6.

Outagamie Town Meetings

Buchanan to Withdraw From COG

Buchanan

Electors authorized the town board Wednesday night to give notice by July 1 to withdraw from the Fox Valley Council of Governments. The action, according to Town Chairman Joseph DeBruin, was to enable the town board to act when a new regional planning agency is created by the end of the year.

He said the original approval to join COG was given at an annual town meeting so it was felt the authorization to withdraw should also come at an annual meeting.

Raises were given to all town officials. The salary of the chairman was increased $500 a year, the clerk was raised $200 and the supervisors, assessor and treasurer were each raised $100.

The fire department was granted $1,500 for salaries, as in the past, and a retainer will again be paid to the Holland fire department. Hand labor and tractor and truck labor will again be left to the town board. However, stone hauling will be let on bids and the county will again do the snow plowing.

Town road reconstruction will continue at 4½ to 5 miles per year, or as the town can afford it, with the heaviest used roads being rebuilt first.

Ellington

A 25-cent per hour salary increase was approved for work done by supervisors and election workers, bringing the hourly rate to $1.85 and $1.50, respectively.

The decision on how much town road work will be done this year was left to the town board.

Minutes of the monthly board meetings will continue to be published in the Hortonville Star. The annual meeting next year again will be held on the Wednesday following the April election.

Vanden Broek

A possible reassessment of the town was discussed Wednesday night, but it was decided that a special town meeting on that subject alone should be held before a decision is made.

The assessment ratio is now 28 per cent of full value. The decision to be made is whether the assessment ratio would be raised to 100 per cent and whether the reassessment would be done by the town assessor or an outside firm. No date has been set for the special meeting.

Operation and maintenance of the town's recently purchased sanitary landfill site also was discussed.

Raises of $100 a year were given to the clerk, treasurer and assesor. Hourly wage rates will remain the same.

A five-year program of seal-coating town roads will be started.

Seymour

The town board was authorized to enter into an agreement with the City of Seymour for ambulance service. A retainer fee of $200 was tentatively agreed upon with the person using the ambulance service paying the cost of the run.

Salaries of town officials were increased 10 per cent and they were granted 10 cents a mile for automobile expense. Hourly wage for town labor was set at $2. Town road work was left to the decision of the town board.

The annual meeting will revert to 1:30 p.m. on the day of the April election next year. Town officials said the turnout Wednesday night, the first night annual meeting, was only "fair."

Kaukauna

A contract with the Town of Oneida for solid waste disposal was approved by town residents. Last year the board had been authorized to enter into the agreement and the contract was signed in July. Approval Wednesday extends the contract for two years.

The town board was authorized to use its discretion for road work but to attempt to keep the town tax rate at its present level. Road work discussed included reconstruction of two miles of McCabe Road and blacktopping the remaining one mile of Golden Glow Road and one-quarter mile of Kelso Road where it joins County Trunk OO and State 96.

Retiring town chairman Floyd Van Vreede was given a vote of appreciation for his work as chairman for the past 4½ years and as a town supervisor previous to that.

Jerome Van Vreede was elected new town clerk in Tuesday's election. The election story in Wednesday's Post-Crescent erroneously referred to him as Jerome Lemke.

Tax Relief for Elderly Backed

Senate Committee Agrees to Give Plan High Priority

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Senate Health and Social Services Committee agreed Tuesday tax relief for the elderly was high on the list of legislative priorities, but that a constitutional amendment might not be necessary.

The generally sympathetic lawmakers considered a resolution which would allow tax exemptions for persons 65 years or older living on fixed incomes. The proposal received enthusiastic backing from senior citizens.

However, legislators, led by Republican Sen. James C. Devitt of Greenfield, suggested tax relief for the elderly might be accomplished by amending present state homestead laws. Devitt, committee chairman, said he soon would introduce a bill that would exempt the first $5,000 on property taxes for retired persons living on fixed incomes of $6,000 a year or less.

Devitt said the process of providing tax relief to the elderly might be accomplished through legislation in six months. A constitutional amendment takes two or three years and includes putting the proposal to a statewide voter referendum after being approved by the legislature.

Supporting the tax relief proposal was Milwaukee County Supervisor Edward Lane, who argued the amendment amounted to "fair play for people who have done their job and paid their taxes all their working lives." He said it was "morally wrong" to drive elderly persons from their homes because they could no longer afford to pay property taxes.

Diocesan newspaper.

He will replace the Rev. William Stengel, who has been managing editor over four years. Stengel will remain as business manager.

A native of Fond du Lac, Wessing was graduated from Marquette University School of Journalism in 1954 and worked on the Freeport (Ill.) Journal-Standard. He also worked for the Kankakee (Ill.) Daily Journal.

After he left The Post-Crescent in 1965, Wessing joined the Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, working in public relations.

Man Sought After Student Reports Rape

OSHKOSH — Police are still searching for a young man who raped an Oshkosh State University coed early Wednesday after she left her dormitory to take a walk.

The 18-year-old woman was assaulted after she had walked south across the Wisconsin Street bridge.

She told police she left her dormitory about midnight to take a walk. On the bridge she stopped to watch the water and fishermen. When she began walking again, she said she met a man in his early 20s who asked her if she needed someone to walk her home.

She said no and continued walking. After crossing the bridge and turning west, she realized someone was behind her.

The woman told police she was grabbed tightly around the neck and she lost consciousness. When she regained consciousness, she found her clothing had been torn off.

She returned to the dormitory and reported to the head resident who took her to Mercy Medical Center where she was examined and held overnight.

Police searched the area of the assault and found articles of women's clothing.

The description the woman gave police of her attacker was a male in his early 20's, about 6 feet 1 inch tall with sandy brown hair. She said he was wearing what may have been a corduroy jacket with a sheepskin lining.

Steinhilber Blasts Welfare, Urges Reform in Wisconsin

SHERWOOD — Calling welfare "one of the biggest drains on Wisconsin's resources," state Sen. Jack D. Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, Wednesday night called for welfare reform in Wisconsin modeled after Gov. Ronald Reagan's "California Plan."

Speaking before the Shorewood Men's Club, Steinhilber said that in Wisconsin and throughout the nation, "the welfare system is just not working." He charged that the present welfare system in Wisconsin is "a bureaucratic monstrosity which is clogging effective help with mountains of red tape."

Steinhilber said he was not criticizing "legitimate assistance for those who, through no fault of their own, need temporary help in a time of trouble, or those who because of physical or mental disability need permanent help of one kind or another.

"I am speaking about a system in which the able-bodied are encouraged to depend upon permanent public financial aid for their daily existence . . . which encourages separation and divorce, or indolence, because it provides a bigger monthly check than the man-of-the-house can provide . . . which encourages cheating and fawning to get a better deal from the dispenser of the aid," Steinhilber said.

Steinhilber charged that "welfare is becoming a way of life for a large segment of our population." He noted that "the number of people on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children rolls are increasing by over 2,000 per month in Wisconsin. The number now is over 100,000."

In criticizing Gov. Patrick Lucey's budget proposals, Steinhilber said that the governor has asked for over $40 million more in welfare spending than was requested by the Department of Health and Social Services.

Roof Decked Intentionally?

Lane Irate Over Beaning

ST. PAUL MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Frank Lane, given the task of building the Milwaukee Brewers, fumed Wednesday after catcher Phil Roof was struck in the head by a pitch in the second inning against the Minnesota Twins.

Lane declared that Manager Bill Rigney of the Twins had ordered Bert Blyleven to deliberately throw at Roof, who was carried off the field and taken to a hospital after a fastball struck his protective ear flap of his helmet.

Doctors described Roof in satisfactory condition and ordered him held in a suburban hospital for observation.

"Rigney wouldn't be so brave calling for dusters if he had to go up to the plate with a bat in his hand," said Lane, "but he doesn't have to hit."

Rigney responded, "That kid Blyleven never threw at a batter in his life and he didn't start today."

After the game, Lane confronted Rigney about the incident in the Minnesota press room.

"It's pretty bad when a guy has to stake his life when he goes up to hit," said Lane.

"You can't tell me, Frank, that we're trying to throw at your No. 7 hitter with a three-run lead," said Rigney.

There was a further exchange, and Lane, director of Baseball Operations of the Brewers, walked out.

Earlier in the press box Lane said that if a player was struck on the head, "they ought to suspend the pitcher for 10 days and the manager for one."

Blyleven said the pitch, a fastball, sailed away from him.

fielder Rick Monday booted the ball.

Jay Johnstone's homer got the Sox started in the nightcap and May's homer-triple made it 3-0. Oakland caught up in the fourth but Mike Andrews delivered a two-run tie-breaking double in the fifth and a grand slam by Melton highlighted a five-run sixth.

The world champion Orioles opened their season on a triumphant note, although they had to wipe out a 2-0 Washington lead, built on RBI singles by Joe Foy and Elliott Maddox.

Baltimore scored in the third on two singles, a sacrifice and an infield out; in the fourth on an error, wild pitch and Ellie Hendricks' single, and won it in the fifth on singles by Dave Johnson and Boog Powell and Frank Robinson's double. Dave McNally scattered nine hits and whipped the Senators for the 20th time in 24 decisions.

Pitcher Tom Murphy drove in two runs with a double and single and spaced 10 Kansas City hits as California beat the Royals. The Angels rapped out 12 hits, including a double and two singles by Jerry Moses, a homer by Ken McMullen and two hits each for Alex Johnson and Sandy Alomar.

Spring Skiing Conditions Are Favorable

BY CHUCK TORINUS

Skiers in the Fox Cities who traditionally hang up their "boards" this time every year are getting a reprieve. The heavy onslaught of snow in northern Wisconsin and Michigan's Upper Peninsula this winter has allowed ski areas in those regions to remain open through the Easter weekend, which is late this year, and probably later into April.

Spring skiing conditions reported this week are still very favorable. The following hills are still operating: Mt.Telemark in Cable (10 to 30-inch base); Indianhead in Bessemer (40-inch base); Brule Mtn. in Iron River (30-inch base); Pine Mtn. in Iron Mountain (18 to 30-inch base), Big Powderhorn in Wakefield (20-inch base) and Porcupine Mtn. in Ontonagon (14-inch base).

Three of these areas announced special notices to all skiers. Brule Mtn. will close after this Sunday! Indianhead is offering free skiing to any female attired in a bikini. Porcupine Mtn. reports their conditions deteriorate to "poor" in the afternoon. And Big Powderhorn is still offering free skiing to juniors 12 and under.

Court Overrules Curt Flood In $3.1 Million Trust Suit

BALTIMORE (AP) — Curt Flood didn't make any progress in his $3.1 million suit against baseball on Wednesday, but he earned another $611.11 by playing against the Baltimore Orioles.

Just before taking the field against the Orioles, the $100,000-a-year outfielder for the Senators learned he had lost another battle in his antitrust suit.

"We anticipated that," Flood said of a decision by a three-judge U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York which upheld an earlier dismissal of Flood's claims by Federal Judge Irving Ben Cooper.

Wouldn't Overrule

"We knew that no lower court would overrule a previous Supreme Court decision," Flood said.

Flood claims he was forced into "peonage" by baseball's reserve clause system, but the written appellate decision by Judge Sterry R. Waterman said Flood "retains the option not to play baseball at all."

"We readily acknowledge that plaintiff is caught in a most frustrating predicament, a predicament which defendants have zealously seized upon with great perspicacity," Waterman wrote.

Flood declined specific comment until he had heard from his attorneys, but in New York the lawyers reiterated their intention to pursue the case to the Supreme Court.

"The Supreme Court chooses the cases it wants to hear," Flood said. "I just hope ours will be one of them."

Bruins Break 35 Records, Lead Scoring

Esposito also collected 76 assists for a record 152 points, according to NHL statistics released Monday.

The runner-up in the scoring race was Boston's Bobby Orr who set records for defenseman of 37 goals and 139 points and a league record of 102 assists.

Two other Bruins ranked third and fourth—Johnny Bucyk with 116 points and Ken Hodge with 105—and Bobby Hull of Chicago was fifth with 96 points.

New York Ranger goalies Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure won the Vezina Trophy with a goals-against average of 2.26.

Swimmer, 13, Breaks AAU Record Twice; Spitz Loses

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — There isn't much a lass of only 13 can say after twice breaking an American record. And so Deena Deardurff of Cincinnati didn't say much after swiping the spotlight in the opening of the National AAU Men's and Women's Short Course Swimming Championships.

The youngster started off in her favorite event, the 100-yard butterfly, by breaking the record of 57.4 set just a week before by her teammate, Alice Jones, 19, with a clocking of 57.4. That was in the Wednesday afternoon qualifying.

It was no fluke because Deena came back in the finals with a torrid 57 flat.

The listed record of 58 flat, set by Sharon Stouder in 1965, was one of the oldest on the AAU books.

Brian Job of the Santa Clara Swim Club bettered his own listed American record of 57 flat in the 100-yard breaststroke with a 56.9. Tom Bruce of UCLA however, has a time of 56.8 pending off his victory in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Championship at Ames, Iowa, two weeks ago.

The night session ended with one upset when Frank Heckl of the University of Southern California won the 100-yard butterfly in 49.5, beating in the process and in order behind him Gary Hall and Mark Spitz, Indiana teammates.

Other defending champions were successful. Debbie Meyer won the 500-yard freestyle in 5:02.8 after a tussle with Nancy Spitz, and John Kinsella ran away from the crowd in the men's 500 in 4:28.8. Susie Atwood, the 17-year-old from Long Beach, defended her title with a 2:06 in the 200-yard backstroke.

Clearing The Bar at 12 feet, 6 inches, Lawrence University's Doug Gilbert was on his way to victory in the pole vault against St. Norbert Wednesday at Whiting Field. Gilbert later went over the 13-foot level for the winning performance. (Post-Crescent Photo by Edward J. Deschler, Jr.)

Frazier Addresses South Carolina Legislature

'Blacks, Whites Must Work Together'

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Joe Frazier, who once plowed with a mule on the sandy soil of coastal South Carolina, spoke to the 170 members of the state Legislature Wednesday and told them the problems of this nation can be solved only if all people, black and white, "play together, work together, and pray together."

Frazier, now the heavyweight champion of the world, was home in his native South Carolina and he walked briskly into the chambers of the House of Representatives to a standing ovation from legislators and hundreds packed into the gallery above.

He spoke with a soft voice of the things that had been and of the things he believes must be.

Quit Worrying

"It is time to quit thinking about who lives next door to you," Frazier said.

"It is time to quit thinking about who drives a big car. It is time to quit worrying about who your daughter may sit next to in school.

"Our main problem today is that people won't work together, won't get along."

The champion, dressed in a conservative gray suit, relaxed, and smiling said to the 167 white and three black legislators:

"Everytime I see a black person taking a step forward I feel proud."

Then, with a glance to the balcony where scores of young blacks sat, he said:

Walk Forward

"If you just put that right foot forward and then that left foot forward and begin to walk forward, you'll find out here there always will be someone there to give you a hand.

"Since I left Beaufort, South Carolina," he continued in a voice that echoed throughout the House chamber, "I have learned a lot of new things. Most of all I have learned how to approach people, anywhere, anytime, anyplace."

Frazier looked directly at the three black legislators, the first to serve since Reconstruction, and said, "I am proud to see the few black faces that have been duly elected to this Legislature and it gives me great pleasure to know that finally white and black citizens are working together for the help of all people."

Vike Netters Open Season

Angelides Will Miss Tests Against Grinnell, Cornell

The Lawrence University tennis team opens its season this weekend with matches against Grinnell and Cornell Colleges.

The Vikes will play at Grinnell Friday and at Cornell Saturday.

Coach Ken Biegel said the tennis team will be without one of its top men, sophomore Kim Angelides for the opening weekend of action. Angelides, although he has been working out lightly on the indoor courts is recovering from an illness and won't be ready for action at least until next week.

Biegel said he has been pleasantly surprised by the showing of freshman Scott Russell. Russell, he said, has looked excellent during practice sessions and will fill the No. 2 slot on the weekend road trip, behind David Simmons.

Simmons, a senior, is one of the top returnees from last year's squad, which was hit hard by graduation.

"Most of the other teams in the conference are returning virtually intact," Biegel said. "We lost four of our top six men through graduation."

Biegel said the Vikes may not be title contenders in this, his first year as tennis coach, "but I think we can pull off our share of surprises.

Other LU players this weekend will be Joseph Lipari, No. 3; Jeff Martin, No. 4; and Gary Bellack, No. 5. The man for the No. 6 match is still undecided, Biegel said.

Keep Up Fight for Better Food Labeling

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Wouldn't you like to see something like this on a label for, say, a can of pork and beans: "One average serving (one cup) provides protein 16 grams; carbohydrates 50 grams; fat 7 grams; calories 320"?

Wouldn't you welcome such nutritional information as: "One cup of pork and beans contains 40 per cent of the amount of protein required daily by a child or 20 per cent of the amount required by an adult?"

Of course you would — and signs are emerging that major improvements in food labeling, such as this, are on the way.

Under a new Food & Drug Administration rule, for instance, the baby foods you buy now must be labeled to disclose how much protein, vitamins and other nutrients they contain. Under another proposed FDA rule, strained baby food labels will have to show a list of their actual ingredients.

Obviously, this is merely a beginning.

Cut Number of Packages

Since the 1966 Truth in Packaging law, there have been important improvements in the labels of many consumer products as well as significant reductions in the number of package sizes and shapes in the marketplace. (To illustrate, the number of cereal package sizes has been cut from 33 to 16; of detergent package sizes, from 24 to 6; of toothpaste container sizes, from 57 to 5.)

But meaningful labeling of foods we buy is still the exception. Among the areas in which we must demand additional information are:

— Food Dating: You have made plain English dating of all perishable foods a popular consumer issue. As a direct result, several stores and chains are now abandoning the cryptic code which hide from us the dates at which certain foods became stale and are experimenting with "open dating" systems and "freshness codes" we can understand. Keep up the pressure and you will win this one soon.

— Calorie Counts: I cannot exaggerate the frustration I feel when I buy a food labeled "diet" and then cannot find how many calories there are in a slice or cup or tablespoon. This should be mandatory on at least the diet foods. We also should be able to tell how much lower in fats the so-called lower fat foods are.

— Net Weight: If we knew the net weight of soups, for instance, we could compare the volume of real food — meat, vegetables, etc. — in various soups. In many cases, we would find a concentrated, thick meaty soup is a much greater value at 45 cents a can than a watered-down equivalent at 30 cents.

— Key Ingredients: Labels should tell us what proportion of "beef stew" actually is beef, what proportion of fruit is in a fruit drink. Or how much chicken is in frozen breaded chicken as against bread, flour or whatever. Bread is not chicken.

— Simple Meat Labels: Each label should disclose the "primal cut" — the origin of each piece of meat (rib, loin, chuck, flank).

I repeat, this is merely a beginning. It was a full year ago that the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health recommended that all included on food package labels should be:

Recommended food storage conditions (how long a package of frozen beans should be kept in the freezer);

A universal simple "a-b-c" grading system for foods to eliminate our confusion because of the variety of federal food grading systems (especially important in meat);

Clear explanation if the food is new or synthetic.

Sure, new labeling requirements may hike costs in the short run, and certainly the food-processing industry will try to pass the costs on to us. But that's no argument against labels essential to our health; in fact, this is one extra cost I'll gladly share.

Song Would Glorify Calley, Firm Cancels Distribution of Record

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Capitol Records has canceled distribution of a Tex Ritter recording of "The Battle Hymn of Lt. Calley" because it would glorify him.

"We felt that it would be wrong of us to glorify Lt. Calley or to make him seem a martyr through the release of this song," said Brown Meigs, an executive with the company's California offices.

Ritter said he couldn't understand why Capitol has stopped distribution. "This song is the biggest damn thing that has hit the record business," he said.

Another recording of the song, about Lt. William L. Calley Jr., convicted of killing civilians at My Lai, has sold more than a million copies.

Annual Meeting

Farmington to Get WACOG Report

WAUPACA — A progress report of the Waupaca Area Council of Governments (WACOG) will be given at the annual meeting of the Town of Farmington at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Town Hall.

Chairman Fred Jensen is expected to discuss the formation of a sanitary district surrounding the Chain O' Lakes.

Also scheduled for the meeting will be a report on the summer patrol for 1971 from the week before Memorial Day through Labor Day. This will be the third summer that the Towns of Dayton and Farmington have shared the cost of the patrol.

A review of the financial statement of the Town of Farmington for the fiscal year ending March 23, 1971 will be made.

The Town of Farmington has grown in population during the past ten years from 1,885 to 2,242, an increase of 357. This is one person less than the city of Waupaca grew from 1960 to 1970.

Farmington has an aggregate recommended full value on real and personal property of $15,319,700, which makes it the wealthiest of the county's 22 towns. Its residents have about one-half the tax base of the City of Waupaca.

Residents in the Town of Farmington pay 5 per cent of the county tax and special charges, which came to $104,840 this year, and 22 per cent of the Waupaca Unified School District tax, $216,974. This is one-half as much as the City of Waupaca pays.

The financial statement for the fiscal year ending March 23, 1971, shows a total expenditure of $416,467 with a cash balance of $18,345. Cash receipts were $424,011.

Residents attending the meeting will have an opportunity to compare these figures with the town's proposed budget.

Beyer Wins Center Race As Write-in

CENTER — Clarence Beyer, route 3, Appleton, was elected chairman of the Town of Center as a write-in candidate Tuesday. It had been inaccurately reported that incumbent Donald Devine was re-elected.

Beyer, a farmer, received 187 votes, compared with 180 for Devine, who was elected to the post two years ago.

Another write-in candidate received 30 votes for the assessor post. He was Roy Conant who won the post for which there were no announced candidates.

The town also will have a new clerk. Francis Hofacker ran without opposition and received 196 votes. Walter Techlin, a retired farmer and clerk for 37 years, decided not to run for re-election.

At the annual meeting, it was reported that the town dump would be open from 5 to 8 p.m. Wednesdays from May 1 to Oct. 1. The dump also is open from noon to 5 p.m. Saturdays year-around.

One Traffic Death Listed In Waupaca

WAUPACA — In his March report to the county law enforcement committee, Capt. John Penney disclosed that there has been one fatality compared with two for the same period one year ago.

Last month 32 accidents were filed with the department, one of them handled by the State Patrol; these involved 50 vehicles and 28 injuries.

County police made one criminal arrest, issued 68 warnings, transported 13 prisoners and assisted 55 motorists.

Squad mileage for the month was 22,685 miles. The department handled 237 radio calls, 40 telephone calls and assisted the sheriff on 29 calls.

Forensic Honors Won by Seven At Seymour High

SEYMOUR — Seven students from Seymour Community High School received "A" ratings at the recent district forensics contest at Preble High School, Green Bay.

Those winning top honors are eligible for the state contest April 24 at Madison. They are Jill Eisenreich, four-minute speech; Charla Phillips, original oration; Susan Schoen, significant speech; Cindy Wehrman, declamation; Lauri Wenninger, declamation; Terri Tech, reading of prose, and Rosemarie Markgraf, public address.

One Bear Creek Trustee Wins, Other Unseated

BEAR CREEK — One incumbent trustee in the Village of Bear Creek retained his post by one vote Tuesday while the other incumbent was defeated by a nearly two-to-one margin.

Keith Balke polled 70 votes to 69 for his opponent, Leon Bechard to give him another term.

Earl Reek received 72 votes in his successful bid to unseat Richard Glocke, who had served two years. Glocke had 38 votes.

President James Rebman was unopposed for re-election. Incumbent Treasurer Mrs. Viola Lehman also was unopposed, but Edward Prunty recieved two write-in votes for the position. One write-in vote each were cast for Dennis Zimmerman, Edward Prunty and James Thebo for the assessor's post, which was won by incumbent Gerald Rebman.

Clintonville Forbids Junk Appliances at New Landfill

CLINTONVILLE — The City Council Tuesday night approved a recommendation of the board or public works that no junk washing machines, stoves, dryers or refrigerators be accepted in the garbage or rubbish collection.

With the present system of landfill, the board reported that it is not feasible to accept these large junked appliances. If they are taken apart and in flat pieces, they will be picked up.

A recommendation was accepted to purchase approximately 2,000 feet of six-foot fencing and the necessary posts, at a cost $800, to fence in the landfill operation. Fencing is required by the Department of Natural Resources, and during the winter, a temporary fence had been installed.

To Seek Prices

The board of public works was given permission to advertise for prices on gravel, blacktop, cement, sewer pipe, curb and gutter, and sidewalks, and for a sewer plant operator as the present operator, John Kafka, will reach retirement age this year.

The bid of Ted Coppens, Combined Locks, of $25,064 for sewer installation, and the bid of Tenner Brothers, Green Bay, of $6,276 for water mains installation, both in the Industrial Park, were accepted by council.

A request for street lights on Robert Street between 16th and Grant Streets was referred to the water and light commission for action.

Council approved the board's recommendation that the county forester be contacted regarding the best method to remove and dispose of trees and stumps on the railroad right-of-way purchased for a street north of 16th Street to the site of Paper Converters.

Petition for Mains

A petition from Mr. and Mrs. James Huffman for sewer and water mains to connect Lot No. 44 in the Fairway Lakes subdivision was referred to the board of public works, as was the problem of flooding in two yards between Grant and 16th streets.

The council recommended that Sunset Drive, originally proposed as a boulevard, be a street instead.

A letter to Basil Arvey, director of public works, from the Town of Larrabee was read, stating that the town plans to put hot asphalt mix on that section of Green Tree Road from county D west to the Johnson driveway.

Harold Weiland appeared before the council about a bill of $170 from Mantin Brothers as a share of the cost of snow removal of the area back of four business places on S. Main Street. Weiland told the council that while this was privately owned property, the area was used as a public parking lot and was open to the general public. He contended that the city should pay for the snow removal.

Who Asked for Removal

Ald. Clarence Smith (3rd) said the city didn't authorize Mantin Brothers to take out the snow. The suggestion was made that it should be determined who did employ Mantins to do the snow removal in that area. The matter was referred to the board of public works for a recommendation.

Mayor Frank Sinkewicz stated that the record should show that a summons had been served on August Witt, a city employee; the City of Clintonville, and its insurance carrier, the Travelers' Insurance Company, by Duaine C. Lorge, who was injured sometime ago in an accident involving his car and a street sweeper operated by Witt. The amount of his action is $60,000, and the top limit that the city has with the insurance company is $50,000.

Ald. Leon Steenbock, chairman of the recreation committee, said the committee was not interested in securing a building from Ripon for $5,000; that it had not decided whether to rent the Eagles Club; and it decided to hold up on coming in and asking for a director for recreation and parks.

Sinkewicz reported that Otto

Waupaca to Ready North Side Landfill

Council Gives Job to Public Works

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — The question of the city's relocating its dump on or before the end of June took up more than half of Wednesday's session and degenerated, as it has on numerous occasions this past year, into the format of a public hearing, before a decision was reached.

Again there was fragmentary information as to whether or not the city still could cooperate with the towns of Dayton, Farmington and Lind in the use of its new sanitary landfill operation in the Town of Dayton. There was a rehashing of the possibility and feasibility of bringing the present dump site up to the Department of Natural Resources standards and continuing to operate at the site.

The entire matter was reopened by the proposal of Ald. LaVern Hanke (5th) that the preparation of the north side site be delegated to the Department of Public Works and its director, to be completed between April 15 and May 15 and to be in operation no later than June 30.

Motion Passed

The motion was passed by a vote of six to four, but not until after considerable discussion and a variety of view from the aldermen.

Ald. Edsil Huntoon (1st) said he "believed we should leave this until the new aldermen get on the council — they have to live with it."

Hanke insisted that some action should be taken. "The council voted last July to move to the north side site and I see no reason for further delay."

"It hasn't been proved that the Department of Public Works or the director know how to operate a dump, and until they can prove to themselves and the DNR that they can, we shouldn't take any action. We should leave it to the new council," said Ald. Marlyn Looker (3rd).

Dumping Hours

Director of public works Iver Oerter pointed out that he had suggested hours for the dump which would give the operator time at noon and in the evening to properly cover the collection of garbage. "This was not done," he said. "At present, with the hours set, we have no control."

Ald. Thomas Taber (1st) noted, "When the council visited the present site some months ago, we agreed to spend $2,000-$3,000 to have the county come in and dig a trench — but this has not been done. Why?"

Oerter replied that there was a trench, dug by the dump operator and at considerable savings to the city.

Taber retorted, "Are we going to live by what the council decides or by what the operator at the dump decides?"

Site Found Adequate

At the request of Edward Spanbauer, alderman-elect from the 2nd ward, Mayor Edward Kramer read a letter to the city engineer from the Division of Environmental Protection dated March 8, 1971. It clearly outlined the adequacy of the north side site as to location, soil, bedrock and drainage; pointed out that from 10 to 12 tons of garbage and other refuse would be deposited there each day by residents and commercial establishments; set out the approved method for a landfill's daily operation and noted that a license for the new north side site would be issued when an inspection had been made for the prepared site.

Oerter told the council that from a personal point of view, a dump was a big headache and if he had his choice, he would prefer that the city not have one to operate.

"My position is to do a job for the community and the dump is one of the duties assigned to me," he added.

Best Service

"Going south of town (with the towns of Dayton, Farmington and Lind) would be my personal choice, but the best service to the city will be to go to the north side site."

Ald. Waldermar Johnson (2nd) said, "I don't think they have closed the door on us completely."

Looker called for another comparison of costs and said he felt that the north side site could not be prepared for the $2,000 allocated for this expense.

"There has been talk about people dribbling garbage along County Trunk K," Huntoon said, "but how are the people on Fulton, Granite and Harrison streets and State 49 going to feel? If you can get an okay for

School Board Told

No Progress Seen In Salary Talks

SHIOCTON — Salary negotiations with the Shiocton Board of Education and the Shiocton Education Association show little progress to date.

According to a report presented at the board of education meeting, recently, it was noted several meetings have produced no settlement.

Contracts have been issued by the board at their last offer, with a $7,200 base for teachers with a Bachelor of Science degree.

Negotiators will meet again Tuesday evening.

The board opened and reviewed formal bids for the district fire and liability coverage. Bids were received from Murphy-Meartz, New London; Employer's Mutual, Wausau; and Insurance Services, Appleton, with the Appleton firm's bid being accepted.

The annual premium was computed at $4,238. The present policy expires April 15.

The 1971-72 school football budget with a figure of $2,029 was discussed and tabled for additional consideration.

Woodworking machines for the new shop area were another concern of the board, with the Industrial Arts instructor answering questions. The board approved the district's request for bids from several companies on machines under consideration.

The board also took up the driver training program, with an eye on the possibility of expanding to include a summer program. It was decided to maintain the program as an in-school activity.

Clarence Brownson was nominated by the oboard to serve on the CESA 8 Agency School Reorganization for Outagamie County.

The board approved the elementary contract for Mrs. Rae Jean Arno to teach kindergarten for the 1971-72 school year. Mrs. Arno has taught in the Shiocton school in the past.

The Wolf Is Open

NEW LONDON — The ice is officially out on the Wolf River, and the walleye will be king for the next few weeks, now that Pete and Joe have taken their annual float down river.

The two dummies and their boat left their place on the ice at the S. Pearl Street bridge at 11:53:12 a.m., according to the clock used to record their official departure.

There was a massive chunk of ice which carried the boat to the Shawano Street bridge, where everything jammed to a halt.

Wolf River watchers noted that last year the ice around the boat melted entirely, and the boat floated around beneath the Pearl Street bridge, held by strong winds. Due to the wind the clock was not tripped for several days after most of the ice had disappeared.

Walleye fishermen have been taking advantage of the warm weather and openings in the ice to sit along the shore and in boats trying for walleyes.

Reports are that fish are being caught from Fremont to Shiocton. The average length of the early catches are around 20 inches.

Mental Health Studies

Jaycettes OK Scholarship

NEW LONDON — The Jaycettes again will sponsor a scholarship for a graduating high school senior interested in mental health.

Applications will be available at the senior high school office.

Style Show Chairman Mrs. Kenneth Karpf reported that the project was a success. Proceeds will benefit Jaycettes charity projects.

It was announced that the spring Jaycette regional meeting will be May 1 at Oconto. Te annual Jaycee- Jayceette convention will be May 14-15 at Madison.

New officers were elected. In 1971-72, Mrs. Ivan Gruetzmacher will be president, Mrs. Richard Stephenson, state director; Mrs. Lyle Malliet, vice-president; and Mrs. Roger Mathewson, secretary-treasurer.

Members working at the special workshop for adults in February were Mrs. Lyle Malliet, Mrs. Richard Stephenson, and Mrs. John Berg. Mrs. Tom Bergman, Mrs. James Ehlke, Mrs. Lyle Malliet, Mrs. Robert Freiburger, and Mrs. Timothy Janke, volunteered for March.

The Jaycettes have been supplying volunteer help for the workshop since its beginning last year.

Grader, Mixer for Sale

New London Eyes Equipment

NEW LONDON — The city's 20-year-old road grader and an old cement mixer will go up for sale as a result of action by the City Council at its regular meeting Wednesday night.

The grader, in need of repairs which would cost about $3,000, is valued at about $1,000. Director of Public Works Robert Martin pointed out that the city no longer needed the machine, since it is going out of the construction business.

The council authorized an agreement with the Philips and Associates engineering firm, Kimberly, for services on the sidewalks on Pine, Millard and Werner-Allen Blvd. Mayor S. W. Krostue pointed out that these sidewalks were problem projects because of the terrain.

The city entered into a feeless license with the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad in order to run a sanitary sewer under the railroad's tracks at the alley west of S. Pearl Street. The sewer work is being included with the downtown remodeling project, scheduled to begin soon.

Ahead of Schedule

Ald. Clarence Bauernfeind noted that the contractors are about a week ahead of schedule on the safety building and annex. They expect to have the fill and foundation completed by April 26 and hope to start the masonry work by May 3.

It was reported that the bids for the work on the N. Shawano Road 45-54 intersection) had been $80,000 lower than estimated. The total costs of the project should be $435,500. The city authorized the payment of $42,455 for its initial share of the project.

Martin reported that work would resume on the storm sewer separation project, on Monday, with Roger Freeman the sole inspector on the job. The city had two last year.

Martin explained that he felt the quality of DeVleeshouers work, and the fact that he would have time to help with the inspection, made it possible to reduce the number to one. Freeman will receive a $25 per month raise, and a gallon of gas for every 10 miles driven on the job.

He stated that the sanitary landfill is operating more efficiently, and that the city realized a one-third reduction in the amount of fill being used. With the present system, a days trash is being compacted to a layer 25 feet by 100 feet by six inches.

Sewer is Ready

Martin again said that the northside sanitary sewer, along N. Shawano Street, is ready for the connection of property owners. The project was completed in the fall, but had some seepage problems which are now apparently corrected.

Krostue reported on a meeting of the planning commission and the Chamber of Commerce Improvement Committee. "They had some fine ideas and suggestions that possibly could have been implemented at the time the project (downtown resurfacing) was initiated, there is not much we could do about it at this late date," he stated, adding that the committee was going to continue submitting ideas to the council. Krostue stated that he encouraged the co-operation of the committee.

Among suggestions that came from the meeting and which Krostue urged the council to consider, were the better marking of parking lot locations, and lighting in the McKinley parking lot.

The council welfare committee is studying a proposal to establish a county system of relief. "We have had a very

Meetings 'Uneventful' For Mukwa, Lebanon

NEW LONDON — The Lebanon and Mukwa town meetings "highlighted" an election day that saw a light voter turnout due to a lack of races throughout Waupaca County.

In Lebenon the majority of the meeting's action was the approval of the annual report. "It was an uneventful meeting" town chairman Ken Egan said, adding."I guess they are all satisfied."

The town had total receipts of $234,560, with town orders for $207,448. Cash on hand was reported about $5,687.

The major expenses for the town were in highways, totaling $63,718 and salaries for $4,379.

The Mukwa meeting also followed an uneventful course. One of the topics was the dump problem the town is facing. It has been offered a site, but must determine whether or not it will get DNR approval. If the site proves favorable a special meeting will be held to bring the issue before the town members.

The town's financial statement showed receipts of $249,730, and town orders for $236,798. The bank balance was a total of $12.931.

—Approved leasing a new squad car from Clintonville Motors, Inc., for $200 per month.

—Approved purchase of 120-gallon drum of rust inhibitior and to overhaul the siren on top of the City Hall.

—Approved some remodeling in the police department estimated to cost $150.

—Noted that Michael Schertz had been employed as a policeman to replace Ronald Antonwiecz, who resigned.

effective relief department" Krostue noted.

He cautioned that the program could become less efficient if it came under state control. The question was also raised as to whether the costs of relief would be billed back to each community.

Cool to Sharing

Action was referred to the finance committee on a proposal to support Governor Lucey's tax sharing proposal. It was pointed out that while it appeared the city would get about $60,000 under the proposal, it would realize a loss through the school system.

It appears that the school would lose about $157,000 — and 52 per cent of the assessed valuation of the school district is in the city.

In referring the matter to committee, Krostue noted "we can't go on the basis that if the city gets $60,000 lets go ahead, we must look at the whole thing."

After minor discussion the council adjourned to a special meeting, at 8 p.m., today for public hearings on the downtown resurfacing and N. Shawano Road Urbanization projects assessment.

that north side dump, you can get an okay for a dump at the bathing beach."

Kramer said that while the new aldermen would have to live with the decision on site, the present council, he thought, should take a stand and make a decision.

On other business, Ald. Julius Johnson (4th), head of the Department of Public Works, asked that the council take a look at Granite, Deer, Randall, Division and Jefferson streets, which were resurfaced last year with slurrey seal and see how they had withstood the hard winter. He also suggested that they look at bad portions of Union, High and Division streets, with the view of resurfacing them with the same material.

The new council will meet at 6:30 p.m. May 4 to go on a street inspection.

A canvass was made of Tuesday's election and Edsil Huntoon, Waldemar Johnson, Edward Spanbauer, Marlyn Looker, Dennis Schultz and Elmer Feltz were declared the winners in the aldermanic races.

The council moved to set a fee of $6 for the use of the shelters at South Park, with a $2 key deposit for each day of the week.

The first reading of the ordinance amending the municipal code of the city to effect council committee changes proposed by Kramer was made. One more reading is required before action can be taken.
